COSGRAVE WINS IRISH ELECTION FOR PRESIDENT

Is Reelected Free State Head Over O'Connell and De Valera.

80-65 VOTE FAVORS RETENTION OF CHIEF

Fianna Fail Leader Gets Support Only by His Own Party.

VIGOROUSLY SCORED FOR "WAR DOCTRINE"

Just as He Had Predicted, Defeated Candidate Says in Milwaukee.

Dublin, April 2 (A.P.).—William T. Cosgrave was reelected president of the executive council of the Irish Free State tonight. The vote in the Dail was 80 to 65 in his favor.

Previously Eamon de Valera, the Fianna Fail leader, and Thomas J. O'Connell, the Labor nominee, were defeated, De Valera by a vote of 93 to 54 and O'Connell by 78 to 13.

The first casualty in the balloting was Mr. De Valera, whose election was proposed by Sean T. O'Kelly, acting leader of the Fianna Fail party during the absence of his chief in the United States. He was supported only by his own party which mustered 54 votes while 93 deputies ranged themselves against him.

Mr. O'Connell, leader of the Labor party, led the opposition against De Valera and was himself the second candidate to be rejected. Only 13 deputies in his party voted for him and while the Fianna Fail men took no part in the division, there were 78 followers of Mr. Cosgrave who voted in the negative.

De Valera "Gunmen Rule."

Then Mr. Cosgrave was put forward by the Government party, the Cumann na Ngardheal. In opposing the election of Mr. De Valera, Mr. O'Connell asserted that the leader of the Republicans did not recognize the Dail as a legitimate body and therefore should not be chosen as its head.

He also said that if the recent De Valera speeches in America were accurately reported in the press cables, they indicated that Mr. De Valera was preaching a doctrine that would result "in an immediate and terrible war."

Desmond Fitzgerald, minister of defense in the Cosgrave cabinet, which resigned last week, also made a vigorous speech in opposition to Mr. De Valera. He was followed by Patrick Hogan, minister of agriculture, who said that if Mr. De Valera were elected, gunmen would be the real governors of the country.

Sets Endurance Record.

Mr. Cosgrave thus will resume, after the brief interval of five days, the important post which he held since 1922.

When his ministry fell last week it had achieved a record for longevity among European cabinets by virtue of its eight years of continuous service. It lost by only two votes when that slender majority of the national legislature favored extension of old-age pensions, a measure which the president opposed as constituting too great a burden upon the present finances of the country. At that time it was predicted that Mr. Cosgrave would be returned to office.

The President of the Irish Free State is not a president in the American sense, but functions more like a premier in a parliamentary government. All ministers are chosen by the Dail Eireann, the chief legislative body, and must be members of that body and are responsible to it.

After the president is chosen he nominates the vice president and other members of the council, all of whom must be approved by the Dail.

De Valera Not Surprised.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 2 (A.P.).—Election of William T. Cosgrave as president of the executive council of the Irish Free State was just as he had predicted, said Eamon de Valera, here today. Mr. De Valera will conclude his two-day visit in the Twin Cities tomorrow, when he leaves for Seattle.

The defeat of De Valera for the same office also was just as he had expected, said De Valera, as his party—the Republicans—could not muster enough votes to defeat the government faction, headed by Mr. Cosgrave.

Mr. De Valera denied that reports from Dublin that negotiations leading up to the election of a new president had brought about a split in the Republican party.

Having been convinced that there was no chance that he might be elected now to the presidency to succeed Cosgrave, De Valera has decided to continue his lecture tour in this country, instead of returning to Dublin.

INDIAN MURDER CASE DECLARED MISTRIAL

Squaw's Tuberculosis Halts Hearing in Killing of Artist's Wife.

OTHERS ARE ABSOLVED

Buffalo, N. Y., April 2 (A.P.).—A mistrial was declared today in the case of the Indian Lila Jimerson who for two weeks has listened to a white man's Government attempt to convict her for the murder of an artist's wife. The defendant, who suffers from tuberculosis, was in a hospital, too ill to reappear in court for the concluding stage of the trial, and Judge F. Bret Thorn dismissed the 12 men who had heard the evidence.

The drama, with its stories of Indian witchcraft rites and ouija boards, lacked only the summation of counsel and the verdict of a jury to be complete. The jurors had heard the testimony of State's witnesses that Lila Jimerson desired Henri Marchand, prominent sculptor of Indian museum groups, as a husband and that she had convinced superstitious old Nancy Bowen, a tribeswoman, that Clothilde Marchand was a witch and should be killed. They were shown letters written over the signature of "Mrs. Dooley," urging the death of the witch, letters which the State declared were conceived and written by Lila.

The 12 men listened to the muttering old Nancy tell how she killed Mrs. Marchand with a 10-cent hammer and chloroform-soaked wad of paper in the latter's Buffalo home.

They were informed by a handwriting expert for the defense the "Mrs. Dooley" letters were not penned in Lila's handwriting, and listened to witness, all of the white race, testify that the character of the 35-year-old defendant was good.

They had no opportunity to weigh this evidence, for Judge Thorn called them before him late today and said that thoroughly competent physicians had reported that at least two weeks would elapse before the defendant again could appear in court.

"To keep the jury together during any such time," he said, "would, of course, be a great hardship for the jurors; to hold you gentlemen in this case and prevent you from following out your usual business would be an unwise proceeding. It would also be impossible for the jurors not to hear discussion of the case in that time.

"It seems, therefore, to have resolved itself into a situation where this court can declare a mistrial."

Any possibility that others beside the two Indian women would be criminally involved in the case was removed by the concluding events of the trial.

As court was about to be adjourned, District Attorney Moore addressed the judge.

"I desire to call upon your honor at this time for advice. In this trial there have been conditions which created suspicion that others might be involved in this crime besides the

U. S. BUSINESS IS ON UPGRADE, SURVEY SHOWS

Closing Months of Year to Find Larger Volume Than in 1929.

CONDITIONS HELD SOMEWHAT SPOTTY

WARNING IS GIVEN ON UNDUE OPTIMISM

Undertone of Caution Seen in Expressions From Several Leaders.

New York, April 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Business in the United States, while spotty, has turned the corner, unemployment is on the wane, the trend of trade is definitely upward and the closing months of the year will find business in larger volume than in the late months of 1929.

There, in a nutshell, is the substance of the replies of leading industrialists, national merchandisers, bankers, insurance company heads, statitical experts and leaders of organized employes and organized labor to whom, in order to get a cross section of conditions, the New York World News Service addressed this query.

"How was business in the first quarter of 1930; what is the outlook for business in the remaining nine months?"

Underlying Conditions Sound.

The replies indicate agreement that underlying conditions are sound, that the improvement is by no means general and that business men generally are proceeding cautiously in new conditions. There is also agreement that easy money rates and large building programs, declared by the leading statistical organization to be equal to that of the best years, are most important factors in the recovery.

In their replies some credit President Hoover with checking the depression through calling conferences of business leaders once Wall street showed signs of settling down. thers ascribe slowness in recovery and caution on the part of business men as due to delay and consequent uncertainties as to the tariff.

It is conceder by all who touch on the subject that unemployment is and has been serious, although the accuracy of the figures quoted by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Senator Robert F. Wagner, to name but two prominent in the movement for relief, is challenged by such authorities as John E. Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, while Magnus W. Alexander, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, insists that emphasis on unemployment, however well intentioned, tends to increase the number of unemployed.

"Second Best Year."

In this connection, it is interesting to note that Mr. Edgerton takes the position that "there is no better cause in which surpluses can be used than to keep one's people employed as far as possible in slack periods."

Running through the replies is a note of caution, a sort of undertone warning against expectations of an early business boom. Thus in a reply "not for quotation," one of the country's leading industrialists says 1930 will be "the second best year" in his industry, while the leader in another all-important line "in confidence" displayed figures showing business in the first quarter to be

FORMER ENVOY DIES IN VIENNA HOSPITAL

Albert H. Washburn Expires in City Where He Served as U. S. Minister.

HELD DARTMOUTH CHAIR

Vienna, April 2 (A.P.).—Albert H. Washburn, former United States Minister to Austria, died tonight at a hospital here.

Mr. Washburn recently visited the United States after Gilchrist B. Stockton was appointed minister to succeed him, but he returned to Austria to clean up some details. He was taken ill with a severe cold several days ago. He was 74 years old.

Physicians at first did not consider Mr. Washburn's case serious, but after a few days of treatment at his home they discovered that complications had set in. He was immediately removed to the Rudolf Singer Hospital.

Diagnosis of his illness revealed that he had developed a severe attack of grip complicated with erysipelas. He failed to respond to treatment and declined rapidly until the end came this evening.

Mr. Washburn, a native of Middleborough, Mass., entered the foreign service in 1890 as American Consul at Magdeburg, Germany. Three years later he resigned that post to become private secretary to Senator Henry Cabot Lodge.

Subsequently he became prominent in Republican politics in his native State and made a name for himself as an authority on international law, occupying a chair on that subject at Dartmouth.

He was appointed Minister to Austria in 1922 and rendered distinguished service as chairman of a mixed commission appointed to adjust differences between Austria and Jugoslavia arising out of the commercial agreement of those countries.

SOLDIERS CALLED TO FAIRFAX FLAMES

Sawmill Lost as Wind Fans Sparks Over Wide Area in Virginia.

Two forest fires, one in Maryland near Great Falls, and the other in Fairfax County, Va., were being fought last night by scores of volunteer firemen while more than 2,000 acres of timber lay in waste, the result of two days of battling with flames.

In the path of the fire a sawmill lay in ruins; the lock house at Great Falls had burned; five or six other houses are believed to have been destroyed; three horses met death and three persons in one family miraculously escaped injury when a burning tree fell on their automobile, crushing it.

District of Columbia firemen had been called to aid in fighting the Maryland fire last night by Deputy Forest Warden J. Fred Imirie, who however, believed that unless the wind shifted, the fire could be kept in the area so far swept clean. Firemen from Bethesda, Rockville and Kensington also were aiding in the fight.

Traffic Is Blocked.

Traffic on Conduit road leading to Great Falls had been suspended for two reasons. One is that trees and debris have blocked passage and the other is that smoke is so dense that driving is not safe.

More than 1,000 acres of land stretching around Great Falls in the vicinity of the lock house and extending to the Anglers Club had been burned out at midnight and fire fighters estimated that five or six other houses in the district probably have been completely ruined.

Whether or not any one had been injured was not known, although firemen were endeavoring to get through the smoke and flame to definitely determine what havoc had been wrought.

Three horses are known to have

Withdraws From Excha Greetings With Hoover, Is Report.

Rumors were current last night that Dr. Hipolito Yrigoyen, President of Argentina, will not participate in the opening of the international telephone service between North and South America as scheduled at 10:55 o'clock this morning. Although the information was received in several quarters, no official announcement had been made at a late hour last night.

While the United States and several foreign countries listen in on stations of the two larger broadcasting chains, the service is to be inaugurated by a conversation between President Hoover in Washington, President Carlos Ibanez in Santiago, Chile, and President Juan Campisteguy, in Montevideo, Uruguay. Dr. Yrigoyen withdrew at the last moment, it was reported, because of a bad cold.

Senor Don Julian Enciso, Counselor of the Argentine Embassy and Charge d'Affaires ad Interim, admitted last night that he also had received the report "unofficially" and that his Anglo-French Talks and Other Matters Delay Friday Meeting.

SURPRISE IS SPRUNG BY JAPAN'S ENVOYS

More Debate Takes Place of Agreement to U. S. Proposals.

SECURITY FORMULA FAR FROM ACTUALITY

Stimson Makes Profession of Optimism in Face of Dampened Outlook.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, April 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The London naval conference has just passed through a hectic and, so far as actual developments go, an extremely disappointing day, although Secretary of State Stimson made public profession of optimism tonight, declaring:

"The situation has much improved since last week, and I am much more optimistic for a five-power agreement than I was at that time."

Events today included:

Postponement to a date not yet fixed of the plenary session scheduled for Friday because of Anglo-French security negotiations and because many other subjects of discussion are not yet in shape for public statements.

Japanese Spring Surprise.

A surprise was sprung on the American and British delegations by the Japanese, who were expected to announce agreement on tonnage at a meeting of the three delegations this afternoon, but instead commenced further debates regarding the Japanese reservations to the American proposals, which will be continued tomorrow.

Further search for an Anglo-French security formula, which has not been found, contra.; to categorical reports published today, that Foreign Minister Aristide Briand and Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson had reached an agreement.

A statement was made by M. Briand tonight that if and when an Anglo-French security agreement is reached it will be outsi'e the conference, will benefit all members of the League of Nations, and that there is no reason why France in consequence should make any special naval reductions, which should be made proportionately by all the powers.

Seen As Notification.

This cast a damper on opinion in all camps and is regarded as M. Briand's notification that he does not intend to pay in ships for what little he may get from Mr. Henderson.

Revelation was made to me tonight in an important British quarter that Mr. Henderson contemplates use of the British fleet for blockade purposes in the event of a Mediterranean conflict, an idea which the reativeness of the Conservatives on security commitments in the House of Commons today guarantees will be scotched when known.

An official British spokesman stated today that old subjects of debate, such as the report of the scrapping committee, which it was thought had agreed, are not yet settled. No agreement has been reached on the size of submarines, on their humanization or even finally on the compromise as to a method of limitation for navies.

Japan's Stand Obscure.

The Anglo-French situation and the Japanese delay were the two topics upon which attention centered chiefly today. The Japanese attitude is extremely obscure. After the expected agreement was not reached the subject came up again at the meeting of the heads of the delegations. An official communique is-

DRY FORCES FINISH PROHIBITION PLEAS

Statements by Witnesses Declare Amendment Is Vital to Welfare.

WET REBUTTAL TO COME

(Associated Press.)

Dry forces ended their case in the prohibition hearings before the House judiciary committee yesterday with statements by six leaders describing a decade under the eighteenth amendment as having improved economic and social conditions throughout the country.

After presenting but one witness, the drys obtained permission of the committee to offer written statements from their leaders without subjecting them to cross-examination, abruptly ending the session and the hearings. The wets, however, are to be given opportunity for limited rebuttal in two weeks.

Since February 12 the committee has heard from the wets and from the drys, opposing opinions on measures to repeal the eighteenth amendment, which have been before that group for years. Both sides presented witnesses from many walks of life, ranging from farmers on the Western plains to smart society women in Eastern cities; from industrialists, financiers, social workers, educators, scientists, former Government officials and members of Congress.

At the outset yesterday, J. Weston Allen, of Boston, former attorney general of Massachusetts, the only witness to take the stand, contended that under the Constitution there was no inherent individual right to drink or sell liquor.

He cited many constitutional interpretations by the Supreme Court and other judicial bodies supporting his position.

Solution of the drink problem, he said, rested in strict enforcement by the several States.

Statements which were introduced into the record unread came from F. Scott McBride, general superintendent

MILES EXHUMATION IS HELD IMPROBABLE

U. S. Attorney's Office Admits Quiz Into Death of Noted Economist.

CASE IS 2 YEARS OLD

Although it was admitted yesterday by the United States Attorney's office that the Department of Justice is investigating the death of Basil Miles, widely-known diplomat and economist, who succumbed suddenly at Emergency Hospital on June 14, 1928, it was understood authoritatively that so far nothing has developed that would warrant a grand jury investigation.

Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw, who has been conducting the investigation, in so far as the United States Attorney's office is concerned, refused to make any statement in connection with the case other than to decry the premature publicity given to the investigation.

Mr. Burkinshaw refused to go into details regarding this phase of the case, but it was learned that two New York newspapers had sought to have the investigation made and that they had agreed to make no statement regarding the matter until after the United States Attorney's office had decided whether the facts warranted a grand jury investigation.

While the United States Attorney's office was not the authority for the statement it was understood that at present there is no intention to exhume the body of Mr. Miles and that the action will not be taken unless the Department of Justice agents are able to dig up some worthwhile evidence.

At all events the investigation so far as the United States attorney's office was concerned marked time yesterday. Whether the department agents continued following up various clews which it is understood have been turned over to them could not be learned.

Practically all clews which are being investigated in connection with the case are said to have been turned

Spy Suspect Finishes Seven-Year Kin Hunt

Feador Barozdoff, Imprisoned by Soviets, Walks 1,750 Miles Across Asia and Causes Four Nations to Argue His Status.

The strange case of Feodor Borozdoff, classed by American officialdom as a Russian alien and spurned by the Soviet government as an American spy, who for seven years wandered over much of the world in search of his wife and children, was disclosed yesterday in the files of the State Department.

During the seven years of wandering, Mr. Borozdoff, who came to this country in 1907, bought a farm near Seattle, Wash., and left in 1923 on his world search, was treated by half a dozen governments as "a man without a country."

He was imprisoned in Moscow under the charge of being an American spy. For 26 months he was a virtual prisoner in Kashgar, the capital of Chinese Turkestan, on the edge of the desert, arrested for crossing the border without a proper passport.

There, while the state departments of four governments wrangled over his case—the United States, Great Britain, Russia and Chinese Turkestan—private citizens in Kashgar raised a purse which enabled Mr. Borozdoff to get back to the United States, where he found his children.

The children of Mr. Borozdoff are three in number, Xania, 24, who was found by her father working in the Fox studios in Hollywood and supporting the other children, Amelia, 16, and Alex, 12. The mother died in 1928 before Mr. Borozdoff's seven years search was over.

Between 1907 and 1923 he two youngest of the Borozdoff children were born on the Seattle farm. During that time Mrs. Borozdoff divorced him and took the children to the home of her brother at Kanchatka in eastern Siberia. In 1923 Mr. Borozdoff started out to find his mlies from his Russian prison, footsore and penniless. Chinese police arrested him on a small piece of property he owned in Caucasus near the Black Sea.

Landing in Vladivostok he learned that his family had gone to Shanghai. He crossed Asia to Novorossiysk and found htat his property had been confiscated.

A year later he applied for a passport from the Soviet government to go to Shanghai to his family. The Soviet officials, however, noting that he held an American passport approved by the Czarist consul general at Seattle, arrested him on a charge spying for the American Government.

He was sent to prison at Kologrivn in the Volgoda province of northeastern Russia. After two months he escaped, and started to walk across Asia. Three months later, he entered Kashgar, in Turkestan, about 1,750 rested him on passport technicalities and imprisoned him.

Then began an endless exchange of correspondence between governments, when the British consul general at Kashgar became interested in the man's plight. Robert Frazer, jr., American consul general at Calcutta, tlod the British that the American Government had no funds to transport Mr. Borozdoff back to the United States. The British and Chinese residents replied by passing the hat for him.

With money in his pocket Mr Borozdoff made his way to Calcutta, India, New York and to Seattle. In New York he learned that his wife had died in Firland's Sanitarium near Seattle, and that Police Chief J. F Forbes, of Seattle, had located his children.

At the bottom of the thick file on the Borozdoff case were the words: "Case closed."

Reds Renew School Drive As Board Launches Inquiry

Youth, 12, Cites Attempt of Communist to Convert Him.

Communistic elements, whose activities in the schools was the subject of inquiry by the Board of Education yesterday, responded to the board's thrust by renewal of proselytizing campaigns in the schools.

No communists appeared at the meeting. Instead, they chose as their answer to the board's challenge a pursuit of their activities. One 12-year-old youngster, who testified before the hearing yesterday, told the board that yesterday he had been approached in the Central High School by another youth who sought to enlist his interest in Communism.

Talk of Communism pervaded the whole meeting. Cure of subversive philosophies could be made by the retention of all kindergarten teachers whose work it is to mold the char-

Girl, 17, Granted License To Pilot Seagoing Vessels

Louise Brooks, Daughter of Former Debutante Here, Gets Permit.

Miss Louise Brooks, the 17-year-old daughter of Mrs. Cromwell MacArthur, has obtained an operator's license permitting her to navigate seagoing vessels, friends in the Capital learned yesterday. The youthful skipper has no intention of going to sea, however, according to her mother.

The license was obtained from the Baltimore board of United States steamboat inspectors. Miss Brooks, who is a student at Holton Arms, has many friends among the younger set in Washington. Her mother, who was formerly Mrs. Cromwell Brooks, made her debut here. They now live at Eccleston, near Baltimore. The girl is also a granddaughter of Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia.

sued later, after referring to Japan's "acceptance of the proposals with certain reservations which still have to be discussed in detail," continued with a further reference to expressions in the conference by Mr. Stimson and Prime Minister MacDonald to "deep appreciation of the spirit and substance of this reply."

In American circles later the Japanese were lauded as having behaved like gentlemen and any idea of a serious hitch was scouted.

A Japanese spokesman, however, made a statement to the press that in some quarters was linked with the protest against the American figures made by Admiral Kanji Kato, chief of the Japanese naval staff, to Emperor Hirohito, which did not become known here until tonight. He said that the instructions from Tokyo had put the Japanese delegation here in a position to continue negotiations, but that no final reply to the proposals—merely continuance of negotiations—is in prospect.

Official Statement Issued.

A Japanese official statement issued late tonight says:

"In view of the fact that the present plan has grown out of the spirit of accommodation and conciliation of the representatives of the powers concerned, the Japanese government have come to agree to make it the basis of a treaty to be concluded. In doing so, the Japanese government have also in mind the fact that the treaty to be concluded will be in force up to the end of 1936 and that, as to arrangement thereafter, all nations concerned will be free to claim all that they deem necessary and Japan will naturally be in a position to maintain the claim which she considers to be necessary from the point of view of national defense as heretofore."

Anglo-French security negotiations continued actively all day and several formulae were discussed, but in M. Briand's view these are not of a character, whatever their outcome, to secure serious reduction in French tonnage figures.

This makes attempts to solve British obligations under the covenant of the League of Nations and the Locarno treaties of no apparent direct value to the five-power parley. The reason why a security formula is, nevertheless sought is that earlier efforts caused the impression in France that Great Britain was trying to wriggle out of obligations already assumed years ago. Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Henderson are trying to reassure France without assuming any new commitments.

Italy Still Quite Firm.

The New York World News Service stated this morning that Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, is standing firm and that he told Mr. Henderson in effect yesterday that an attempt of the other powers to isolate Italy might compel Italy to seek her friends elsewhere. This fact was amply confirmed today and represents the present situation.

In view of the events and circumstances chronicled above, the unusual optimism at American headquarters tonight, indicated by Secretary Stimson's statement, as quoted, seems startling, but it is understandable if regarded as subjective rather than objective. It is felt, indeed, that even if the five-power conference fails, the effort will have been worth while and the conference a success, and that the sentiment expressed probably represents pleasure at the result of Secretary Stimson's and Ambassador Morrow's consultative past initiated ten days ago.

The American delegation is by no means united in its sentiment regarding the present situation and there are important Americans here who by no means echo Mr. Stimson's optimism as voiced in his statement tonight.

Former Irish Minister Guarded From Bombing

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Four detectives from the bomb squad met Dr. Eoin McNeill, former minister of education of Ireland, when he arrived today on the White Star liner Baltic, because of threats reported to have been made against him by political enemies.

There was no demonstration, however, and the detectives merely escorted the visitor to a waiting automobile which took him to his hotel. Dr. McNeill, who is a brother of Gov. Gen. McNeill, of Ireland, plans to lecture here and in Chicago and Washington.

CONSULTATIVE PACT TO GO TO DELEGATES

OPPOSITION DIES DOWN

By ALBERT W. FOX.

An outline, in general terms, of the consultative pact which America will be asked to sign, will be available to the delegates when the next plenary session of the London Naval Conference meets unless the Franco-British security negotiations collapse in the meantime. The postponement of the plenary session was ordered with the hope of announcing more definite results than could be made known tomorrow.

The revival of the consultative pact negotiations eclipsed other matters in interest here and cable reports from American delegation quarters have given an advance inkling of the new form of political pact which the Senate may be called upon to ratify. Meanwhile, Senate leaders have started a movement in favor of dispensing with further public comment until the die is cast. They feel that sufficient warning of the Senate's opposition has been given the negotiations in good faith and that further warnings would be superfluous.

The form of consultative pact now being discussed links America with the economic blockade which Article XVI of the league covenant provides for the suppression by economic force of a covenant-breaking state. The pact may be so drawn up as to apparently bestow a distinct advantage upon America by giving the Government of the United States the right as well as the duty of consulting with the European powers as to how this economic pressure is to be applied.

U. S. Interest in Blockade.

It is understood that each phrase of the pact will be carefully chosen with a view to satisfying the United States Senate that no commitment is intended, excepting advance protection of American commerce. On the other hand, the European powers will be able to read a different meaning into the phrases and the long-standing question of linking American with European powers in anticipation of another war will have been settled.

The covenant, under Article XVI provides that the members of the league will combine against a covenant-breaking state or group of states by undertaking "immediately to subject it (or them) to the severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between their nationals, &c." The British navy is relied upon to constitute the backbone of the league blockade, by means of which the economic war is to be carried on with or without military and naval operations of a different character.

Both the British and the French have suggested at London that America will, as a matter of course, be interested in the means by which any particular blockade is to be enforced. For the protection of American commerce, if for no other reason, it is suggested that the United States Government should be desirous of ascertaining in advance how the blockade is to operate. Otherwise, it has been pointed out in London, the league powers might unwittingly and unintentionally take steps which would be objectionable to America.

Proposed Veto Power.

To guard against jeopardizing any American interest, the privilege is to be granted America to consult with the European powers before any blockade is begun or before the economic and financial pressure begins. It is realized that America already has the right to consult, independent of any political pact, so that a pact merely reiterating this right would be a nullity. Therefore, America is to be asked to pledge herself in advance to consult in order to give advance moral sanction to the economic measures which the European signatory powers undertake.

Comment among senators yesterday was reserved with respect to this new form of consultative pact, though several senators have been cognizant of the latest moves which have been taking place in London. One view expressed here was that America should ask to be allowed to appoint a representative on the League of Nations council so that the United States could have a veto power over any projected blockade. As matters now stand, it is suggested, America has no voice in deciding whether or not an economic war should be undertaken at all, but is asked to pledge herself to consult with one group of European powers as to how such an economic war should be carried out.

TARIFF CONFERENCE IS SCHEDULED TODAY

The Hawley-Smoot tariff bill which has required nearly 15 months for framing and passage through the Senate and House was submitted to a conference between the two Congressional branches yesterday for adjustment of the hundreds of differences over rates and other features.

The conferences will start today behind closed doors, with five conferees from each house endeavoring to map out a program of procedure. Six major disputes face the conferees, all of which are expected to be brought back to the respective chambers for record votes before final agreement in conference.

House Republicans have pledged informally that the conferees will not attempt to reach a final settlement of the sugar, cement, lumber, and shingle rates, without permitting the House first to go on record on these items.

House Acts First.

The Senate Republican conferees have made a similar promise not to recede on the export debenture and presidential flexible tariff repeal until the Senate has had another opportunity to express itself on these important provisions.

Acting first, the House adopted, 241 to 153, a rule sending the tariff measure direct to conference without previous action on any of the 1,250 Senate amendments.

Nineteen Republicans bolted their party by voting against the rule. They were joined by the one Farmer-Labor member, Kvale, Minnesota, and 133 Democrats. Fourteen Democrats went over with 227 Republicans for the rule.

Speaker Longworth appointed the following five leading members of the ways and means committee as conferees: Representatives Hawley, Oregon, chairman; Treadway, Massachusetts, and Bacharach, New Jersey, Republicans; Garner, Texas, and Collier, Mississippi, Democrats.

Five Are Appointed.

Quickly acceding to the House request for a conference, the Senate, after brief discussion, appointed the five ranking members of the finance committee as its conferees. They are Senators Smoot, Utah, chairman; Watson, Indiana, and Shortridge, California, Republicans; Simmons, North Carolina, and Harrison, Mississippi, Democrats.

No attempt was made in the Senate to place a Republican independent on the conference committee. Members of the coalition of Democrats and Western Republicans, in control of the measure for almost six months, have indicated they might seek to have their group thus represented.

Senator Jones (Republican), Washington, sponsor of the tariff on soft wood lumber, now on the free list, inquired if the Senate conferees were going into a "full and free" conference.

When informed by Vice President Curtis, who appointed the conferees, that they were compelled to enter such a conference, the Washington senator said he realized that, but he also knew "this is not going to be a full and free conference."

Indications have pointed to a rejection of the lumber rate if put to a vote in the House. Senator Smoot predicted the conference would require at least three weeks to reach a final agreement.

Crisp Leads Attack.

Speaking of the rule in the House, Representative Snell (Republican), New York, asserted the "responsibility for this measure is on the Republican party and we accept it." Loud applause from the majority side greeted his statement.

Representative Crisp, of Georgia, a Democratic member of the ways and means committee, led a minority attack against the rule. He said the Republicans held the measure up a week while they maneuvered "erring brothers back safely into the fold and when they succeeded "the steamroller was ready to roll."

Representative Swing (Republican), California, wanted to know if the House would be given an opportunity to go on record for the higher Senate farm rates.

Voters in Opposition.

Snell informed the Californian that the phraseology of the rule merely was parliamentary usage and no one doubted the House's overwhelming majority for the highest farm rate possible.

Representative Johnson (Republican), South Dakota, who supported the rule, expressed the belief that the debenture plan would remain in the bill in conference, while Representative Ramseyer (Republican), Iowa, predicted the House would be forced ultimately to go on record on both the debenture and flexible provisions. The Republicans voting against sending the measure to conference were: Browne, Cooper, Frear, Hull, Kading, Lampert, Nelson, Peavey, and Schneider, of Wisconsin; Campbell, Iowa; Christgau, and Selvig, Minnesota; Christopherson, South Dakota; Craddock, Kentucky; Halsey, Missouri; Lambertson, Kansas; Simmons, Nebraska; Sinclair, North Dakota, and Speaks, Ohio.

Democrats voting for: Atwell, Deroueen, Kemp, Montet, and Spearing, of Louisiana; Connery, Granfield, and McCormack, Massachusetts; Drane, Green and Owen, Florida; Lea, California, O'Connor, Rhode Island, and Smith, West Virginia.

CENSUS TAKERS LAG IN FIRST DAY'S WORK

HOOVER HEADS CITY LIST

Faced with the problem of enumerating the population of Washington at the rate of approximately 59 very minute, an army of 403 census workers yesterday invaded the homes of the District with large portfolios and an arm's length of questions.

Basing the calculation on the presumption that there are approximately 600,000 inhabitants in Washington, each enumerator will have to take the census of approximately one person every eight minutes to complete the job by April 15 on a twelve-hour-a-day schedule. The law provides that the census will have to be completed by this titme.

Judging by the returns that were received last night, the enumerators fell far below this necessary average on the first day of census taking. This means that the rate of enumerating will have to be increased considerably during the ensuing days of the census.

Early Figures Kept Secret.

The law will not permit census officials to release figures before the census is completed.

President Hoover and family head the list of Washingtonians having the honor to be among the first counted in the new census. The President presented his answer schedule to J. Sterling Moran, supervisor of the census in the District, at the White House yesterday morning to the accompaniment of sound motion picture cameras.

Taking advantage of the requirement that the answers be kept strictly confidential, President Hoover divulged only the better-known facts about himself. His age, for instance, was revealed to be 54, but the age of Mrs. Hoover was not made public. The President said that he had been married at the age of 25, and that he was occupying the White House. He gave his occupation as "engineer."

State Residents to Be Counted.

The population of Washington is to be given a decided boost through the provision that all residents of States living in Washington must give the National Capital as their place of residence. This includes all clerks in the Government service and secretaries to senators and representatives.

A special count will be made of persons living in Washington who maintain a voting residence in any State and determine how many persons living in Washington vote. Senators and representatives, on the other hand, will be enumerated in their home States, although they maintain residence in Washington during sessions of Congress.

Throughout the United States, 120,000 workers are taking the census. Several small municipalities reported that they had completed their census on the first day.

Democrats Flayed For Vote on Tariff

(Associated Press.)

Explaining that Democratic senators had cast a total of 1,010 votes either for increased tariff rates or against proposed decreases, Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, charged that a large majority of them were attempting to "screen their own actions behind a curtain of propaganda smoke."

His statement, issued through the Republican national committee, said 526 Democratic votes had been cast for rate increases and 484 against decreases.

The Indianan said the record showed that "some of those who have assailed the Senate bill most lustily supported a large number of increases in rates and voted against a large number of decreases."

SHOALS COMMENT ASKED OF HOOVER

Worthington Note Declares President Is Against Federal Control.

NORRIS ATTACKS GRAY

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover was called upon in the opening debate on Muscle Shoals in the Senate yesterday to answer a prediction received by the lobby committee that he would veto the pending Norris resolution for Government operation of the gigantic nitrate and power plant in Alabama.

A memorandum written by J. W. Worthington, chairman of the executive committee of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, carried the prediction of a presidential veto. Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, called upon Mr. Hoover later in the Senate to answer it.

Opening the contest for his resolution, Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, severely denounced the activities of those interested in the campaign to lease the Muscle Shoals project to private interests.

He assailed Chester Gray, legislative representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, for sending out "propoganda" favoring the old bid of the American Cyanamid Co. and he described J. W. Worthington as the "chief lobbyist" for that company.

No New Bill Expected.

With the lobby committee about to make a report on the activities of Claudius Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, in behalf of the Cyanamid bid for Muscle Shoals, the threatened outbreak over him failed to materialize. Senator Norris will continue his speech today.

No counter proposition to the Norris Government operation resolution has come forward and there are indications that the administration forces will wage only a contest against the principle of Government operation without countering with another bill.

Friends of President Hoover in the Senate believe that a counter measure proposing a private lease to the American Cyanamid Co. would be out of order, in view of the disclosures by the lobby committee of Huston's activities for this company just before he became Republican national chairman.

Senator Norris predicted before the Senate yesterday that the proposals for the Cyanamid lease would not be pressed in view of the disclosures by the lobby committee. Huston collected $38,100 from the Union Carbide Co., which was interested in the Cyanamid lease, when he was president of the Tennessee River Improvement Association last year.

Hoover Reply Asked.

The memorandum received yesterday by the lobby committee and attributed to Worthington called attention to the appointment of Huston as Republican chairman and added:

"With the President pledged to oppose the policy of the Government operation and the chairman of the Republican national committee coming from the presidenty of the organization that has opposed this policy at Muscle Shoals for many years, will any reasonable man expect anything but a veto of any Government operation bill should Congress pass such legislation?"

Senator McKellar read the memorandum to the Senate later with the assertion that he did not believe Worthington spoke for the President.

"I think the President should make some kind of a statement about it," he added.

W. G. Waldo, consulting engineer of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, told the lobby committee at yesterday's session that he had used the Worthington memorandum in speeches delivered at New Bern, N. C., the home of Senator Simmons, and at Vienna, Ga., the home of Senator George.

Norris Attacks Gray.

W. B. Bell, president of the American Cyanamid Co., told the committee his company had spent $168,706 in its effort to obtain a lease of the Muscle Shoals property during the last six years.

The committee yesterday summoned J. E. Pierce, editor of the Huntsville, Ala., Times, as the concluding witness in the Muscle Shoals inquiry. He will be asked about correspondence with the Tennessee River Improvement Association.

Bitterly denouncing Gray for sending out literature under his own name which he contended was paid for by the American Cyanamid Co., Senator Norris told the Senate that he once started to have Gray "indicted for perjury."

He accused the Farm Bureau representative of changing his testimony before the Senate agricultural committee two years ago when he was asked who paid his expenses. Norris said he learned that Gray was not sworn as a witness before the committee "or he would be behind the bars today looking outward."

"The friend of the farmer!" he shouted derisively. "The only things he did for the farmers on the tariff bill were to ask for a tariff on bananas and for a duty on some kind of oil and grease."

Capital Is Available.

Before the House military affairs committee Newton W. Gilbert, New York attorney, asserted that sufficient capital for the development of Muscle Shoals would be immediately forthcoming if the proposed lease by the Farmers Federated Fertilizer Corporation was granted. J. H. Reid, Washington engineer and chemist, also supported this proposed lease.

Senator Norris held the Senate floor for three hours yesterday. He read into the record an analysis of the American cyanamid proposal, made by O. C. Merrill, former executive secretary of the Federal Power Commission, in 1927.

Mr. Merrill's analysis said it would seem time then, in 1927, for the Government to operate the project because it was "apparent that the principal purpose (of the power companies) is not to produce fertilizer," but to secure "for their own purposes" control of the largest block of water power in the United States.

Eloquent Norris Appeal.

The analysis counseled the Government to put the plant into operation for fertilizer experimentation, so that later, if it were found desirable, "it would be in a position to negotiate a business proposal, instead of sitting in on a poker game as at present."

The "big joker" in the proposal now pending in the House, Senator Norris said, is that the power companies "wouldn't make fertilizer; don't intend to."

"You can call me bolshevik, you Conservative senators," Senator Norris declared; "you can calle me wild-eyed Socialist, you Stand Patters, and yet you are more bolshevi, more socialistic."

Senator Norris asserted that to lease Muscle Shoals under the measure in the House would be to give the power companies "a subsidy," and that he could not see how "any red-blooded American can stand for the cyanamid company's bid, even though they do have behind them some of the leaders of one of our political parties."

HOOVER PROMOTES TWO YOUNG ENVOYS

Work of Pair in Uprising in Dominican Republic Wins Recognition.

ADVANCE TWO GRADES

(Associated Press.)

Recognition has been promptly bestowed by President Hoover upon two young foreign service officers for their courageous and energetic actions during the recent uprising in the Dominican Republic, and their success in assisting to bring about peace between the contending factions there without bloodsheed.

John M. Cabot, of Cambridge, Mass., one of the men, who is attached to the legation at Santo Domingo as a secretary, has been nominated by the President for promotion from a foreign service officer, unclassified, to be a secretary in the diplomatic service.

The other, William A. Bickers, of Culpeper, Va., consul at Puero Plata, was promoted by the President's nomination from a foreign service officer, unclassified, to be a foreign service officer of class 8.

By these promotions the two young men advance two grades in the foreign service, and their salaries are increased from $2,750 to $3,500.

The nomination were sent to the Senate by President Hoover on the basis of recommendations submitted by him by Joseph P. Cotton, acting Secretary of State, who related that they had ben in great danger during the recent revolution, as they moved about among the contending factions in an effort to conciliate them.

Alabama Guard Holds Mob Back

Disorderly Crowd Threatened Man Held for Attack on Girl, 17.

Troy, Ala., April 2 (A.P.).—Checked by a company of the National Guard, a disorderly crowd that for several hours threatened to storm the Pike County Jail dispersed early today and Sheriff R. A. Galloway and deputy sheriffs took Robert Giles, Negro, charged with attacking a 17-year-old white girl, to Kilby Prison, at Montgomery.

The crowd began congregating near the jail and courthouse late yesterday after the Negro's arrest. Until well past midnight the crowd kept vigil outside an area which Sheriff Galloway and the guard officers had roped off, but made no concerted effort to move on the jail. National guardsmen patrolled the inside of the area and kept the crowd back.

The crowd began to disperse soon after midnight. The city was quiet this morning.

JOHNSON PREDICTS RELIEF OF JOBLESS

Sees Favorable Action in Senate Today on Bills Offered by Wagner.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Johnson (Republican), California, last night expressed the opinion that legislative proposals to remedy unemployment, offered by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, would receive favorable action today by the Senate Commerce Committee, of which Johnson is chairman.

Senator Wagner said at the same time that if the bills are passed on by the committee, he would ask for final action by the Senate in the near future.

The Wagner measures would set up a stabilization board to plan public works which would be accelerated to meet depression periods. With an appropriation of $150,000,000, the stabilization board would have a director responsible for the long-time planning.

In addition, the Wagner plan would create a Federal employment agency, and expand present machinery in the Labor Department for collecting unemployment statistics. The Federal employment agency would cooperate with State agencies.

The legislation was approved yesterday by a subcommittee of the commerce committee.

Names Withdrawn In Damage Action

Six Defendants and Six Plaintiffs Dropped in Society Circus.

Miami, Fla., April 2 (A.P.).—William J. Dunn, attorney for the plaintiffs, announced today that names of six plaintiffs and six defendants have been withdrawn in the $10,000 damage suit filed against members of the Metropolitan Society set recently by persons whose claims for services in connection with a society circus were unpaid.

The defendants whose names were withdrawn were Mr. and Mrs. Milo Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wiltsie, William Peters Morgan, and Omar Abernathy. Payment of $3,626.75 in claims through George D. Morgan, a defendant, resulted in the withdrawal of names of the six plaintiffs, local business men and women.

The claim of Irene Bordoni, stage star, for $1,000 for entertainment, and that of Charles Faissole, proprietor of Deauville Restaurant, for $356, have not been withdrawn.

Increases in Chinese Disorder Laid to Reds

Amoy, China, April 2 (A.P.).—Chinese and foreign reports received from southwest Fukien and southern Kiangsi provinces today stated that reds partly directing Communist activities throughout those areas were throwing southeast China into a condition of disorder not equaled since 1927.

In that year the climax was reached in December in the Canton riots, which resulted in the death of thousands, including many Russians and the burning of the major portion of the city.

DECREASE FORECAST IN TAX COLLECTIONS

$50,000,000 CUT IS SEEN

Although the Treasury Department's final report for March yesterday showed an increase in income tax collections for nine months of the fiscal year, it was estimated that this total tax for the year would fall $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 short of estimates last December.

Income tax collections for the first nine months of the fiscal year, which ends with June, were $1,812,137,844, an increase of $125,574,244 over the same period of the previous fiscal year. Collections for the last quarter, however, usually drop about $50,000,000, indicating a considerable decrease from the estimated $2,480,000,000. The first three months of this calendar year brought in only $627,524,917.

The department said also that income tax collections for March had totaled $559,503,703, a decrease of $42,000,000 from the same month last year. It had been estimated this decrease would be $50,000,000. This smaller decrease was accepted as indicating that losses in the stock market decline last fall had not been as large as anticipated.

Total tax receipts for the nine months of the fiscal year were reported as $3,042,150,971, indicating a probable total for the year of $4,000,000,000 with expenditures estimated at $4,023,681,000. Miscellaneous receipts, however, might make up the difference. Out of an indicated surplus at present of $109,941,826 the Treasury must take $100,000,000 recently allotted to the Federal Farm Board.

A decrease in the gross debt of the Nation to $16,389,624,566 on March 31 as compared with $16,459,508,732 on February 28 also was reported.

Burglar Who Killed Two Shot Dead by Husband

Sebring, Fla., April 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. William Carver and her 2-year-old son were killed this afternoon by a Negro, who was caught in the act of ransacking the residence. Mr. Carver returned to his home about 3:30 p. m. to find the Negro in the house and the bodies of his wife and child on the floor. He shot and killed the Negro.

The sheriff's office is making an investigation. The sheriff said the Negro used a hatchet to kill the woman and dashed the child against the foot of a bed. Mr. Carver formerly lived in Philadelphia. He is in the real estate business.

I., April 2 (A.P.).—On orders of United States District Judge Ira Lloyd Letts, the United States marshal and collector of customs here today destroyed the 378 sacks of imported liquors seized by the Coast Guard aboard the ill-fated rum-running motorboat Black Duck, upon which three smugglers were killed and a fourth wounded by Coast Guard fire on the morning of December 29.

BERMUDA AIRMEN ARE SAEF AT GOAL

Yancey and Crew Arrive at Hamilton After Night Spent at Sea.

NEW FLIGHT PROJECTED

Hamilton, Bermuda, April 2 (A.P.). Capt. Lewis Yancey, transatlantic flier, and his two companions, William H. Alexander and Zeh Bouck, today arrived safely in Hamilton, completing the first flight from New York to Bermuda after spending the night at sea.

The fliers expected to remain here until weather conditions were favorable and then fly back to the United States.

The American airmen, who left New York yesterday morning, landed at sea about 60 miles north of Bermuda last night rather than attempt to make a landing in a strange harbor in the darkness and possibly overfly the tiny mark which the Bermudas represent in the broad Atlantic. At that time they had covered about 700 miles of their journey.

Sighted by Steamer.

About midnight they were sighted by the Canadian National steamer Lady Somers, which hove to and offered to take them off. The plane, which was fitted with pontoons, was riding the swells comfortably, however, and the crew refused to leave.

They requested that their location be announced, as they were unable to send wireless messages, once having settled on the surface of the ocean.

At 6 o'clock this morning with a good sea running, the plane took off again and came in sight of the islands when it was necessary to make a landing due to lack of gasoline. The plane was then about 2 miles off the coast from St. Georges.

Boats Put Out to Them.

Several boats put out from St. Georges, to give any aid that might be required to the airmen. E. T. T. Tucker and W. E. Myers, of St. George's, carried a gasoline supply to the plane, which replenished her fuel and then took off again shortly before 9 o'clock.

The airmen, who had been eagerly awaited by large crowds of spectators, including officials, circled the Bermudas triumphantly and then settled down in the harbor finishing their hazardous flight.

Miami Beach, Fla., April 2 (A.P.).—Capt. Lewis A. Yancey, who arrived in Bermuda today after an interrupted flight from New York, will attempt a transocean flight during the summer, according to announcement made here today by C. V. Civello, brother-in-law of the flier.

The proposed flight, Civello said, will be sponsored by a European concern, and will begin in the United States with a European point as destination. Neither the date nor point of take-off has been announced. A special plane is being built for the attempt, Civello said.

Erlanger Estate Estimate Scored

Nearer $100,000,000Than $2,000,000, Alleged Widow Asserts.

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Charlotte Fiscal, who claims a widow's share in the estate of A. L. Erlanger, today filed in Surrogate's Court an affidavit in which she characterized as "absurd" a recent estimate by an attorney for the State that it would amount to only about $2,000,000.

The estate of the "Napoleon of Broadway" should be nearer $100,000,000 than $2,000,000, the former actress stated. Shortly before his death, the affidavit states, Mr. Erlanger told her he had been offered $100,000,000 for his interest in his theatrical enterprises, and it adds that he turned down an offer of $9,000,000 for the New Amsterdam Theater Corporation, which he owned outright.

The affidavit also cites several large bank accounts which Miss Fiscal says Mr. Erlanger had shortly before his death. According to the affidavit, Mr. Erlanger owned 9,998 of the 20,000 shares of the Erlanger amusement enterprises.

Early Realized, He Says, That Those Who Assist a Band to Success Are Masses Seeking Rest in Quiet Music.

CHAPTER XII.

RADIO BRINGS US OUT.

I realized that those who make a band successful by their appreciation are not musicians or those who frequent debutante parties, country club or yacht celebrations, but rather the great masses of people who come home at night from a hard day's toil and who seek comfort and rest in music of a sweet, smooth and quiet nature, either from records and radio or theaters.

When we first began playing I had no idea of the tremendous scope of power of radio, because the truthful fact is that up to the time I first went on the air I had only listened in on one broadcast, and that was a prize fight. My broadcast experience in England had been limited to that of a saxophonist playing in a band. I did not direct or sing during our nightly broadcasts from the Savoy Hotel, but was one of a band composed of Englishmen and had no opportunity, since I never saw the fan mail that our English band received, to judge the power of radio or the type of numbers that a radio audience liked.

Simple Melodies Hold Attention.

But my observation of the reactions of theater audiences and dance audiences, combined with my own feelings, had shown me that simple melodies played in a simple way could hold the attention more firmly and for a longer period than any other form of music, even better than grand opera, symphonies, choral music and all types of novel band tunes.

I am more firm than ever in my belief today, since I have found so much opportunity to judge the correctness of my deductions from my fan mail, applause at both the club and theater and the sales of sheet music and records.

Therefore, I determined that should I ever have a band of my own our music would be what is commonly called commercial, that is, music that would readily sell itself, that would easily reach the heart, that any one and every one would like and understand.

I considered in detail the presentation of songs as they were commonly presented by dance bands, since the dance band was to be my medium of expression.

Usual Orchestration Told.

The average orchestration begins with an introduction, more or less pompous and symphonic, which is the effect of the symphonized syncopation of Paul Whiteman; then a verse, which, of course, leads to the chorus; the chorus repeats itself and is followed by what is termed a modulation, which is a bridge or channel whereby the orchestra proceeds to change its key so that the chorus may be played, for the sake of contrast, in another key, and then by another modulation, usually a long-winded affair, building up to the original chorus and thence to a coda, which is a formal, symphonic way of saying "good-by."

I reflected on the effect of each part of an orchestration upon myself, and I noticed that my attention was inclined to wander during the modulations and on the verse, unless the verses were exceptionally good. I did not, however, forget that my viewpoint was that of a musician and a dance orchestra player, and that what might fascinate me might bore a layman. But I felt very safe in surmising that if a modulation failed to hold my attention when I, more than any one else, appreciated the intricacies involved in it an the beauty of it as a musical feat, then certainly it was practically worthless to those who did not understand its significance.

This, however, was not the only reason that I adopted our present routine of playing only choruses.

More Brass Was Needed.

When we began at the Heigh-Ho Club we had orchestrations to play from, but, as I have said before, we needed brass—that is, two trumpets and a trombone and two more saxophones—to really do justice to these orchestrations. We were therefore obliged to play only choruses. Realizing that in presenting the chorus we were giving the best part of the piece, what might be termed the sweetmeat of the meal then, I felt that, as I have also previously said, I must avoid monotonous repetition by changing the sweetmeats every three minutes or so. So I adopted this style.

Now, I have said that there are two different styles of music. One is the "hot" style which at its best is rhythmic and quite loud, with little melody in evidence. The other method of presentation is to play straight, or just "as is," with everything full, round, rich and clean.

It was only a short time before my boys saw my viewpoint. My pianist already had a wonderful style, but I finally gave him to understand that I wanted every piano chorus that he took alone to sound like a pianola, or as though four hands were at the keyboard. I knew that this effect could be procured and that he could procure it better than any one else. I myself held every note to the fullest value and played almost continuously, and I finally succeeded in securing from the melody instruments a style that I pictured as a weaving in and out of melodies and obligatos.

First Broadcast Described.

The fact that I enjoyed our music and felt a great thrill of satisfaction at the end of our first week made me believe that we had something in our happy combination that would delight the heart of any one who cared for music.

Several weeks after our entrance into the Heigh-ho Club we made our first broadcast.

I suppose it was perhaps a most fortunate thing for me that the Heigh-ho Club could not afford an announcer and that station WABC was short of them. Mr. Sampson, one of the executives and a most courteous gentlemen, dined with me a little while before we went on the air and in a very quiet and efficient way gave me some good advice. He suggested that I make my announcements very simple, without wisecracks or facetiousness.

I did not know that it was a habit of broadcasting orchestra leaders to acknowledge requests. Mr. Sampson left that policy to my discretion. Possibly my refusal to mention names, read letters and telegrams, acknowledge phone calls and requests has antagonized many people, but it has pleased infinitely more people, and I hope has made our programs much more musical; because it is common sense that to interrupt a musical program by reading a telegram or letter, stating that Mrs. Minnie Zilch has just phoned up to say her little baby of 5 years old enjoyed our rendition of "Georgie Porgie" and asks us to play it again, detracts from the musical value of the program.

Personal Mention Is Avoided.

Rather than be inconsistent, I have adhered almost invariably to programs without acknowledgements.

Twice when I knew my mother was very ill at our home up in Maine I tried to cheer her and make her happy by telling her that I was to play her favorite composition, a beautiful Czechoslovakian waltz, called "Poem." Other than that, and personal mention I have been forced to make by the directors of some of our programs, I have avoided these things, which are interesting to only a very few people and quite boring to many.

While at Yale I had been a great admirer of Prof. William Lyon Phelps. He has one of the most remarkable styles of speech delivery I have ever listened to—smooth, easy, cultured, extremely entertaining and interesting, rich in anecdotes and humorous or even tragic allusions. He is considered one of the world's greatest after-dinner speakers and is remarkable for his ability to talk on any subject under the sun. His courses in contemporary drama and Tennyson and Browning are the most popular courses in the university, and he is beloved by all.

My father, in his own small way, is somewhat like Phelps; he speaks French and English fluently with no betrayal of accent in either. During the war he delivered some four-minute speeches in both languages to the inhabitants of our little mill town in Maine. I believe I have inherited from him this gift.

"Heigh-ho, Everybody," Is Begun.

Having observed Phelps very closely, I felt that in my radio announcements little anecdotes and entertaining facts about each tune would be of human interest. This idea was the keynote of Prof. Phelps' talks, and I felt it would be a good experiment.

The idea occurred to me that since we were at the Heigh-ho Club, and the name was originally an old English greeting, a pleasant radio greeting would be "Heigh-ho, everybody!" So I adopted this and it has become synonymous with our music and has always been an introduction. In fact one music publisher, upon seeing the effect it had on our vaudeville audiences, engaged a famous song writer to compose a song called, "Heigh-ho, Everybody, Heigh-ho."

Considering that I had never heard Lopez, Bernie or any of the great orchestra leaders who announce their own programs, the fact that I avoided the pitfalls and pleased even the severest radio critics in my announcements gives me great happiness.

We played our numbers in groups beginning our program with a "signature." Ben Bernie was one of the first to adopt this idea of a certain theme that should identify the orchestra. A person tuning in on a program of this sort would recognize the orchestra by this signature, even though there was no announcement, and it was a musical way of saying "Hello."

STRANGLER HUNTED IN BRIDE'S KILLING

Test Tube and Microscope Used in Questioning Chicago Janitor.

ROBBERY HELD MOTIVE

Chicago, April 2 (A.P.).—Test tube and microscope were the tools of detectives in their search today for the slayer of Mrs. Mildred Helsing, bride of eighteen months, found strangled in her home last night with a satin ribbon encircling her throat.

Police theorized that robbery was the motive, for the woman's purse and $15 were missing, and her engagement and wedding rings had been stripped from her fingers.

George Riley, Negro janitor of the apartment, was held for investigation, although he explained satisfactorily all the points which police said made them suspect him of the crime. In his pockets police found $14.67, the approximate amount in the missing purse, but his explanation that he had borrowed the sum was confirmed. He had a package of matches identical with a box found near the woman's body, but this was credited to coincidence. His presence in the building about the time the apartment was ransacked and Mrs. Helsing was slain was the remaining strand of evidence.

Microscopic examination of her clothes and of scratches on her face and neck were made today and similar examination was to be made of the janitor's fingernails.

Search for a beggar, said to be about 50 years old, was started by police as the result of information given them by Mrs. D. E. Fredericks, a tenant in the apartment. Mrs. Fredericks said the beggar came to her door yesterday afternoon. She said he ran away after she refused to give him anything.

TREND OF BUSINESS IS HELD IMPROVING

10 per cent above the corresponding quarter of 1928, though 20 per cent below 1929 in the same period.

"No danger at this time," the latter explained in declining to release figures, "is that we may become unduly optimistic, a condition as dangerous as undue pessimism."

Stocks Are Low.

It is also to be noted that one point emphasized is that, generally speaking, stocks in the hands of distributers are low, while manufacturing inventories are not excessive, with some regret that retailers persist in a veritable hand-to-mouth buying policy.

Interesting are the reports of the large chain store organizations, most of whom in the face of a decline in retailing the country over, report expansion of their volume of trade "even in the corn belt." Also interesting as showing how many factors enter into the business situation, is the report of the leading organization of women's clothing manufacturers, which finds a late Easter and daintier styles are making a successful season.

Style trends also help the cotton textile trade, which, according to the outstanding authority, is beginning to benefit from cooperation in the reduction of hours and more rational methods of manufacturing, plus the effects of advertising.

Luxury Trades Improve.

This leaves bituminous, for many years with cotton, the most depressed industry, the one worse off than any other of the basic trades. The demoralization, dating back to the ill-fated Jacksonville agreement of 1924, is even now more general than last year.

Strangely enough, the so-called luxury trades from which automobiles have been excluded in most recent classifications, are among those showing the most improvement, leaders in radio, the legitimate theater and radio agreeing that 1930 will be a good year.

INDIAN'S MURDER TRIAL COLLAPSES

defendant and Nancy Bowen. I refer especially to Henri Marchand, Anson Jimerson (Lila's father), and Ann Snow (her aunt). There seems to have been nothing in the testimony they gave this court to justify grand jury action."

Judge Thorn replied there had been no evidence "in court or anywhere" which would warrant presentation of a case against any of the mentioned persons to the grand jury.

Marchand Denied Guilt.

Although the sculptor admitted intimacies with Lila which he characterized as "professional necessity" to induce her to pose for his Indian groups, he denied throughout the trial he had any knowledge of the alleged plot by Lila to kill his wife. Mr. Marchand was arrested shortly after the murder on March 6 and held as a material witness.

Disposition of the case of Nancy was a matter of uncertainty. Her counsel, assigned by the court, desired she stand trial on the same charge as that on which Lila was tried—murder in the first degree. No date for her trial has been fixed; but it was considered unlikely she would be placed on trial before any possible second trial for Lila.

Her counsel said they would refuse to accept any offer to allow Nancy to plead guilty to a charge of murder in the second degree.

Carolina Students Hit Prohibition

Repeal Is Favored by Large Majority in Poll at University.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chapel Hill, N. C., April 2.—Less than half of the 2,700 students at the University of North Carolina voted in the three-day prohibition poll conducted by the Daily Tar Heel, student newspaper. The poll closed tonight and tabulations showed that of 944 who voted, 658 favored the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, 144 favored modification and 142 favored strict enforcement.

The students also were polled as to drinkers and nondrinkers and the results showed that of the 944 who voted, 564 said they did drink to some extent, while 380 claimed total abstinence.

The poll here showed results that were typical at other colleges in the country where polls have been conducted.

perished when a number of sheds near the lockhouse burned.

Back Fires Lighted.

Firefighters were forced to burn a clear space around the fire area in order to stop its spread, and it was when this course became necessary that Engine 29 of the District forces responded to lend a helping hand in the battle.

Fanned by a high wind, brush fires, believed to have originated from a carelessly tossed cigarette, destroyed the sawmill of George Hall and last night had burned over approximately 1,000 acres in Fairfax County, Va. Farmers of the sparsely settled valley about the Lorton Reformatory, inmates of the institution, and soldiers from Fort Humphreys had the blaze in hand last night, although the winds threatened to carry it beyond control lines at any minute.

The nearby villages of Accotink, Pohick and Lorton were not endangered, and practically none of the thick woods of pine, oak and hickory was damaged, as the flames were confined largely to dead leaves on the ground. The most serious of the three fires, which started almost simultaneously, originated on the old Mahon place, about a mile west of the reformatory.

Spreads Through Leaves.

Spreading rapidly through the drifts of dry leaves, the blaze jumped the South Run Creek into the reformatory grounds, up the hill near the Virginia Public Utilities' power line and into the 150-acre estate of Mrs. W. H. Cranford.

The dozen or so homes in the Lorton valley were not menaced, as volunteer fire fighters were able to check the blaze at almost any point by raking away the leaves.

Dense smoke filled the entire Lorton valley and motorists traveling the Silverbrook road and the highway through Accotink were forced to use their headlights in midday. Although wide areas were burning on the Fort Humphreys reservation, and in the vicinity of Gunston Manor, the main area of the blaze lay between the Silverbrook and Ridge roads on the east and west, and the tracks of the Southern and R. F. & P. Railroads on the north and south.

Farmers Fight Fire.

The Alexandria fire chief visited the Lorton blaze yesterday afternoon, and announced that he was prepared to send equipment to the scene if necessary. Engineers from Fort Humphreys were burning backfires along the Richmond-Washington highway in anticipation of the fire's spread to that point.

Residents of the area explained that timber had not yet "budded" sufficiently to be seriously damaged, although in certain sections underbrush as well as leaves on the ground were aflame.

Winds Carry Sparks.

Fire fighting forces from the Lorton Reformatory were withdrawn early yesterday afternoon, but farmers armed with rakes, sticks and pitchforks kept up the work of checking the fire's steady march by raking paths in the leaves. Occasionally the high wind would carry sparks beyond the control lines, but watchers experienced little difficulty in preventing the spread.

With backfires and control lanes almost surrounding the main blaze, it was expected that the flames would be extinguished this morning. Small grass and leaf fires have been burning intermittently in the Lorton section for the past three weeks, it was stated.

ARGENTINE LEADER AVOIDS TALK TODAY

understanding was that the Argentine president was ill.

The Associated Press correspondent at Buenos Aires said that Dr. Yrigoyen was at his desk all day yesterday and appeared in good health when he left for home. No announcement, he reported, had been made there concerning the telephone ceremony.

As there was no official announcement on Dr. Yrigoyen's action, no comments could be obtained from the White House and the State Department. The relations of the United States and Argentina have been the most friendly, it was recalled.

There was some speculation in the Capital, however, as to whether the Senate's passage of certain high duties on Argentina imports could have any bearing on the President's withdrawal from the exchange of greetings between the Latin-American countries and the United States. It was also recalled that Dr. Yrigoyen has not yet appointed an ambassador to this country.

The ceremony will be carried this morning by both the Columbia System and the National Broadcasting Co. networks and will be relayed by short waves to several foreign countries.

Rumrunners Nabbed Trying to Land Cargo

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Guided by the clinking of bottles and the sound of low voices, customs agents surprised a party of alleged rumrunners as they attempted to unload a liquor cargo on Pier 93, Hudson River, early today.

Two men were arrested and the customs officers seized about $8,000 worth of assorted liquors and two automobiles. Several men escaped. L. P. Cassidy, customs inspector, said the liquor apparently had been smuggled off the liner Conte Biancamano which was moored at an adjoining pier.

HIGH COURT MAY ACT ON APPEAL OF FALL

Decision of District Judges Would Not Be Awaited Under U. S. Plan.

LITIGATION END SOUGHT

(Associated Press.)

To hasten ending of the protracted litigation arising out of the leasing of the naval oil reserves, the Government yesterday asked the Supreme Court to decide the appeal of Albert B. Fall from his conviction on the charge of accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny without waiting for the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to pass on it.

The former Interior Secretary was convicted in 1929 of accepting $100,000 from Doheny as an inducement for awarding him a lease on the Elk Hills Naval Reserve in California and contracts for the construction of storage tanks at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

He appealed recently, asking the District of Columbia Court of Appeals to set aside the verdict on the ground that the evidence showed he lacked authority to make the contracts and lease; that he had been acquitted of conspiracy to defraud the United States; that the trial judge had improperly excused one of the jurors had improperly admitted certain evidence offered by the Government, and had wrongfully excluded certain evidence he sought to offer.

To save approximately one year, Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, counsel for the Government, petitioned the Supreme Court to pass on these questions without waiting for the District Court of Appeals to do so. They stated yesterday that the case was bound to reach the Supreme Court regardless of any decision the Court of Appeals might make and suggested there was no reason for awaiting action by the lower courts.

Should the petition of the Government be granted, the Supreme Court will be asked to advance the case so that it may be heard and decided soon after the next term of the court begins in October.

Rickard's Estate In Miami Has Loss

Report for 1929 Reveals $11,000 Expense Excess Over Income.

Miami, Fla., April 2 (A.P.).—The Miami estate of the late George L. (Tex) Rickard produced an income of $56,224.43 during the last year, while expenditures were $67,837.92, according to the annual report of the First Trust & Savings Bank, executor, on file in Probate Court here today.

A cash balance of $44,347.96 was cited as being on hand as of March 15, 1930.

The report does not show any income paid to Mrs. Maxine Rickard, widow. Officials of the banking firm, however, said this could come from executors of the New York estate, as the local concern acted only in an auxiliary capacity.

sued later, after referring to Japan's "acceptance of the proposals with certain reservations which still have to be discusesd in detail," continued with a further reference to expressions in the conference by Mr. Stimson and Prime Minister MacDonald to "deep appreciation of the spirit and substance of this reply."

In American circles later the Japanese were lauded as having behaved like gentlemen and any idea of a serious hitch was scouted.

A Japanese spokesman, however, made a statement to the press that in some quarters was linked with the protest against the American figures made by Admiral Kanji Kato, chief of the Japanese naval staff, to Emperor Hirohito, which did not become known here until tonight. He said that the instructions from Tokyo had put the Japanese delegation here in a position to continue negotiations, but that no final reply to the proposals—merely continuance of negotiations—is in prospect.

Official Statement Issued.

A Japanese official statement issued late tonight says:

"In view of the fact that the present plan has grown out of the spirit of accommodation and conciliation of the representatives of the powers concerned, the Japanese government have come to agree to make it the basis of a treaty to be concluded. In doing so, the Japanese government have also in mind the fact that the treaty to be concluded will be in force up to the end of 1936 and that, as to arrangement thereafter, all nations concerned will be free to claim all that they deem necessary and Japan will naturally be in a position to maintain the claim which she considers to be necessary from the point of view of national defense as heretofore."

Anglo-French security negotiations continued actively all day and several formulae were discussed, but in M. Briand's view these are not of a character, whatever their outcome, to secure serious reduction in French tonnage figures.

This makes attempts to solve British obligations under the covenant of the League of Nations and the Locarno treaties of no apparent direct value to the five-power parley. The reason why a security formula is, nevertheless sought is that earlier efforts caused the impression in France that Great Britain was trying to wriggle out of obligations already assumed years ago. Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Henderson are trying to reassure France without assuming any new commitments.

Italy Still Quite Firm.

The New York World News Service stated this morning that Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, is standing firm and that he told Mr. Henderson in effect yesterday that an attempt of the other powers to isolate Italy might compel Italy to seek her friends elsewhere. This fact was amply confirmed today and represents the present situation.

In view of the events and circumstances chronicled above, the unusual optimism at American headquarters tonight, indicated by Secretary Stimson's statement, as quoted, seems startling, but it is understandable if regarded as subjective rather than objective. It is felt, indeed, that even if the five-power conference fails, the effort will have been worth while and the conference a success, and that the sentiment expressed probably represents pleasure at the result of Secretary Stimson's and Ambassador Morrow's consultative past initiated ten days ago.

The American delegation is by no means united in its sentiment regarding the present situation and there are important Americans here who by no means echo Mr. Stimson's optimism as voiced in his statement tonight.

CONSULTATIVE PACT TO GO TO DELEGATES

By ALBERT W. FOX.

An outline, in general terms, of the consultative pact which America will be asked to sign, will be available to the delegates when the next plenary session of the London Naval Conference meets unless the Franco-British security negotiations collapse in the meantime. The postponement of the plenary session was ordered with the hope of announcing more definite results than could be made known tomorrow.

The revival of the consultative pact negotiations eclipsed other matters in interest here and cable reports from American delegation quarters have given an advance inkling of the new form of political pact which the Senate may be called upon to ratify. Meanwhile, Senate leaders have started a movement in favor of dispensing with further public comment until the die is cast. They feel that sufficient warning of the Senate's opposition has been given the negotiations in good faith and that further warnings would be superfluous.

The form of consultative pact now being discussed links America with the economic blockade which Article XVI of the league covenant provides for the suppression by economic force of a covenant-breaking state. The pact may be so drawn up as to apparently bestow a distinct advantage upon America by giving the Government of the United States the right as well as the duty of consulting with the European powers as to how this economic pressure is to be applied.

U. S. Interest in Blockade.

It is understood that each phrase of the pact will be carefully chosen, with a view to satisfying the United States Senate that no commitment is intended, excepting advance protection of American commerce. On the other hand, the European powers will be able to read a different meaning into the phrases and the long-standing question of linking American with European powers in anticipation of another war will have been settled.

The covenant, under Article XVI provides that the members of the league will combine against a covenant-breaking state or group of states by undertaking "immediately to subject it (or them) to the severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between their nationals, &c." The British navy is relied upon to constitute the backbone of the league blockade, by means of which the economic war is to be carried on with or without military and naval operations of a different character.

Both the British and the French have suggested at London that America will, as a matter of course, be interested in the means by which any particular blockade is to be enforced. For the protection of American commerce, if for no other reason, it is suggested that the United States Government should be desirous of ascertaining in advance how the blockade is to operate. Otherwise, it has been pointed out in London, the league powers might unwittingly and unintentionally take steps which would be objectionable to America.

Proposed Veto Power.

To guard against jeopardizing any American interest, the privilege is to be granted America to consult with the European powers before any blockade is begun or before the economic and financial pressure begins. It is realized that America already has the right to consult, independent of any political pact, so that a pact merely reiterating this right would be a nullity. Therefore, America is to be asked to pledge herself in advance to consult in order to give advance moral sanction to the economic measures which the European signatory powers undertake.

Comment among senators yesterday was reserved with respect to this new form of consultative pact, though several senators have been cognizant of the latest moves which have been taking place in London. One view expressed here was that America should ask to be allowed to appoint a representative on the League of Nations council so that the United States could have a veto power over any projected blockade. As matters now stand, it is suggested, America has no voice in deciding whether or not an economic war should be undertaken at all, but is asked to pledge herself to consult with one group of European powers as to how such an economic war should be carried out.

TARIFF CONFERENCE IS SCHEDULED TODAY

(Associated Press.)

The Hawley-Smoot tariff bill which has required nearly 15 months for framing and passage through the Senate and House was submitted to a conference between the two Congressional branches yesterday for adjustment of the hundreds of differences over rates and other features.

The conferences will start today behind closed doors, with five conferees from each house endeavoring to map out a program of procedure. Six major disputes face the conferees, all of which are expected to be brought back to the respective chambers for record votes before final agreement in conference.

House Republicans have pledged informally that the conferees will not attempt to reach a final settlement of the sugar, cement, lumber, and shingle rates, without permitting the House first to go on record on these items.

House Acts First.

The Senate Republican conferees have made a similar promise not to recede on the export debenture and presidential flexible tariff repeal until the Senate has had another opportunity to express itself on these important provisions.

Acting first, the House adopted, 241 to 153, a rule sending the tariff measure direct to conference without previous action on any of the 1,250 Senate amendments.

Nineteen Republicans bolted their party by voting against the rule. They were joined by the one Farmer-Labor member, Kvale, Minnesota, and 133 Democrats. Fourteen Democrats went over with 227 Republicans for the rule.

Speaker Longworth appointed the following five leading members of the ways and means committee as conferees: Representatives Hawley, Oregon, chairman; Treadway, Massachusetts, and Bacharach, New Jersey, Republicans; Garner, Texas, and Collier, Mississippi, Democrats.

Five Are Appointed.

Quickly acceding to the House request for a conference, the Senate, after brief discussion, appointed the five ranking members of the finance committee as its conferees. They are Senators Smoot, Utah, chairman; Watson, Indiana, and Shortridge, California, Republicans; Simmons, North Carolina, and Harrison, Mississippi, Democrats.

No attempt was made in the Senate to place a Republican independent on the conference committee. Members of the coalition of Democrats and Western Republicans, in control of the measure for almost six months, have indicated they might seek to have their group thus represented.

Senator Jones (Republican), Washington, sponsor of the tariff on soft wood lumber, now on the free list, inquired if the Senate conferees were going into a "full and free" conference.

When informed by Vice President Curtis, who appointed the conferees, that they were compelled to enter such a conference, the Washington senator said he realized that, but he also knew "this is not going to be a full and free conference."

Indications have pointed to a rejection of the lumber rate if put to a vote in the House. Senator Smoot predicted the conference would require at least three weeks to reach a final agreement.

Crisp Leads Attack.

Speaking of the rule in the House, Representative Snell (Republican), New York, asserted the "responsibility for this measure is on the Republican party and we accept it." Loud applause from the majority side greeted his statement.

Representative Crisp, of Georgia, a Democratic member of the ways and means committee, led a minority attack against the rule. He said the Republicans held the measure up a week while they maneuvered "erring brothers back safely into the fold and when they succeeded "the steamroller was ready to roll."

Representative Swing (Republican), California, wanted to know if the House would be given an opportunity to go on record for the higher Senate farm rates.

Voters in Opposition.

Snell informed the Californian that the phraseology of the rule merely was parliamentary usage and no one doubted the House's overwhelming majority for the highest farm rate possible.

Representative Johnson (Republican), South Dakota, who supported the rule, expressed the belief that the debenture plan would remain in the bill in conference, while Representative Ramseyer (Republican), Iowa, predicted the House would be forced ultimately to go on record on both the debenture and flexible provisions. The Republicans voting against sending the measure to conference were: Browne, Cooper, Frear, Hull, Kading, Lampert, Nelson, Peavey, and Schneider, of Wisconsin; Campbell, Iowa; Christgau, and Selvig, Minnesota; Christopherson, South Dakota; Craddock, Kentucky; Halsey, Missouri; Lambertson, Kansas; Simmons, Nebraska; Sinclair, North Dakota, and Speaks, Ohio.

Democrats voting for: Atwell, Derouen, Kemp, Montet, and Spearing, of Louisiana; Connery, Granfield, and McCormack, Massachusetts; Drane, Green and Owen, Florida; Lea, California, O'Connor, Rhode Island, and Smith, West Virginia.

CENSUS TAKERS LAG IN FIRST DAY'S WORK

Behind Average Necessary if Job Is to Be Endde by April 15.

HOOVER HEADS CITY LIST

Faced with the problem of enumerating the population of Washington at the rate of approximately 59 very minute, an army of 403 census workers yesterday invaded the homes of the District with large portfolios and an arm's length of questions.

Basing the calculation on the presumption that there are approximately 600,000 inhabitants in Washington, each enumerator will have to take the census of approximately one person every eight minutes to complete the job by April 15 on a twelve-hour-a-day schedule. The law provides that the census will have to be completed by this titme.

Judging by the returns that were received last night, the enumerators fell far below this necessary average on the first day of census taking. This means that the rate of enumerating will have to be increased considerably during the ensuing days of the census.

Early Figures Kept Secret.

The law will not permit census officials to release figures before the census is completed.

President Hoover and family head the list of Washingtonians havng the honor to be among the first counted in the new census. The President presented his answer schedule to J. Sterling Moran, supervisor of the census in the District, at the White House yesterday morning to the accompaniment of sound motion picture cameras.

Taking advantage of the requirement that the answers be kept strictly confidential, President Hoover divulged only the better-known facts about himself. His age, for instance, was revealed to be 54, but the age of Mrs. Hoover was not made public. The President said that he had been married at the age of 25, and that he was occupying the White House. He gave his occupation as "engineer."

State Residents to Be Counted.

The population of Washington is to be given a decided boost through the provision that all residents of States living in Washington must give the National Capital as their place of residence. This includes all clerks in the Government service and secretaries to senators and representatives.

A special count will be made of persons living in Washington who maintain a voting residence in any State and determine how many persons living in Washington vote. Senators and representatives, on the other hand, will be enumerated in their home States, although they maintain residence in Washington during sessions of Congress.

Throughout the United States, 120,000 workers are taking the census. Several small municipalities reported that they had completed their census on the first day.

Democrats Flayed For Vote on Tariff

(Associated Press.)

Explaining that Democratic senators had cast a total of 1,010 votes either for increased tariff rates or against proposed decreases, Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, charged that a large majority of them were attempting to "screen their own actions behind a curtain of propaganda smoke."

His statement, issued through the Republican national committee, said 526 Democratic votes had been cast for rate increases and 484 against decreases.

The Indianan said the record showed that "some of those who have assailed the Senate bill most lustily supported a large number of increases in rates and voted against a large number of decreases."

SHOALS COMMENT ASKED OF HOOVER

Worthington Note Declares President Is Against Federal Control.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover was called upon in the opening debate on Muscle Shoals in the Senate yesterday to answer a prediction received by the lobby committee that he would veto the pending Norris resolution for Government operation of the gigantic nitrate and power plant in Alabama.

A memorandum written by J. W. Worthington, chairman of the executive committee of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, carried the prediction of a presidential veto. Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, called upon Mr. Hoover later in the Senate to answer it.

Opening the contest for his resolution, Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, severely denounced the activities of those interested in the campaign to lease the Muscle Shoals project to private interests.

He assailed Chester Gray, legislative representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, for sending out "propoganda" favoring the old bid of the American Cyanamid Co. and he described J. W. Worthington as the "chief lobbyist" for that company.

No New Bill Expected.

With the lobby committee about to make a report on the activities of Claudius Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, in behalf of the Cyanamid bid for Muscle Shoals, the threatened outbreak over him failed to materialize. Senator Norris will continue his speech today.

No counter proposition to the Norris Government operation resolution has come forward and there are indications that the administration forces will wage only a contest against the principle of Government operation without countering with another bill.

Friends of President Hoover in the Senate believe that a counter measure proposing a private lease to the American Cyanamid Co. would be out of order, in view of the disclosures by the lobby committee of Huston's activities for this company just before he became Republican national chairman.

Senator Norris predicted before the Senate yesterday that the proposals for the Cyanamid lease would not be pressed in view of the disclosures by the lobby committee. Huston collected $36,100 from the Union Carbide Co., which was interested in the Cyanamid lease, when he was president of the Tennessee River Improvement Association last year.

Hoover Reply Asked.

The memorandum received yesterday by the lobby committee and attributed to Worthington called attention to the appointment of Huston as Republican chairman and added:

"With the President pledged to oppose the policy of the Government operation and the chairman of the Republican national committee coming from the presidenty of the organization that has opposed this policy at Muscle Shoals for many years, will any reasonable man expect anything but a veto of any Government operation bill should Congress pass such legislation?"

Senator McKellar read the memorandum to the Senate later with the assertion that he did not believe Worthington spoke for the President.

"I think the President should make some kind of a statement about it," he added.

W. G. Waldo, consulting engineer of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, told the lobby committee at yesterday's session that he had used the Worthington memorandum in speeches delivered at New Bern, N. C., the home of Senator Simmons, and at Vienna, Ga., the home of Senator George.

Norris Attacks Gray.

W. B. Bell, president of the American Cyanamid Co., told the committee his company had spent $168,706 in its effort to obtain a lease of the Muscle Shoals property during the last six years.

The committee yesterday summoned J. E. Pierce, editor of the Huntsville, Ala., Times, as the concluding witness in the Muscle Shoals inquiry. He will be asked about correspondence with the Tennessee River Improvement Association.

Bitterly denouncing Gray for sending out literature under his own name which he contended was paid for by the American Cyanamid Co., Senator Norris told the Senate that he once started to have Gray "indicted for perjury."

He accused the Farm Bureau representative of changing his testimony before the Senate agricultural committee two years ago when he was asked who paid his expenses. Norris said he learned that Gray was not sworn as a witness before the committee "or he would be behind the bars today looking outward."

"The friend of the farmer!" he shouted derisively. "The only things he did for the farmers on the tariff bill were to ask for a tariff on bananas and for a duty on some kind of oil and grease."

Capital Is Available.

Before the House military affairs committee Newton W. Gilbert, New York attorney, asserted that sufficient capital for the development of Muscle Shoals would be immediately forthcoming if the proposed lease by the Farmers Federated Fertilizer Corporation was granted. J. H. Reid, Washington engineer and chemist, also supported this proposed lease.

Senator Norris held the Senate floor for three hours yesterday. He read into the record an analysis of the American cyanamid proposal, made by O. C. Merrill, former executive secretary of the Federal Power Commission, in 1927.

Mr. Merrill's analysis said it would seem time then, in 1927, for the Government to operate the project because it was "apparent that the principal purpose (of the power companies) is not to produce fertilizer," but to secure "for their own purposes" control of the largest block of water power in the United States.

Eloquent Norris Appeal.

The analysis counseled the Government to put the plant into operation for fertilizer experimentation, so that later, if it were found desirable, "it would be in a position to negotiate a business proposal, instead of sitting in on a poker game as at present."

The "big joker" in the proposal now pending in the House, Senator Norris said, is that the power companies "wouldn't make fertilizer; don't intend to."

"You can call me bolshevik, you Conservative senators," Senator Norris declared; "you can calle me wild-eyed Socialist, you Stand Patters, and yet you are more bolshevi, more socialistic."

Senator Norris asserted that to lease Muscle Shoals under the measure in the House would be to give the power companies "a subsidy," and that he could not see how "any red-blooded American can stand for the cyanamid company's bid, even though they do have behind them some of the leaders of one of our political parties."

HOOVER PROMOTES TWO YOUNG ENVOYS

Work of Pair in Uprising in Dominican Republic Wins Recognition.

(Associated Press.)

Recognition has ben promptly bestowed by President Hoover upon two young foreign service officers for their courageous and energetic actions during the recent uprising in the Dominican Republic, and their success in assisting to bring about peace between the contending factions there without bloodsheed.

John M. Cabot, of Cambridge, Mass., one of the men, who is attached to the legation at Santo Domingo as a secretary, has been nominated by the President for promotion from a foreign service officer, unclassified, to be a secretary in the diplomatic service.

The other, William A. Bickers, of Culpeper, Va., consul at Puero Plata, was promoted by the President's nomination from a foreign service officer, unclassified, to be a foreign service officer of class 8.

By these promotions the two young men advance two grades in the foreign service, and their salaries are increased from $2,750 to $3,500.

The nomination were sent to the Senate by President Hoover on the basis of recommendations submitted by him by Joseph P. Cotton, acting Secretary of State, who related that they had ben in great danger during the recent revolution, as they moved about among the contending factions in an effort to conciliate them.

Alabama Guard Holds Mob Back

Disorderly Crowd Threatened Man Held for Attack on Girl, 17.

Troy, Ala., April 2 (A.P.).—Checked by a company of the National Guard, a disorderly crowd that for several hours threatened to storm the Pike County Jail dispersed early today and Sheriff R. A. Galloway and deputy sheriffs took Robert Giles, Negro, charged with attacking a 17-year-old white girl, to Kilby Prison, at Montgomery.

The crowd began congregating near the jail and courthouse late yesterday after the Negro's arrest. Until well past midnight the crowd kept vigil outside an area which Sheriff Galloway and the guard officers had roped off, but made no concerted effort to move on the jail. National guardsmen patrolled the inside of the area and kept the crowd back.

The crowd began to disperse soon after midnight. The city was quiet this morning.

JOHNSON PREDICTS RELIEF OF JOBLESS

Sees Favorable Tction in Senate Today on Bills Offered by Wagner.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Johnson (Republican), California, last night expressed the opinion that legislative proposals to remedy unemployment, offered by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, would receive favorable action today by the Senate Commerce Committee, of which Johnson is chairman.

Senator Wagner said at the same time that if the bills are passed on by the committee, he would ask for final action by the Senate in the near future.

The Wagner measures would set up a stabilization board to plan public works which would be accelerated to meet depression periods. With an appropriation of $150,000,000, the stabilization board would have a director responsible for the long-time planning.

In addition, the Wagner plan would create a Federal employment agency, and expand present machinery in the Labor Department for collecting unemployment statistics. The Federal employment agency would cooperate with State agencies.

The legislation was approved yesterday by a subcommittee of the commerce committee.

Names Withdrawn In Damage Action

Six Defendants and Six Plaintiffs Dropped in Society Circus.

Miami, Fla., April 2 (A.P.).—William J. Dunn, attorney for the plaintiffs, announced today that names of six plaintiffs and six defendants have been withdrawn in the $10,000 damage suit filed against members of the Metropolitan Society set recently by persons whose claims for services in connection with a society circus were unpaid.

The defendants whose names were withdrawn were Mr. and Mrs. Milo Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wiltsie, William Peters Morgan, and Omar Abernathy. Payment of $3,626.75 in claims through George D. Morgan, a defendant, resulted in the withdrawal of names of the six plaintiffs, local business men and women.

The claim of Irene Bordoni, stage star, for $1,000 for entertainment, and that of Charles Faissole, proprietor of Deauville Restaurant, for $356, have not been withdrawn.

Increases in Chinese Disorder Laid to Reds

Amoy, China, April 2 (A.P.).—Chinese and foreign reports received from southwest Fukien and southern Kiangsi provinces today stated that reds partly directing Communist activities throughout those areas were throwing southeast China into a condition of disorder not equaled since 1927.

In that year the climax was reached in December in the Canton riots, which resulted in the death of thousands, including many Russians and the burning of the major portion of the city.

DECREASE FORECAST IN TAX COLLECTIONS

Although the Treasury Department's final report for March yesterday showed an increase in income tax collections for nine months of the fiscal year, it was estimated that this total tax for the year would fall $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 short of estimates last December.

Income tax collections for the first nine months of the fiscal year, which ends with June, were $1,812,137,844, an increase of $125,574,244 over the same period of the previous fiscal year. Collections for the last quarter, however, usually drop about $50,000,000, indicating a considerable decrease from the estimated $2,480,000,000. The first three months of this calendar year brought in only $627,524,917.

The department said also that income tax collections for March had totaled $559,503,703, a decrease of $42,000,000 from the same month last year. It had been estimated this decrease would be $50,000,000. This smaller decrease was accepted as indicating that losses in the stock market decline last fall had not been as large as anticipated.

Total tax receipts for the nine months of the fiscal year were reported as $3,042,150,971, indicating a probable total for the year of $4,000,000,000 with expenditures estimated at $4,023,681,000. Miscellaneous receipts, however, might make up the difference. Out of an indicated surplus at present of $109,941,826 the Treasury must take $100,000,000 recently allotted to the Federal Farm Board.

A decrease in the gross debt of the Nation to $16,389,624,566 on March 31 as compared with $16,459,508,732 on February 28 also was reported.

Mr. Carver returned to his home about 3:30 p. m. to find the Negro in the house and the bodies of his wife and child on the floor. He shot and killed the Negro.

The sheriff's office is making an investigation. The sheriff said the Negro used a hatchet to kill the woman and dashed the child against the foot of a bed. Mr. Carver formerly lived in Philadelphia. He is in the real estate business.

BERMUDA AIRMEN ARE SAEF AT GOAL

Yancey and Crew Arrive at Hamilton After Night Spent at Sea.

NEW FLIGHT PROJECTED

Hamilton, Bermuda, April 2 (A.P.). Capt. Lewis Yancey, transatlantic flier, and his two companions, William H. Alexander and Zeh Bouck, today arrived safely in Hamilton, completing the first flight from New York to Bermuda after spending the night at sea.

The fliers expected to remain here until weather conditions were favorable and then fly back to the United States.

The American airmen, who left New York yesterday morning, landed at sea about 60 miles north of Bermuda last night rather than attempt to make a landing in a strange harbor in the darkness and possibly overfly the tiny mark which the Bermudas represent in the broad Atlantic. At that time they had covered about 700 miles of their journey.

Sighted by Steamer.

About midnight they were sighted by the Canadian National steamer Lady Somers, which hove to and offered to take them off. The plane, which was fitted with pontoons, was riding the swells comfortably, however, and the crew refused to leave.

They requested that their location be announced, as they were unable to send wireless messages, once having settled on the surface of the ocean.

At 6 o'clock this morning with a good sea running, the plane took off again and came in sight of the islands when it was necessary to make a landing due to lack of gasoline. The plane was then about 2 miles off the coast from St. Georges.

Boats Put Out to Them.

Several boats put out from St. Georges, to give any aid that might be required to the airmen. E. T. T. Tucker and W. E. Myers, of St. George's, carried a gasoline supply to the plane, which replenished her fuel and then took off again shortly before 9 o'clock.

The airmen, who had been eagerly awaited by large crowds of spectators, including officials, circled the Bermudas triumphantly and then settled down in the harbor finishing their hazardous flight.

Miami Beach, Fla., April 2 (A.P.).—Capt. Lewis A. Yancey, who arrived in Bermuda today after an interrupted flight from New York, will attempt a transocean flight during the summer, according to announcement made here today by C. V. Civello, brother-in-law of the flier.

The proposed flight, Civello said, will be sponsored by a European concern, and will begin in the United States with a European point as destination. Neither the date nor point of take-off has been announced. A special plane is being built for the attempt, Civello said.

Erlanger Estate Estimate Scored

Nearer $100,000,000Than $2,000,000, Alleged Widow Asserts.

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Charlotte Fiscal, who claims a widow's share in the estate of A. L. Erlanger, today filed in Surrogate's Court an affidavit in which she characterized as "absurd" a recent estimate by an attorney for the State that it would amount to only about $2,000,000.

The estate of the "Napoleon of Broadway" should be nearer $100,000,000 than $2,000,000, the former actress stated. Shortly before his death, the affidavit states, Mr. Erlanger told her he had been offered $100,000,000 for his interest in his theatrical enterprises, and it adds that he turned down an offer of $9,000,000 for the New Amsterdam Theater Corporation, which he owned outright.

The affidavit also cites several large bank accounts which Miss Fiscal says Mr. Erlanger had shortly before his death. According to the affidavit, Mr. Erlanger owned 9,998 of the 20,000 shares of the Erlanger amusement enterprises.

CHAPTER XII.

RADIO BRINGS US OUT.

I realized that those who make a band successful by their appreciation are not musicians or those who frequent debutante parties, country club or yacht celebrations, but rather the great masses of people who come home at night from a hard day's toil and who seek comfort and rest in music of a sweet, smooth and quiet nature, either from records and radio or theaters.

When we first began playing I had no idea of the tremendous scope of power of radio, because the truthful fact is that up to the time I first went on the air I had only listened in on one broadcast, and that was a prize fight. My broadcast experience in England had been limited to that of a saxophonist playing in a band. I did not direct or sing during our nightly broadcasts from the Savoy Hotel, but was one of a band composed of Englishmen and had no opportunity, since I never saw the fan mail that our English band received, to judge the power of radio or the type of numbers that a radio audience liked.

Simple Melodies Hold Attention.

But my observation of the reactions of theater audiences and dance audiences, combined with my own feelings, had shown me that simple melodies played in a simple way could hold the attention more firmly and for a longer period than any other form of music, even better than grand opera, symphonies, choral music and all types of novel band tunes.

I am more firm than ever in my belief today, since I have found so much opportunity to judge the correctness of my deductions from my fan mail, applause at both the club and theater and the sales of sheet music and records.

Therefore, I determined that should I ever have a band of my own our music would be what is commonly called commercial, that is, music that would readily sell itself, that would easily reach the heart, that any one and every one would like and understand.

I considered in detail the presentation of songs as they were commonly presented by dance bands, since the dance band was to be my medium of expression.

Usual Orchestration Told.

The average orchestration begins with an introduction, more or less pompous and symphonic, which is the effect of the symphonized syncopation of Paul Whiteman; then a verse, which, of course, leads to the chorus; the chorus repeats itself and is followed by what is termed a modulation, which is a bridge or channel whereby the orchestra proceeds to change its key so that the chorus may be played, for the sake of contrast, in another key, and then by another modulation, usually a long-winded affair, building up to the original chorus and thence to a coda, which is a formal, symphonic way of saying "good-by."

I reflected on the effect of each part of an orchestration upon myself, and I noticed that my attention was inclined to wander during the modulations and on the verse, unless the verses were exceptionally good. I did not, however, forget that my viewpoint was that of a musician and a dance orchestra player, and that what might fascinate me might bore a layman. But I felt very safe in surmising that if a modulation failed to hold my attention when I, more than any one else, appreciated the intricacies involved in it an the beauty of it as a musical feat, then certainly it was practically worthless to those who did not understand its significance.

This, however, was not the only reason that I adopted our present routine of playing only choruses.

More Brass Was Needed.

When we began at the Heigh-Ho Club we had orchestrations to play from, but, as I have said before, we needed brass—that is, two trumpets and a trombone and two more saxophones—to really do justice to these orchestrations. We were therefore obliged to play only choruses. Realizing that in presenting the chorus we were giving the best part of the piece, what might be termed the sweetmeat of the meal then, I felt that, as I have also previously said, I must avoid monotonous repetition by changing the sweetmeats every three minutes or so. So I adopted this style.

Now, I have said that there are two different styles of music. One is the "hot" style which at its best is rhythmic and quite loud, with little melody in evidence. The other method of presentation is to play straight, or just "as is," with everything full, round, rich and clean.

It was only a short time before my boys saw my viewpoint. My pianist already had a wonderful style, but I finally gave him to understand that I wanted every piano chorus that he took alone to sound like a pianola, or as though four hands were at the keyboard. I knew that this effect could be procured and that he could procure it better than any one else. I myself held every note to the fullest value and played almost continuously, and I finally succeeded in securing from the melody instruments a style that I pictured as a weaving in and out of melodies and obligatos.

First Broadcast Described.

The fact that I enjoyed our music and felt a great thrill of satisfaction at the end of our first week made me believe that we had something in our happy combination that would delight the heart of any one who cared for music.

Several weeks after our entrance into the Heigh-ho Club we made our first broadcast.

I suppose it was perhaps a most fortunate thing for me that the Heigh-ho Club could not afford an announcer and that station WABC was short of them. Mr. Sampson, one of the executives and a most courteous gentlemen, dined with me a little while before we went on the air and in a very quiet and efficient way gave me some good advice. He suggested that I make my announcements very simple, without wisecracks or facetiousness.

I did not know that it was a habit of broadcasting orchestra leaders to acknowledge requests. Mr. Sampson left that policy to my discretion. Possibly my refusal to mention names, read letters and telegrams, acknowledge phone calls and requests has antagonized many people, but it has pleased infinitely more people, and I hope has made our programs much more musical; because it is common sense that to interrupt a musical program by reading a telegram or letter, stating that Mrs. Minnie Zilch has just phoned up to say her little baby of 5 years old enjoyed our rendition of "Georgie Porgie" and asks us to play it again, detracts from the musical value of the program.

Personal Mention Is Avoided.

Rather than be inconsistent, I have adhered almost invariably to programs without acknowledgements.

Twice when I knew my mother was very ill at our home up in Maine I tried to cheer her and make her happy by telling her that I was to play her favorite composition, a beautiful Czechoslovakian waltz, called "Poem." Other than that, and personal mention I have been forced to make by the directors of some of our programs, I have avoided these things, which are interesting to only a very few people and quite boring to many.

While at Yale I had been a great admirer of Prof. William Lyon Phelps. He has one of the most remarkable styles of speech delivery I have ever listened to—smooth, easy, cultured, extremely entertaining and interesting, rich in anecdotes and humorous or even tragic allusions. He is considered one of the world's greatest after-dinner speakers and is remarkable for his ability to talk on any subject under the sun. His courses in contemporary drama and Tennyson and Browning are the most popular courses in the university, and he is beloved by all.

My father, in his own small way, is somewhat like Phelps; he speaks French and English fluently with no betrayal of accent in either. During the war he delivered some four-minute speeches in both languages to the inhabitants of our little mill town in Maine. I believe I have inherited from him this gift.

"Heigh-ho, Everybody," Is Begun.

Having observed Phelps very closely, I felt that in my radio announcements little anecdotes and entertaining facts about each tune would be of human interest. This idea was the keynote of Prof. Phelps' talks, and I felt it would be a good experiment.

The idea occurred to me that since we were at the Heigh-ho Club, and the name was originally an old English greeting, a pleasant radio greeting would be "Heigh-ho, everybody!" So I adopted this and it has become synonymous with our music and has always been an introduction. In fact one music publisher, upon seeing the effect it had on our vaudeville audiences, engaged a famous song writer to compose a song called, "Heigh-ho, Everybody, Heigh-ho."

Considering that I had never heard Lopez, Bernie or any of the great orchestra leaders who announce their own programs, the fact that I avoided the pitfalls and pleased even the severest radio critics in my announcements gives me great happiness.

We played our numbers in groups beginning our program with a "signature." Ben Bernie was one of the first to adopt this idea of a certain theme that should identify the orchestra. A person tuning in on a program of this sort would recognize the orchestra by this signature, even though there was no announcement, and it was a musical way of saying "Hello."

STRANGLER HUNTED IN BRIDE'S KILLING

Test Tube and Microscope Used in Questioning Chicago Janitor.

ROBBERY HELD MOTIVE

Chicago, April 2 (A.P.).—Test tube and microscope were the tools of detectives in their search today for the slayer of Mrs. Mildred Helsing, bride of eighteen months, found strangled in her home last night with a satin ribbon encircling her throat.

Police theorized that robbery was the motive, for the woman's purse and $15 were missing, and her engagement and wedding rings had been stripped from her fingers.

George Riley, Negro janitor of the apartment, was held for investigation, although he explained satisfactorily all the points which police said made them suspect him of the crime. In his pockets police found $14.67, the approximate amount in the missing purse, but his explanation that he had borrowed the sum was confirmed. He had a package of matches identical with a box found near the woman's body, but this was credited to coincidence. His presence in the building about the time the apartment was ransacked and Mrs. Helsing was slain was the remaining strand of evidence.

Microscopic examination of her clothes and of scratches on her face and neck were made today and similar examination was to be made of the janitor's fingernails.

Search for a beggar, said to be about 50 years old, was started by police as the result of information given them by Mrs. D. E. Fredericks, a tenant in the apartment. Mrs. Fredericks said the beggar came to her door yesterday afternoon. She said he ran away after she refused to give him anything.

10 per cent above the corresponding quarter of 1928, though 20 per cent below 1929 in the same period.

"No danger at this time," the latter explained in declining to release figures, "is that we may become unduly optimistic, a condition as dangerous as undue pessimism."

Stocks Are Low.

It is also to be noted that one point emphasized is that, generally speaking, stocks in the hands of distributers are low, while manufacturing inventories are not excessive, with some regret that retailers persist in a veritable hand-to-mouth buying policy.

Interesting are the reports of the large chain store organizations, most of whom in the face of a decline in retailing the country over, report expansion of their volume of trade "even in the corn belt." Also interesting as showing how many factors enter into the business situation, is the report of the leading organization of women's clothing manufacturers, which finds a late Easter and daintier styles are making a successful season.

Style trends also help the cotton textile trade, which, according to the outstanding authority, is beginning to benefit from cooperation in the reduction of hours and more rational methods of manufacturing, plus the effects of advertising.

Luxury Trades Improve.

This leaves bituminous, for many years with cotton, the most depressed industry, the one worse off than any other of the basic trades. The demoralization, dating back to the ill-fated Jacksonville agreement of 1924, is even now more general than last year.

Strangely enough, the so-called luxury trades from which automobiles have been excluded in most recent classifications, are among those showing the most improvement, leaders in radio, the legitimate theater and radio agreeing that 1930 will be a good year.

INDIAN'S MURDER TRIAL COLLAPSES

defendant and Nancy Bowen. I refer especially to Henri Marchand, Anson Jimerson (Lila's father), and Ann Snow (her aunt). There seems to have been nothing in the testimony they gave this court to justify grand jury action."

Judge Thorn replied there had been no evidence "in court or anywhere" which would warrant presentation of a case against any of the mentioned persons to the grand jury.

Marchand Denied Guilt.

Although the sculptor admitted intimacies with Lila which he characterized as "professional necessity" to induce her to pose for his Indian groups, he denied throughout the trial he had any knowledge of the alleged plot by Lila to kill his wife. Mr. Marchand was arrested shortly after the murder on March 6 and held as a material witness.

Disposition of the case of Nancy was a matter of uncertainty. Her counsel, assigned by the court, desired she stand trial on the same charge as that on which Lila was tried—murder in the first degree. No date for her trial has been fixed, but it was considered unlikely she would be placed on trial before any possible second trial for Lila.

Her counsel said they would refuse to accept any offer to allow Nancy to plead guilty to a charge of murder in the second degree.

Carolina Students Hit Prohibition

Repeal Is Favored by Large Majority in Poll at University.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chapel Hill, N. C., April 2.—Less than half of the 2,700 students at the University of North Carolina voted in the three-day prohibition poll conducted by the Daily Tar Heel, student newspaper. The poll closed tonight and tabulations showed that of 944 who voted, 658 favored the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, 144 favored modification and 142 favored strict enforcement.

The students also were polled as to drinkers and nondrinkers and the results showed that of the 944 who voted, 564 said they did drink to some extent, while 380 claimed total abstinence.

The poll here showed results that were typical at other colleges in the country where polls have been conducted.

Back Fires Lighted.

Firefighters were forced to burn a clear space around the fire area in order to stop its spread, and it was when this course became necessary that Engine 29 of the District forces responded to lend a helping hand in the battle.

Fanned by a high wind, brush fires, believed to have originated from a carelessly tossed cigarette, destroyed the sawmill of George Hall and last night had burned over approximately 1,000 acres in Fairfax County, Va. Farmers of the sparsely settled valley about the Lorton Reformatory, inmates of the institution, and soldiers from Fort Humphreys had the blaze in hand last night, although the winds threatened to carry it beyond control lines at any minute.

The nearby villages of Accotink, Pohick and Lorton were not endangered, and practically none of the thick woods of pine, oak and hickory was damaged, as the flames were confined largely to dead leaves on the ground. The most serious of the three fires, which started almost simultaneously, originated on the old Mahon place, about a mile west of the reformatory.

Spreads Through Leaves.

Spreading rapidly through the drifts of dry leaves, the blaze jumped the South Run Creek into the reformatory grounds, up the hill near the Virginia Public Utilities' power line and into the 180-acre estate of Mrs. W. H. Cranford.

The dozen or so homes in the Lorton valley were not menaced, as volunteer fire fighters were able to check the blaze at almost any point by raking away the leaves.

Dense smoke filled the entire Lorton valley and motorists traveling the Silverbrook road and the highway through Accotink were forced to use their headlights in midday. Although wide areas were burning on the Fort Humphreys reservation, and in the vicinity of Gunston Manor, the main area of the blaze lay between the Silverbrook and Ridge roads on the east and west, and the tracks of the Southern and R. F. & P. Railroads on the north and south.

Farmers Fight Fire.

The Alexandria fire chief visited the Lorton blaze yesterday afternoon, and announced that he was prepared to send equipment to the scene if necessary. Engineers from Fort Humphreys were burning backfires along the Richmond-Washington highway in anticipation of the fire's spread to that point.

Residents of the area explained that timber had not yet "budded" sufficiently to be seriously damaged, although in certain sections underbrush as well as leaves on the ground were aflame.

Winds Carry Sparks.

Fire fighting forces from the Lorton Reformatory were withdrawn early yesterday afternoon, but farmers armed with rakes, sticks and pitchforks kept up the work of checking the fire's steady march by raking paths in the leaves. Occasionally the high wind would carry sparks beyond the control lines, but watchers experienced little difficulty in preventing the spread.

With backfires and control lanes almost surrounding the main blaze, it was expected that the flames would be extinguished this morning. Small grass and leaf fires have been burning intermittently in the Lorton section for the past three weeks, it was stated.

ARGENTINE LEADER AVOIDS TALK TODAY

understanding was that the Argentine president was ill.

The Associated Press correspondent at Buenos Aires said that Dr. Yrigoyen was at his desk all day yesterday and appeared in good health when he left for home. No announcement, he reported, had been made there concerning the telephone ceremony.

As there was no official announcement on Dr. Yrigoyen's action, no comments could be obtained from the White House and the State Department. The relations of the United States and Argentina have been the most friendly, it was recalled.

There was some speculation in the Capital, however, as to whether the Senate's passage of certain high duties on Argentina imports could have any bearing on the President's withdrawal from the exchange of greetings between the Latin-American countries and the United States. It was also recalled that Dr. Yrigoyen has not yet appointed an ambassador to this country.

The ceremony will be carried this morning by both the Columbia System and the National Broadcasting Co. networks and will be relayed by short waves to several foreign countries.

Rumrunners Nabbed Trying to Land Cargo

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Guided by the clinking of bottles and the sound of low voices, customs agents surprised a party of alleged rumrunners as they attempted to unload a liquor cargo on Pier 93, Hudson River, early today.

Two men were arrested and the customs officers seized about $8,000 worth of assorted liquors and two automobiles. Several men escaped. L. P. Cassidy, customs inspector, said the liquor apparently had been smuggled off the liner Conte Biancamano which was moored at an adjoining pier.

F STREET CORNER OF 13TH

Decision of District Judges Would Not Be Awaited Under U. S. Plan.

LITIGATION END SOUGHT

(Associated Press.)

To hasten ending of the protracted litigation arising out of the leasing of the naval oil reserves, the Government yesterday asked the Supreme Court to decide the appeal of Albert B. Fall from his conviction on the charge of accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny without waiting for the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to pass on it.

The former Interior Secretary was convicted in 1929 of accepting $100,000 from Doheny as an inducement for awarding him a lease on the Elk Hills Naval Reserve in California and contracts for the construction of storage tanks at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

He appealed recently, asking the District of Columbia Court of Appeals to set aside the verdict on the ground that the evidence showed he lacked authority to make the contracts and lease; that he had been acquitted of conspiracy to defraud the United States; that the trial judge had improperly excused one of the jurors, had improperly admitted certain evidence offered by the Government, and had wrongfully excluded certain evidence he sought to offer.

To save approximately one year, Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, counsel for the Government, petitioned the Supreme Court to pass on these questions without waiting for the District Court of Appeals to do so. They stated yesterday that the case was bound to reach the Supreme Court regardless of any decision the Court of Appeals might make and suggested there was no reason for awaiting action by the lower courts.

Should the petition of the Government be granted, the Supreme Court will be asked to advance the case so that it may be heard and decided soon after the next term of the court begins in October.

Rickard's Estate In Miami Has Loss

Report for 1929 Reveals $11,000 Expense Excess Over Income.

Miami, Fla., April 2 (A.P.).—The Miami estate of the late George L. (Tex) Rickard produced an income of $56,224.43 during the last year, while expenditures were $67,837.92, according to the annual report of the First Trust & Savings Bank, executor, on file in Probate Court here today.

A cash balance of $44,347.96 was cited as being on hand as of March 15, 1930.

The report does not show any income paid to Mrs. Maxine Rickard, widow. Officials of the banking firm, however, said this could come from executors of the New York estate, as the local concern acted only in an auxiliary capacity.

5,000 TULSANS OUT TO WELCOME HAWKS

Mother and Brohter Greet Glider Pilot First Time in Seven Years.

ILLINOIS IS GOAL TODAY

Tulsa, Okla., April 2 (A.P.).—The aerial train of Capt. Frank Hawks, transcontinental flier who is piloting a glider towed by an airplane on a proposed flight from San Diego, Calif., to New York City, landed at Garland Airport here late today after encountering unfavorable weather conditions on the journey from Sweetwater, Tex.

Capt. Hawks landed the glider at 6:15 o'clock. A crowd of approximately 5,000 persons was at the airport and saw him glide to earth in the little ship from an altitude of 2,000 feet, 20 minutes after it had been cut loose from the towing biplane, piloted by J. D. Jernigan, jr., San Diego aviator. A 500-foot cable is used to tow the motorless cabin craft.

The day's lap of 375 miles from Sweetwater was completed in five hours of flying time, stops being made at Wichita Falls, Tex., and Oklahoma City. At Oklahoma City, the noon stop, the departure was delayed two and one-half hours by unfavorable air currents.

After spending the night here, Hawks planned to resume the journey early tomorrow, with East St. Louis, Ill., his goal for tomorrow night's stop. He expected to make a mid-day halt at Springfield, o., and plans to reach New York Sunday after making the first cross-country glider flight in history.

Tonight he was the guest of honor at a dinner.

With completion of today's lap, Capt. Hawks has covered 1,505 miles in 17 hours and 20 minutes of flying time. He estimated the air distance from San Diego to New York at 2,800 miles.

Jernigan was greeted here by his mother, Mrs. J. D. Jernigan, and a brother, Dudley Jernigan, both of Commerce, Tex., neither of whom he had seen in seven years. They motored here to visit him.

West Virginians Reelect Morgan

Other Officers Are Named by State Society at April Meeting.

Former Gov. E. F. Morgan, solicitor of the Department of Commerce, was unanimously reelected president of the West Virginia Society last night at its April meeting in the Washington Club.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Carl Bachman, vice president; Mrs. Frank L. Bowman, second vice president; Mrs. H. W. Campbell, third vice president; Mrs. Clara Holbrook, fourth vice president; Representative Hugh Ike Shott, fifth vice president; John W. Smith, sixth vice president; Mrs. Guy D. Goff, treasurer; Mrs. William E. Hoffheins, historian, and John L. Bateman, secretary. Former Gov. Morgan expressed his appreciation for the cooperation extended by both officers and members of the society last year. Representative Hugh Ike Shott and the Rev. Albert Evans also spoke.

A group of instrumental numbers was played by a trio made up of Mrs. Beth Heath Armstead, pianist; Mrs. Dorothy Callendar Jorden, cellist, and Mrs. Rose Maxwell Dickey, violinist. Mrs. Esther Waldron, Miss Kuka G. Adams and Miss Lenore Marie De Grange, under the latter's direction, presented a Biblical scene. Henry Edgar Warner, a Baltimore radio artist, sang and recited.

Third Man Freed In Murder Case

Murder of Virginia Police Chief Still Mystery After Trial.

Hanover Courthouse, Va., April 2 (A.P.).—After nine months of investigation, the death of Harry V. Smeeman, Ashland, Va., police chief, last June 30, is still an unsolved mystery, with the acquittal late this afternoon of John Randolph Taylor, of Taylorsville, Va., the third man arrested in the case, on a charge of murder.

A county jury freed Taylor of the charge after 58 minutes of deliberation. In the closing moments of the trial the Commonwealth surprised the court, asking for a conviction on a misdemeanor, accessory after the fact.

Yesterday the prosecution contended Taylor shot the policeman and carried the body to Ashland, while the defense attempted to establish an alibi for the defendant.

Attorneys in their argument and rebuttal today reviewed the whole case involving police of the City of Richmond, the Town of Ashland and Hanover County. Theories of murder and suicide were aired following defense testimony that Smeeman had threatened suicide "because he did not have a policeman's wife," and prosecution testimony that the officer was murdered following a liquor transaction involving unidentified persons. His body was found behind an Ashland drug store, with his gun fully loaded

Meeting Planned To Help Jobless

Transportation for Men Who Want to Accept Offer of Farmers Sought.

Faced by the problem of getting approximately 100 unemployed men to jobs offered by farmers at Lacey Springs, in the Shenandoah Valley, 120 miles south of Washington, the Washington Open Forum will stae a mass meeting Sunday at 908 I street northwest. Speakers who will explain the share croppers' proposition of the farmers include Representative Fred A. Hartley, jr., of New Jersey; former Policeman Robert J. Allen; Patrick Crowe, former train robber; Paul Dennis, one-time candidate for the governorship of Georgia; Dan O'Brien, "hobo" candidate for Mayor of New York City, and Dr. James Eads Howe, the "millionaire hobo."

According to reports from the Unemployment Conference, 509 G street northwest, farmers of the Shenandoah Valley have offered to give at least 100 men a 50-50 split on produce that they raise on cultivated land, and 100 per cent of what they raise from land that must be cleared.

The conference issued a plea for transportation funds, and money necessary for the men to subsist until crops are harvested.

Admiral Urges 'Icarus' As New Planet's Name

A suggestion that the newly-found planet be called "Icarus," in honor of that mythological hero's efforts at flying, was contained in a cablegram received yesterday by Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, from Rear Admiral William Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics.

Admiral Moffett, who is in London, sent the cablegram to Senator Bingham as president of the National Aeronautical Association.

Senator Bingham said he heartily indorsed the suggestion, and believed that other members of the association would welcome such a tribute to Icarus. As portrayed in classic lore, Icarus, a prisoner, escaped with the aid of a pair of feather wings fastened on by wax, but plunged into the sea when he flew so high that the sun melted the wax. The sea ever after was called Icarian.

PLANE MANEUVERS STARTED ON COAST

"Eyes" and "Ears" of Army Go Into Action, Infantry Informing by Radio.

CRAFT PURSUE "ENEMY"

Mather Field, Sacramento, Calif., April 2 (A.P.).—The "ears" and the "eyes" of the Army went into action today at the air corps war maneuvers over northern California.

The corps is proud of being able to do the seeing for the infantry, which bears the title of the "backbone of the Army" and is equally proud of the efficiency of its radio "ears."

Four big planes of the ninety-first observation squadron took the air today and quickly disappeared from view in the low hanging haze which obscured the surrounding country, but in back of the barracks the self-contained radio unit, mounted on a truck, kept in constant communication with the planes on their movements.

Meanwhile the Eleventh Bombardment Squadron and the Ninety-fifth Pursuit Squadron were both in the air communicating with one another by radio messages between their leading planes, although frequently out of each other's sight.

For the purposes of the maneuvers, squadrons of the third attack group, also in the air, were considered "enemy" planes. Whenever the bombers sighted other planes, they informed the pursuit ships, which in wartimes rally to the defense of the heavier and less flexible bombers.

Before the maneuvers are over, April 24, experiments with interplane communications will include also the attack planes which in wartimes skim along close to the ground to "strafe" grounds troops and drive out anti-aircraft gun crews.

Plan For Ferry Service Will Be Heard by I. C. C.

Hearings will begin next Monday before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the proposal of the Chesapeake Beach Railway Co. to operate a ferry service between Chesapeake Beach, Md., and a point 10 miles from Cambridge, Md., on the Eastern Shore. The railway maintains such a ferry will reduce mileage and time required between Washington and Eastern Shore points.

The proposed ferry will cross the bay farther south than either of the ferries now in operation and it is claimed will cut 36 miles off the distance from Washington to Cambridge and 24 miles each off the routes between this city and Salisbury or Ocean City.

MILES EXHUMATION NOT EXPECTED SOON

over to the United States attorney's office by the New York newspapers who, in turn, are said to have received their tips as a result of gossip among the wealthy habitues of exclusive Eastern resorts.

Widow Was Cited in Suit.

Dr. Edward J. Grass, who at the time of Mr. Miles' death was resident physician at the hospital, has been questioned, it was learned, but just what he related has not been divulged. It also was reported that Mrs. M. G. Nash, who was Mr. Miles' nurse at the time of his death, also will be questioned, but that report could not be verified.

As yet no effort has been made to question Mr. Miles' wife, who is now the wife of H. H. Rogers, wealthy Standard Oil man. Mrs. Rogers, it was said, was the only one in the room with her husband at the time of his death.

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—The present Mrs. H. H. Rogers, widow of Basil Miles, diplomat and economist whose death in 1928 is reported to be under investigation in Washington, was one of three persons against whom a suit for $750,000 damages was filed in State supreme court here last year.

Caused His Discharge.

The action was brought by Edward E. Kern, a former secretary of Col. H. H. Rogers. Kern charged that Mrs. Margit Borbala Braun Rogers and Andrew and Marie Zichy maliciously caused his discharge. He alleged that one of their reasons was an investigation he had made at Rogers' request into Mrs. Rogers' antecedents and life before her marriage to the oil man last year.

One of the questions contained in Kern's petition, which he said he would ask in open court, was whether the present Mrs. Rogers had told the colonel that she was an illegitimate daughter of the late Franz Josef, Emperor of Austria-Hungary. Attorney for the defense charged this question was put merely to give publicity to Kern's suit and made an unsuccessful effort to have the papers sealed.

Reports that a settlement out of court for a large sum had been effected were published in February of this year, but attorneys for the parties to the action declined to comment on them.

Insurance Men Honor Snyder.

Snyder at a luncheon at the Hamilton Hotel, the occasion being the celebration of Mr. Snyder's twenty-fifth year of service with the company. He is cashier and special agent.

Woods Fires Rage In Two Counties

Damage Put at Thousands of Dollars in Orange and Louisa.

Special to The Washington Post.

Gordonsville, Va., April 2.—Forest fires raging in Orange and Louisa Counties for the past 24 hours in two widely separated sections were under control this afternoon after burning over approximately 10,000 acres of timberland and doing damage estimated at thousands of dollars.

The Louisa County fire, which did the greater damage, is said to have started on the F. N. Modena farm about a mile and a half from Gordonsville, where a colored man was burning trash. In addition to the timber burned over 15,000 feet of lumber was destroyed on the farm of John E. Reinolds and but for heroic work on the part of the volunteer fire fighters several saw mills and considerable personal property would have become prey to the flames.

The burned area in the two fires included lands owned by McCormick C. Wolfrey, F. N. Modena, Mrs. Pattie Dettor, Mrs. Frank Johnson, E. G. Rock, G. W. Trainum, L. L. McClary, John E. Reinolds, Archie Riener, E. W. Bowen, Miss Mary Scott and others.

Officers say Barley's appearance at Farmer's home remains unexplained. Papers found in his pocket indicated, officers said, that Barley held a responsible position with the American Tobacco Co. A receipt also showed that Barley had spent four days recently at a Statesboro hotel.

National Guard Fliers, Quit Shepherd Field

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 2.—R. R. Feller, local aviation enthusiast, today received a letter from Maj. W. D. Tipton, commander of the Twenty-ninth Division, Air Corps, Maryland National Guard, to the effect that the division had abandoned Shepherd Field here, where it has encamped for the last several years on its two weeks' summer maneuvering period, in favor of Langley Field, Va.

The news came as somewhat of a surprise here, as it had been regarded as certain that the division would return to its old haunts.

Highlights of the War

As Related by Veterans Themselves

A Flying "Fox"

During the second day of the Argonne drive, around about 4 p. m., I was counting allied airplanes going over toward the German lines just like a flock of blackbirds. I had counted 60 when I got tired. In about fifteen minutes a German plane came drifting out of the sky just like a feather and shot down three of the allied observation balloons and flew away, but I heard since that it was shot down. The funny part of it was that the anti-aircraft guns kept shooting at the plane, but failed to bring it down, and it sounded like a pack of dogs barking to me. I turned to Bowen, a buddy of mine, who likes fox hunting, and said, "What do you think of it?" He said, "Just listen, that sure is music to me, for I feel like I have been on a fox hunt and treed the fox."

Our Fellow Men

At Evacuation Hospital 114, at Fleury sur Aire, we were in the zone of the advance, and supplies for our Red Cross Canteen were almost impossible to obtain. Cigarettes were so scarce that in going through the wards we could give only two to each man. The Americans came in in ambulances from the Argonne front and in a couple of days, if able, went on in hospital trains to the base hospitals. I was going through a ward of men just in from the front, giving each his two cigarettes, when something unusual in the appearance of one of them made me pause a second before I handed him his. Then I realized that he was a German. "Aw, Red Cross," spoke up the wounded American in the next bed, "give 'em to him. He's hurt just as bad as we are!" He got them. Then, on the other side of the ward, I found another German. This time I paused deliberately, just to see what the Americans next him would say, and exactly the same thing happened. It was less than 24 hours since our men had been hit, yet they had this feeling toward the enemy once he had been wounded.

Best Aid Station

During the fighting on the Champagne Front, July 14 to 18, I was approached by two American colored soldiers in French uniforms, both of whom had been wounded by hand-grenades. Their arms were around one another for mutual support and they asked me to direct them to the nearest first-aid station.

I suspected that they were not very seriously wounded and recognizing them as "down home" folks, thought I would have a little fun with them.

"It's too bad," I said, "you boys can't stop a while. The cooks are giving us chicken with rice and gravy today."

Like a couple of lively acrobats they disentangled themselves and immediately chorused, "Man, where dat kitchen?"

L. C. HINES,
Forty-second Division, Ward No. 4, U. S. Naval Hospital, Washington.

We Remember!

One of my biggest thrills during the war happened the day after the armistice, when the Eighty-second division came out of the line, after months of fighting, and passed through Neufchateau ("Enough Chateau," as one boy called it).

The Red Cross headquarters at that point was situated in a sort of V-shaped corner on the main highway to the front of that sector, with the French railroad forming the other side of the V, giving us a fine opportunity to see all the movements of troops, both on the highway and on the railroad. Besides offices, we had a big distributing warehouse there and when the word was passed that the division was coming, all the men got busy opening cases of cookies and cigarettes. Office work was suspended, the girls donned canteen aprons to hold the cookies and cigarettes and stationed themselves on each side of the road. As the troops came by we tossed each man a pack of cigarettes and a package of cookies, which they caught as they marched, without breaking step. It took hours for them to pass, but not a man missed getting his share and each one had a delightful grin and a "thank you." When it was over we were dog-tired but felt "it was a great war" just the same.

RITCHIE POST URGED ON MRS. NICHOLSON

POWER GRAB IS ALLEGED

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, of Chevy Chase, Md., after an address before the Montgomery County Democratic Law Enforcement Clubs last night in the Bethesda County Building in which she urged that Gov. Ritchie be kept from a third term, was indorsed for the post herself.

She charged that Gov. Ritchie had given to Pennsylvania the greatest source of hydroelectric power east of the Mississippi with the exception of Niagara Falls, while Maryland citizens pay exorbitant rates. She also touched upon the State roads scandal and charged that the governor had "passed the word" to have the official who unearthed the "stealings" dismissed.

Mrs. Nicholson also spoke of the appearance before the grand jury of Maj. E. Brooke Lee, county Democratic leader, and members of the Montgomery County commissioners to demand that they be indicted for malfeasance in office or that the editors of the Montgomery Independent be indicted for criminal libel. She reiterated charges which had been printed in the Independent and claimed that "the publication in the Maryland News of the testimony made by Maj. E. Brooke Lee is so unusual and without precedent, as any voter or taxpayer knows that jury proceedings should be kept secret."

COUNTY TREASURER MARKS ANNIVERSARY

E. Wade Ball Has Served Arlington for Period of 30 Years.

GOVERNOR WILL VISIT

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

County Treasurer E. Wade Ball today celebrates his thirtieth anniversary as an official of Arlington County. Serving for seven years as deputy treasurer under the late William C. Wibert, Mr. Ball was elected county treasurer in November, 1907.

Taking charge of the office January 1, 1908, Mr. Ball conducted it alone, keeping the office open one day a week, which was Monday. The other days were devoted to canvassing the county in collecting the taxes. That year the office handled in all about $75,000.

The office has grown with the county from a rural section into what is almost a city, until it now requires the services of one deputy treasurer, D. R. Bolen, and six assistants. The total amount of funds now handled a year reaches, according to Mr. Ball, close to $1,000,000. The office is open six days a week from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., excepting holidays.

The treasurer's office of Arlington County is said to be one of the largest offices of the 100 counties in the State. In addition to taking care of the taxes, all scavenger and water accounts are carried in the treasurer's office.

Mr. Ball, who is a life long resident of Arlington County, in discussing the affair of the county yesterday said: "I recall the county as nothing but a farming district when there were less than 700 qualified voters." Today, he said, there are at least 10,000 persons in the county "who, if they pay their poll taxes, are entitled to vote."

Mr. Ball holds a record, not equaled by any other officer, in that in the six political campaigns, which he has gone through, and not always without opposition, he always has carried every voting precinct in the county.

Hoping for many more years of service to Arlington County, Mr. Ball said in conclusion: "I am still a young man, and will, again in November, 1931, be a candidate for re-election to the office of treasurer of Arlington County."

Dispelling all rumors current as to whether Gov. John Garland Pollard and his daughter, Sue, would attend the annual banquet of the Arlington County Civic Federation, to be given Saturday night at Arlington Hall, college for girls, announcement was made last night by Chairman Robert E. Plymale that word has been received from the governor that he would arrive at Union Station, Alexandria, Saturday afternoon at 5:45 o'clock in company with his daughter.

Headed by State Senator Frank L. Ball, a committee from the Arlington County Civic Federation and the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce and a group of county officials will meet Gov. Pollard and his daughter and escort them to Arlington Hall.

With the Washington-Richmond highway from the Highway Bridge to Alexandria closed to through traffic, work of widening the highway from a point opposite the Southern Oxygen Plant, at South Washington street, to the county line, at Four Mile Run, was resumed by John H. Olcott yesterday.

The highway between the points mentioned will be widened to a width of 43 feet with two concrete shoulders with asphalt center. Mr. Olcott stated yesterday that he hopes to complete the work, which is being done under the supervision of the State highway department, within two months.

He stressed the point that while the road will be closed to through traffic, local traffic will be permitted to use it but care must be exercised by the operators of automobiles.

The detour signs have been placed by the State Highway Department and traffic will pass to the right, after crossing the Highway Bridge, continuing a distance of about 1 mile turn to the left on to Mount Vernon avenue and continuing through to Washington avenue, thence to the left, crossing the railroad bridge and continuing to the right into Alexandria.

Taking of the census began in Arlington County yesterday by 19 enumerators. Indications are that the total census for the county will show in excess of 25,000.

Fifteen days is given to complete the work. This being the United States census all persons are requested to answer all questions which may be asked. The information given is all confidential and in accordance with the law it is necessary that those questions which are asked must be answered. The enumerators will make their report to William E. Trusler, supervisor of the census for this district, at Manassas.

The enumerators for Arlington county are Mrs. C. W. Harris, Mrs. Effie H. Hackley, Frank Sharp, Mrs. Mary T. Webb, Mrs. Arthur M. Dawson, Charles L. Whitlock, LaRue E. Tanner, Mrs. Elizabeth K. Taylor, Davis H. Wilson, Mrs. M. C. McCann, Mrs. Minnie R. Bagby, R. L. Daniels, O. Robert Howell, Ramon C. Bearse, Mrs. Mary C. Meador, Rufus Trice, Herman Wieland, Mrs. Florence Yardley and Max B. Berstein.

With the granting of the request by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Cloth for a continuance in the case of Edward Long and Edward J. Pensock, two soldiers, for one week, the Ballston girl who spent Tuesday night in the county jail for refusing to answer questions, was released at the request of the Commonwealth. The girl was placed in the custody of her mother.

The request was based on the fact that Judge Harry R. Thomas, who had heard the beginning of the case Tuesday morning, was unable to attend court due to his health.

Herbert S. Ward, of Lyon Park, was admitted to the Virginia bar yesterday by Circuit Court Judge Howard W. Smith at Fairfax.

Attorney Ward was presented to the court by State Senator Frank L Ball.

Mrs. George L. Taber, president, and Mrs. O. L. Rauh, secretary of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Cherrydale School, attended the meeting and spoke of plans looking to much-needed improvement to the Cherrydale Health Center. The plans as outlined were indorsed by the local body. It was stated that the matter will be presented to the county board of supervisors at its next meeting.

The association went on record as indorsing the plans as outlined in the recent report of the United States Bureau of Education, as filed with the county school board, for the enlargement of a number of the county public school buildings. The report carries with it a proposal for a bond issue of $580,000.

The Ladies Guild of Grace Episcopal Church will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. H. C. Roberts, at Thrifton Village. The meeting has been called for 8 o'clock.

POTOMAC VALLEY.

Congress is asked to decide at this session whether or not it will enact the Capper-Cramton bill, providing for the acquisition by the Government of lands along the Potomac River, including Great Falls, to be developed as a part of the park system of the National Capital.

An effort is made to induce the Federal Power Commission to permit a private corporation to explore the possibilities of Great Falls region for power development. The Army engineer in charge of the Washington area has suggested that the failure to utilize the power resources of the Potomac River would involve a waste of $100,000,000.

Obviously it is assumed by the power interests that if the Government should acquire the lands in question and should proceed with park development it would be difficult, if not impossible, to obtain a franchise for private power development.

Col. U. S. Grant 3d, vice chairman and executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, combats the arguments made by Maj. Somervell, Army engineer officer of this district, in behalf of the corporation which seeks to obtain a permit to explore the power possibilities of the Potomac.

Col. Grant points out that the Park and Planning Commission is not opposed to the development of power, if Congress should decide later to approve such a project. He insists, however, that the Government should acquire the lands in question, so that it may go forward with the development of the National Capital, and be in a position to decide the power question later, in the light of the public interest.

The preservation of the Potomac Valley, primarily as a park adorning the National Capital, is a national duty. No other capital in the world possesses a natural park comparable with the gorge and Great Falls of the Potomac. It is a priceless heirloom of the public, and merely needs preservation to constitute a matchless setting for the city that is destined to be the pearl of cities. Congress would be foolish, indeed, to involve the Government with a private corporation in a controversy over power rights in the Potomac, to the detriment or destruction of the area as a national park.

The Government should not lose any further time in acquiring complete control of the entire Potomac Valley and Great Falls. It will then be in a position to determine both park and power questions. But if it fails to acquire the lands now the cost of acquisition later will be enormous, and there will be risk of losing a public heritage.

The taxpayers of Washington cherish the hope that Congress will provide a more equitable arrangement for financing the District government, but it is better and cheaper for the District to assume its share of the present cost of the park lands than to postpone the project. The Nation's Capital must go forward, in growth and beauty. The destruction of the Potomac Valley would be a crime against posterity. The Government should acquire it without delay.

A CENSUS TIP.

Taking of the decennial census suggests a plea for cooperation and a word of warning.

President Hoover has asked the American people for complete and accurate response to the questions that will be put to each family by the enumerators. It is impossible to answer all of the 25 questions accurately and without delay unless some preparation is made. It would be well for each family in Washington and elsewhere to hold a brief conference and assemble all the information that will be required. The national inventory loses its value if it is inaccurate or incomplete.

A dispatch from Chicago a few days ago serves to put the public on guard against thieves who may impersonate census enumerators. Three Chicago gunmen who posed as census takers gained admittance to a home and robbed the inhabitants of more than $50,000. No doubt census takers have been instructed to show their credentials. The cautious citizen will demand identification from the enumerator who taps at his door.

STUDY OF UNEMPLOYMENT.

The testimony of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, before the Senate commerce committee emphasizes the futility of trying to cure unemployment by legislation. "Men should earn money," he said, "not have it doled out to them without labor in return. Charity can never be the solution of unemployment."

In some respects the Government can help. It can provide unemployment statistics which will form the basis for relief measures. Free employment service to connect workers with opportunities could be provided. The States might offer vocational training to those thrown out of work by mechanical improvements, so as to restore the individual's economic usefulness. All governmental units could plan public works for development in periods of depression. Each of these measures would no doubt contribute to the ultimate solution, but no one is optimistic enough to believe that unemployment can be cured by these means.

Industry, says Mr. Green, has the major responsibility in conserving labor and protecting it from periodic fluctuations. The only rational remedy for unemployment is more jobs, and they can be furnished only by private enterprise. A weakness in the economic structure which can reduce the national income 5 per cent in three months, as Mr. Green testified the recent unemployment has done, is a problem that no producer can afford to ignore. Every American industrialist knows that his success is based on the high standard of living in this country which creates extensive domestic markets. In the interests of their own prosperity as well as in justice to their workmen these great employers of labor should move to stabilize employment. Elimination of unemployment should come as a natural sequel to the philosophy on which the modern American industrial system is founded.

The methods by which this can be done are simple and direct. Mr. Green suggests as a first step that wages be put on a yearly basis. The more responsible workmen would rather be certain of a yearly income than to receive higher wages temporarily. Annual salaries in place of weekly wages would act as a shock absorber for every industry, and in the end the cost would be less. Under present conditions every employer cuts off his surplus labor during quiet periods and that unproductive element becomes a drag on all industry. If workmen were carried through dull periods the tendency would be to eliminate business cycles and to establish stable conditions the year round. A sound industrial system must inevitably adopt some arrangement of this kind.

Improvement of machinery, elimination of waste and more efficient management have brought about greater productivity. A survey of eleven industries by the Bureau of Labor Statistics shows that from 1914 to 1927 the man-hour productivity of labor increased from 24 per cent in the manufacture of boots and shoes to 292 per cent in the production of rubber tires. More is being produced by each workman than ever before, and productivity is still on the increase. As machinery dislocates labor here and there other demands tend to absorb the surplus in prosperous times.

The problem of joining the man and the job can not be solved in Congress. The Government can make its contribution, but unemployment will not disappear until industry and commerce deal scientifically with the adjustment of human and mechanical labor.

WORK FOR INDIANS.

A Washingtonian returned the other day from Arizona and told The Post about the unbelievable poverty of the Papago Indians and the folly of thrusting Indian girls educated in Government boarding schools back into the brush shacks of the deserts, where they must live like starving wild beasts.

The emotional friends of the Indians may be expected to seize upon this report and demand rations, nurses and hospitals for these Indians. Congress may make the necessary appropriations to provide them. But when the rations are gone the desert will still be as unproductive as before, hunger will return and weakened bodies will again invite disease.

The distressing thing about the Indian problem lies in the fact that nothing is done toward its permanent solution. A man who is starving must first have something to eat, but his permanent need is a job, whereby he can earn his food. The advisability of finding work for the Indians has been pointed out, but strangely nobody ever does anything about it.

These Papagos are perfect examples of a people adrift who need to be put in the way of earning a living. They live in an isolated desert where only a miserable existence is possible. They have no contact with the outside world. They do not know that beyond the rim of their desert is the chance to earn the two dollars a day which would give them food and shelter.

Some of the Papagos have gone out and worked as section hands on railroads and as cotton pickers. They are excellent unskilled laborers. In the last decade 500,000 Mexicans have been brought into the United States to do the rough work of the West, while the American Indians have been forgotten and are starving.

We heard much a year ago of a new Indian Service policy of obtaining work for Indians. How many of the 6,000 employes of that bureau are concentrating on this most important of its obvious duties?

TELEVISION.

American radio engineers are divided as to the practicability of television. They all admit that some day the broadcasting of visual images will be brought to a par with the broadcasting of sound, but they are by no means agreed as to how soon this will be accomplished. A few pioneers, among them C. Francis Jenkins, of this city, are broadcasting images on regular schedules, but reception is limited to the comparatively few amateur enthusiasts who have built their own receivers and who are looked upon as cooperators in the experiment. American television has not been developed to the point of home installation or utilization for pleasure and recreation.

In England a television corporation this week demonstrated a home mechanism over which was received not only the image of a speaker but his voice as well. Twin transmitters operating on different wave lengths were used in the dual broadcast, one of which carried the visual images and the other the sound. The demonstration was characterized as eminently successful, and at its conclusion it was announced that the British Broadcasting Co. had prepared to manufacture similar sets for general distribution. Television, in synchronization with visual broadcasting, is to be put on a commercial basis.

Whether the British company has made greater advances than American broadcasters in the development of television or whether it is forcing the commercial exploitation of the new instrumentality at a stage where Americans still consider it only an experimental toy, can be answered only by one who has witnessed demonstrations of the two systems. The British project, however, evidences the fact that television is practicable. When television broadcasts are made available to the American audience, television will develop marvels not now imaginable.

SUBMARINE WAR

By Commander H. H. FROST, U. S. N.

World opinion is practically unanimously in favor of a treaty to "humanize" submarine warfare. Submarines should operate against merchant shipping only in accordance with the rules long sanctioned for surface craft. In that respect both statesmen and naval officers are in general agreement.

In recent years such doubt has been cast upon the practical value of international agreements that some persons have thought it necessary to "put teeth" into them. Accordingly, it has been proposed that a submarine captain, suspected of violating a rule of war, should be treated as a pirate. This would make him subject to trial and execution by any country—belligerent or neutral—into whose power he might fall.

How can this piracy clause strengthen a treaty to regulate submarine warfare? First, will it deter a nation from violating the treaty? No; the deliberate violation of a solemn treaty signed by great powers would be a greater stigma on a nation's reputation than the commission of alleged acts of piracy by individuals. Would Germany have been deterred from violating Belgian neutrality by a clause in the treaty making the generals who commanded the invading armies pirates?

Second, will it deter a submarine commander from executing the orders of his government? No; a submarine commander runs so many risks of death in its most terrible forms that an empty threat to execute him as a pirate would add little to them. Possibility of his capture is remote. Even should he be captured and convicted he could count upon threatened retaliation of his government to prevent his execution.

Third, will it prevent a commander from violating a rule of war on his own initiative? No; any submarine commander so demented as to violate deliberately the orders of his government in such a supremely important matter would certainly not be deterred from so doing by any hostile threat. Such an officer would be cashiered and his action disavowed. Punishment by an enemy would be unnecessary.

Now what are the points against the piracy clause? View the subject from the legal angle. What kind of a trial might a submarine captain expect in an enemy country? First, the judge or judges will be enemy subjects. Second, the jury will be composed of enemy citizens. Third, the prosecution will have the greatest lawyers in the country, while the counsel for the defense will be appointed unwillingly to an uncongenial duty. Fourth, many witnesses will be available to the prosecution, while few, if any, will be on hand for the defense. Fifth, public sentiment and the press will be so strongly prejudiced that the court can not avoid these powerful influences.

If any one really believes that a submarine commander could receive a fair trial under such conditions let him examine the investigation of the German atrocities in Belgium by the Bryce commission. If learned judges could render such a verdict, what could be expected of a jury of average citizens? What government would permit its commissioned officers to be tried before such a court?

So much for the five legal points. While they are important enough, there are practical points which are immensely more so. Legally, the Germans were correct in executing Miss Edith Cavell. Practically, they committed a terrible blunder. We list herewith nine of the more important practical points against the piracy clause:

Sixth, the onus of having violated the treaty is shifted largely from the government to an individual. It is against him and not the government that world condemnation is directed.

Seventh, as the enemy government has taken direct action, there is less reason for neutral governments to act. Had the British executed the man who sank the Lusitania many Americans would have considered the incident closed.

Eighth, incidents of unfairness are certain to appear during the trial and these will tend to arouse neutral sympathy for the submarine captain.

Ninth, if the captain is merely carrying out the orders of his government, his execution would make him a martyr. The neutral sympathy for him would overshadow the political reaction created by his violation of the rules of war.

Tenth, the execution of a submarine captain would almost certainly be prevented by threatened retaliation of his government. If he were executed and the retaliation carried into effect, warfare would certainly not be "humanized."

Eleventh, the fellow officers of a submarine captain who was treated as a pirate would certainly be actuated by a spirit of hatred and revenge. This spirit would spread through the armed forces and the entire nation. Soon we would have a war of "no quarter."

Twelfth, submarine captains would realize that they were fighting "with ropes round their necks." This would cause them to resist to the end and perhaps induce them to sink vessels "without a trace" to dispose of witnesses.

Thirteenth, a neutral could get possession of a submarine captain for purpose of trial only by use of its naval forces. That would mean war.

Fourteenth, nothing can be gained by calling an act piracy when it isn't. No commissioned officer carrying out the orders of the government of a great country could be a pirate. It is contrary to every definition of the word.

The Hen Is Doomed When She Eats More Feed Than Her Eggs Will Buy.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MAN'S first instinct, like that of other animals, is to fill his stomach, but he alone rebuilds as he destroys.

The locust, the army worm and other devouring insects move across a landscape destroying every green and edible thing in their path and give nothing in return.

Other creatures are useful only to feed one another and at last to enrich the soil with their bones.

They are content merely to exist, and they can do no more because their mouths are the only tools they have with which to feed themselves.

Man must fill his mouth, also, but his busy hands replace the food he consumes and provide a surplus, and this surplus is the foundation of all civilization and prosperity and culture.

The farmer's surplus is exchanged for comforts and luxuries that represent the surplus created by other men, for these other men, while laboring to fill their mouths, also give back more than they consume and thus add to the world's store of wealth.

The more men produce in excess of the little they consume, the more wealth there is to divide and the richer all men become.

This is not true, of course, if part of the men are slaves, for slaves are permitted to consume very little and the wealth they create goes to their master.

Neither is it true, except in small degree, if the producers and wage earners are given a reward so small that they can not buy the surplus produced by others of their kind.

When men work for low wages they enrich only the few; and these few do not profit as they might, for men who earn little can buy little, and lack of demand retards production and lessens dividends.

But high wages can not make prosperity unless the wage earner spends his money for some commodity that in its turn supports high wages.

If one man had a monopoly of the Nation's water and sold it at 5 cents a pint, he would hire a few distributors, but a mere fraction of his profits would be divided among wage earners and he would grow rich without enriching the whole people.

Thus any commerce that takes the earnings of many men without providing wages for as many more is harmful.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

HER FIRST TIME ON THE AIR.

The scene is one of the broadcasting rooms of a radio station. Miss Letitia Lemp, of the Women's League for Better Begonia Culture, is to make her first address through "mike."

Miss Lemp (entering room very nervously)—Is this the-er-the microphoning department?

Director—What, ma'am?

Miss Lemp—I'm Miss Lemp, Miss Letitia Lemp. . . . I'm supposed to be on the program at 5:10. . . . I guess I've got the wrong building. . . .

Director—Oh, Miss Lemp! How do you do? This is the place. You've quite a few moments yet.

Miss Lemp—I'm so nervous and fidgety. . . . This is my first time on the air. . . . I had no idea it . . .

Director—There's nothing to it, Miss Lemp. It's just like talking to yourself in the empty room.

Miss Lemp—Is this the room?

Director (with a warning gesture)—Sh-h-h-h! Yes.

Miss Lemp—But all these people? Do they go out?

Director—Just a few musicians, a few friends and some other people on the program with you—that's all. Don't mind them.

Miss Lemp—I was hoping I'd be all alone. . . . It's frightfully warm in here. . . . Is that the thing I talk into? . . . I suppose I ought not to be nervous at all.

Director—Just sit down, Miss Lemp. . . . I'll let you know when you go on.

Miss Lemp—But I don't know what to do. . . . You'll have to give me some instructions first. . . . I'll die if I get up there without any instructions. . . . Am I allowed to read from manuscript? . . . How shall I know when my time is up? . . . Who?

Director—You just talk in your natural voice, that's all . . . just as if you were home talking with a friend.

Miss Lemp—I don't have to shout at all, then?

Director—Not at all . . . just your natural voice.

Miss Lemp—Do I stand up or sit down?

Director—You can stand up and talk into that mike there or sit down and talk into the one on the desk.

Miss Lemp—I think I'd rather talk sitting down. I feel so all gone. Isn't it odd? . . . How close to the microphone do I get?

Director—Oh, about 8 or 10 inches.

Miss Lemp—But how shall I know if I'm talking too loudly?

Director—I'll be right here beside you. If I want you louder I'll raise my hands this way. If I want you softer I'll lower them. Get me?

Miss Lemp—Raise the hands if you want me louder and lower them if you want me softer. . . . Up for louder and down for softer. . . . I think I can remember that. . . . I suppose I shan't mind if once I get going.

Director—It's very simple. Don't be nervous.

Miss Lemp—I'm not so nervous now. . . . Ahem. . . . You'll signal me when I'm to begin. . . . Natural voice, about 8 inches away. . . . Up for louder and down for softer. . . .

* * * *

Director (after a few moments)—Your turn, Miss Lemp. . . . Now just talk naturally . . . after the introduction.

Miss Lemp (tripping across room toward the mike)—Thank you . . . natural voice . . . 8 inches from mike . . . no shouting . . . up if he wants me louder . . . down if he wants me softer . . . ahem . . . gr-r-rmph . . . phew!

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE QUARREL.

They took up the quarrel the children began.
They argued and wrangled as two mothers can.
They spouted and sputtered
And mumbled and muttered,
And threatened swift vengeance as angry folks will
With language fantastic,
Unseemly, sarcastic
They tongue-lashed each other and wouldn't keep still.

Their tempers grew hot and their faces grew red.
They dished up the scandal that gossips had spread,
They hinted they knew things,
In anger they threw things,
Till breathless they fell in a heap on the floor,
And just as they sided
The neighbors divided,
So the battle will last for a year or two more.

But what of the children who started the row?
They're hand in hand playing together right now.
Without any chatter
They ended the matter
And yesterday's fight is the least of their cares,
While juries and judges
Must settle the grudges

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Representative Sol Bloom Was Not a Candidate for President of New York State Society.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With reference to the published reports concerning the alleged defeat of Congressman Bloom for the office of president of the New York State Society at a meeting held last evening at the Willard Hotel, I wish to state that it now seems that at no time was Congressman Bloom a voluntary candidate for this office.

Upon being first approached to ask that his name be considered as the nominee for that office he stated that he would accept the nomination provided there was no opposition thereto. When subsequently informed that another person was a candidate for the office, Congressman Bloom, by letter dated March 14 to the secretary of the society, directed that his name be withdrawn as a candidate for the office of president of the society. I thereupon took the matter up with a certain member of Congress from New York with a view to securing his influence to have Congressman Bloom reconsider his decision. On the same day, I was informed by that congressman, by telephone, that the matter had been adjusted and that it would be agreeable to Congressman Bloom to accept the nomination. Mr. Bloom now states that the congressman who interviewed him misunderstood him and his attitude with respect to the nomination and that he had no intention of permitting his name to be used as a nominee for that office.

So far as my connection with this unfortunate incident is concerned, I greatly deplore the developments and publicly extend my apology to Congressman Bloom for any annoyance to which he has been subjected by any act of mine.

No Constitutional Amendment Is Needed to Empower Congress to Draft Industry and Commandeer Wealth for War.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In consideration of Senator Reed's resolution providing for the appointment of a commission to "study policies to be pursued in event of war so as to empower the President immediately to mobilize all the resources of the country," it is held by some that a constitutional amendment must be adopted in order to justify the mobilization of industry.

Calling attention to the Government's right to condemn property for public use, The Post, in its editorial headed "Drafting Industry," says in this connection: "Since the plan of industrial mobilization does not contemplate operation of factories by Federal officials nor confiscation of property, the necessity for an amendment is open to question."

Indeed, by a very far from loose construction of the Constitution it seems beyond question that an amendment would be superfluous. In clause 1, section 8, of article 1, in addition to the collection of taxes, duties, imposts and excises, and the payment of debts, it declares that the Congress shall have power to "provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States."

Under the now widely accepted broad interpretation of the so-called "general welfare clause," the mobilization of the country's wealth—even its confiscation if demanded by the dire exigencies of war—may be constitutionally undertaken by Congress in the exercise of its power "to provide for the common defense." The simple declaration of the power "to declare war" (clause 11 of the section mentioned) in the very nature of the case seems open to a like construction fairly implied.

FEDERALIST.

Pronouncing Words Is Harder Than Spelling Them—Why Not a Pronunciation Bee?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I had the pleasure last evening of listening over the air to your spelling-bee in Washington. Our educational institutions give a certain amount of attention to the teaching of correct spelling, while the amount of attention given to pronunciation of our language is negligible, even where it is thought of at all.

It was my pleasure on one occasion to call attention to this fact, and as a challenge to ask the senior class in the high school to submit, not to being "spelled down" but to being "pronounced down;" and this was accomplished in less than seven minutes, by the use of words of one syllable, not catch words in any sense, but ordinary words as common as "blouse." Had I taken longer words it would have taken less time.

I dare to say that in words of several syllables, words in ordinary use, I could in a short evening "pronounce down" the entire Congress of the United States, and possibly even as learned a body as the United States Supreme Court.

I am impelled to write this without further comment, simply to call attention to what seems to me one of the strange omissions in our educational curricula; the proper attention to which I do believe would make us a more accurate people, as well as incidentally better spellers. Am I wrong in this?

Bishop Perry Consecrated in 1911.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Well, the Right Rev. James DeWolf Perry, the new bishop of the Episcopal Church * * * had certain fatherly jurisdiction over the Church of the Ascension (New Haven), where yours truly pumped the organ, &c." (Quotation from regular staff writer, Washington Post, April 1.)

Wrong! Dr. Perry was consecrated Bishop of Rhode Island, January 6, 1911. The House of Bishops, recently assembled in Chicago, simply made him presiding bishop, chairman or primate, whichever you please; primus inter pares, so to speak. Incidentally, yours truly, No. 2, also was once connected with the Church of the Ascension, about eighteen years ago. He served as clergyman temporarily in charge. Interesting church and parish.

FIVE JAPANESE GIRL ENVOYS REACH U. S.

PLAN EXTENSIVE TOUR

San Francisco, April 2 (A.P.).—Five demure young women from Japan bowed and smiled their way into the United States and into the good graces of numerous persons who went aboard the liner President Pierce to greet them on their arrival here today.

The girls, four of them representing Tokyo and the other Yokohama, came to thank President Herbert Hoover and the people of the United States for America's kindness to Japan during the earthquake of 1923 as expressed through the Red Cross.

The young women are Kimiko Ashino, daughter of a naval officer; Yoshiko Matsudaira, cousin of Princess Chichibu; Yoshi Sato, daughter of Baron Sato; Sumiko Tokuda, daughter of a former paymaster of the imperial army, and Keiko Nakamura, daughter of a Yokohama official. The first four represent the City of Tokyo and Miss Nakamura represents Yokohama. These were the two cities hardest hit by the earthquake.

The five were accompanied by H. Yokoyama, of the Jiji Shimpo, Tokyo newspaper which is sponsoring the tour, and by Mrs. Toshiko Sudaira.

The itinerary of the "envoys of gratitude" includes many of the larger Eastern and Pacific Coast cities and Chicago. They are to remain here until Sunday night when they will go to Los Angeles. After a visit there they will start eastward.

When the cameramen and reporters besieged the young women on the boat they were a bit awed at first, but soon regained their composure.

Ashore the envoys first honored Mayor James Rolph, jr., with a visit. After that their day was spent in receptions and entertainments with a theater party on the program for tonight.

Dakota Democrats Want Wet Plank

Eighteenth Amendment's Repeal Is Urged at State oCnvention.

Jamestown, N. Dak., April 2 (A.P.).—Repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act was urged by the North Dakota Democratic State convention here today in the principal plank in the platform upon which the party's candidates will make the race for State and national offices next fall.

State Chairman H. H. PPerry, of Ellendale, Secretary Fred W. McLean, of Grand Forks, and P. W. Lanier, of Jamestown, congressional candidate in the Second District, said they felt the antiprohibition stand of the party gives it a real chance for victory. North Dakota is normally Republican.

The plank on the liquor question asserted North Dakota Democrats favor temperance and are against the saloon, but that "ten years under prohibition has resulted in a reign of intemperance in words, expenditure of money, crime and corruption.

appendicitis, stood the examination and obtained the navigator's license as casually as she might have taken out a permit to drive an automobile.

The previous experience of Miss Brooks as a pilot has been limited to cruising about Chesapeake Bay aboard the family yacht. Under the direction of the captain, she has occasionally been permitted to take the wheel, her mother said yesterday.

Mrs. MacArthur intimated yesterday that her daughter is no Joan Lowell and she said frankly that she had no desire to go cruising on any sea-going vessel her daughter might pilot.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE great power controversy in which, as one must understand it, the people are arrayed against the interests, and which has caused men like Senator Norris, and probably will cause Mr. Huston, to leave their party, has again appeared in troublesome state before the Senate interstate commerce committee.

It concerns the quaint pleasantries which the personnel of the Federal Power Commission seem to have, their diversions when resting from administering the Nation's power policy, whatever that is.

The commission personnel has been before the committee before. It seems that while the Secretaries of War, Interior and Agriculture, who make up the commission proper, have been engaged in their more immediate work, the heat of the power controversy has gripped the personnel. The Senate committee concluded after hearing all sides that the personnel was about evenly divided, F. E. Bonner, executive secretary, and Lieut. Col. M. C. Tyler, chief engineer, being on the side of the interests, and Charles A. Russell, solicitor, and William V. King, accountant, on the side of the people.

IT is not known which side the chief clerk, F. W. Griffith, or the file clerk, Mrs. Minnie L. Ward, are on, but it is not unreasonable to presume that in the tense atmosphere of the commission, they had most positive views.

At any rate, the tensity of the situation or something, got the better of Mrs. Ward several days ago, and she loosed on egg barrage on Mr. Griffith. Published reports at the time said Mrs. Ward showed an uncanny egg-throwing ability, having registered four hits out of six.

The published reports at the time also quoted Mr. Griffith as saying he planned no action, that this was a matter to be handled within the commission family, that it was not part of the power controversy proper, and therefore none of the public's business. It was, so to speak, a lateral matter.

In spite of his statement that nothing was to be done, Mrs. Ward apparently thought that Griffith after all would react as one who had been made the target for eggs by his file clerk would do. She had reason to believe, indeed, that the way was being prepared for her discharge.

SO she has filed charges with the commission and forwarded copies of them to the senators concerned, that last August Bonner and Griffith came to her files and removed letters in which three power companies had indorsed Bonner for his place.

The matter is important, or one should think so, because when Bonner was before the committee he testified under oath that he did not know of any power companies having indorsed him. The impression he would have left, in fact, was that none had.

These charges are now in the hands of the commission members. In the meantime, the forces that were moving against Mrs. Ward for throwing eggs have abruptly halted. The Senate committee is waiting to see what will happen.

The administration has frankly stated that the affairs of the power commission were in a mess and pointed to the President's recommendation in his annual message for the creation of an independent commission outside of the Cabinet members. Senator Couzens has legislation moving to this end.

It has apparently occurred to no one to clean house while this legislation is in the long process of enactment.

Overshoes to Keep Wings Of Airplanes Free of Ice

Cornell Scientist and Aids Develop Safety Device, Breaking Deadly Coatings, Which Already Has Passed Tests Successfully.

Ithaca, N. Y., April 2 (A.P.).—Overshoes for airplanes—a new method of keeping wings free of deadly ice—were announced tonight at Cornell University.

They are a discovery in safer flying announced as a result of successful tests in the Midwest.

They were developed by Dr. William C. Geer, research chemist, with the cooperation of Dr. Merit Scott, Cornell physicist, the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, the B. F. Goodrich Co., of Akron, the National Air Transport, Inc., and its Eastern superintendent, Wesley L. Smith.

The overshoes lace over the forward edge of the wing. They are a thin layer of specially vulcanized rubber exuding continually a colorless oil, which is the secret of success. It is announced that the ice does not stick nor the oil scrub off.

This slipperiness alone is insufficient and so the overshoes have a small hose under their striking edge. A slight pulsation of pump driven air in this hose breaks the ice as it forms on the wing edge, and so prevents air from pressing the forming ice fast against the wing like a newspaper held against a man's pantleg in a March wind.

"Two weks ago," said Dr. Geer tonight, "a successful test was performed at Cleveland, and another and final confirming one is in order for this week.

"Although much work will be required by way of detailed improvement, I am convinced that we have developed fundamental principles and simple means through the use of which the ice hazard may be eliminated from airplanes. This conclusion is shared by Mr. Wesley L. Smith at Cleveland, Eastern division superintendent of the National Air Transport, who personally piloted the test plane.

"We use a selected group of oils which stand cold down to zero without appreciable stickiness, and which are nondrying over long periods.

"When ice forms, the pilot will turn air into the air tubes, slightly expanding them. This moves the ice, breaks the vacuum, and, since adhesion to the oiled rubber is essentially zero, the ice becomes a loose object on the plane and is instantly blown away.

"These overshoes are designed to be applied like ordinary overshoes in bad weather only. They lace on quickly, the parts are not heavy or cumbersome—about 100 pounds added weight for a biplane of 40-foot wing spread.

"There is much to be done to improve construction, particularly to create a light-weight overshoe for wires o fcertain biplanes. The propellers have not been protected, but they, the radiator shutters and control wires present no problems of unusual difficulty when viewed in the light of these fundamentals.

"A pilot, when he enters the ice region, will have but to open a valve and the pneumatic tubes of the overshoes will automatically inflate and deflate at such intervals that the ice will be removed in small pieces as fast as formed."

RED ELEMENTS IN SCHOOLS RENEW CAMPAIGN ACTIVITY

acters of the children in their most plastic years, said one woman.

Harry N. Stull, chairman of the committee on education of the Federation of Citizens Associations, conducted the testimony before the board. No alarm was expressed by witnesses regarding the growth of the movement in the schools. Mr Stoll drew from the experiences of school men in other cities in presenting the "subtle methods used by the communists to enlist the interest of pupils."

Literature, introduced as documentary evidence, was gathered in the District schools. Generally the context of the propaganda was the usual argument against class and racial discrimination, capitalism and sounding of a call for a general student's strike throughout the country on May 1.

There are in the District schools, according to the testimony, two organizations, affiliated with the Communist party. One is the Young Communist's League and the other the Young Pioneers. The object of these organizations included distribution of propaganda against high school cadets. Columbia High School, MacFarland High School, Central High School and Business High School were mentioned by the witnesses as having been points of communist activity.

Number of Witnesses Called.

Among witnesses called by Mr. Stoll were Mrs. Albert Baggs, of the D. A. R.; Minor Buell, a student of Western High School; David Oliver, of Central High School; Mrs. Winston Holt, chairman of the District committee of the national defense of the D. A. R., and Mrs. H. B. Mayhew, of the Columbia Parent-Teacher Association.

The gist of their testimony was the collections they had made of communistic literature and their experiences in two centers of communist activity in the city.

Charles F. Carusi, chairman, announced that a special committee will be named to continue the inquiry. There was no evidence presented to indicate that any teachers were engaged in the communist movement.

Theistic Teachings Rapped.

John D. Brudley, counsel for the Washington Secular League, interrupted the meeting for a few minutes with a protest against theistic teachings in the public schools. He declared that the antithesis of communist atheism is taught in the public schools by the reading of the Bible. He was ruled out of order.

Minor Buell, a youthful witness, kept the crowded boardroom in humor with his testimony. He offered as his solution of the problem the general willingness to thrash anyone who handed him any literature in the school.

Henry Gilligan's motion, for appointment of a committee to register the board's protest against the provision of the appropriations bill regarding transfer of kindergarten teachers, was lost when the vote was tied. Chairman Carusi failed to vote. H. Barrett Learned, J. Hayden Johnson, and Mrs. Lenore W. Smith voted negatively while Mrs. Marion W. Doyle and Mrs. Mary A. MacNeill sided with Mr. Gilligan.

Gilligan Statement Applauded.

Mr. Gilligan's statement that the appropriations committee has not the right "to tell us how to run our schools" was applauded.

Mrs. Giles Scott Rafter, president of the District Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations, presented an argument against the transfer of kindergarten teachers. Her argument was based on findings that kindergarten teachers are worked as much as regular grade teachers and have many duties in addition to teaching.

Her suggestion that Dr. Frank W. Ballou be sent to the appropriations committee to announce that the board was unwilling to accept its findings met with no action.

Kindergarten Teacher Reduction Is Opposed

The House provision in the District appropriation bill to reduce the number of kindergarten teachers in the public schools was opposed by teachers who appeared before a Senate appropriations subcommittee yesterday.

Other witnesses appeared to urge additional school buildings and more gymnasiums and assembly halls.

Senator Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, chairman of the subcommittee, announced that hearings on the appropriation bill virtually had been completed. Late in the week, he said, he and his colleagues would make a tour of the city to view school sites and street repair projects, and after that would report the bill to the Senate.

U.S. RUM POLICY HIT IN CANADIAN SENATE

Charge Made That America Can Stop Border Traffic if It So Wishes.

EXPORT BILL IS DEBATED

Ottawa, April 2 (A.P.).—Further opposition to the government bill prohibiting export of liquor into the United States was voiced in the Senate today, accompanied by proposals that would delay its passage.

Senator Tanner joined Speaker Willoughby in moving that the bill be submitted for preliminary consideration to a special committee selected by the senate to obtain information as to the probable effect of the bill on Canada's national and economic life and on international relations.

In this motion they were supported by Senator Robinson, who caused adjournment of the debate until the next sitting of the body after saying that progress on revision of the present smuggling treaty between the United States and Canada might be obtained more quickly if there were nothing "in the way of the government's negotiating a treaty beneficial to Canada."

U. S. Attitude Rapped.

Senator Tanner said that the United States could stop liquor traffic across the border in a week if it really wanted to do so, adding that there is a growing sentiment against the Volstead act in the United States. He asserted there was evidence that a majority of the people there were opposed to it now. Passage of the bill by commons, he said was a "political move."

Politicians in the United States are in a dilemma, Senator Tanner said. They are afraid to oppose the prohibition law and political influences prevented them from enforcing it, and so "as a last resort they are passing the buck to Canada," he asserted.

Senator Tanner declared that the Government bill was a tacit admission of "guilt" by Canada for smuggling liquor into the United States. "The present Dominion government is assisting politicians of the United States in their attempts to libel Canada by admitting guilt," he said.

Talk of Peril Scouted.

He denounced the premier for saying that the bill should be passed because of "some great impending peril" which threatened Canada if action along the lines of the measure were not taken.

"It was only a figure of speech," said Senator Tanner, adding that he believed the bill was legislation dictated by Washington.

When Senator Tanner said he did not believe public opinion on either side of the border favored the bill, Senator George P. Graham asked how it was, then, that the people's representatives in the House of Commons had approved it.

Senator Tanner replied that he believed both sides in the House of Commons were "playing politics."

DRY FORCES FINISH PROHIBITION PLEAS

of the Antisaloon League; Deets Pickett, secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals; Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism; the Rev. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, superintendent of the National Temperance Bureau; the Rev. William Shafe Case, superintendent of the International Reform Federation, and Eugene L. Crawford, general secretary of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. All of them were present, ready to take the stand if wanted, except Dr. Cherrington.

Statement by McBride.

Each statement reasserted opposition of the organizations represented to any repeal or modification of the dry laws and declared that absolute prohibition was the only way in which to defeat the evils they attributed to liquor.

McBride said that "not surrender but education, observance and enforcement is the solution of the liquor problem—the only answer to the alcoholic liquor question."

Placing the views of the Methodist Board of Temperance before the committee, Mr. Pickett asserted that "the country has so thoroughly adapted itself to conditions existing under prohibition that any change would severely shock the entire structure, lessening both production and consumption, disturbing both finance and commerce."

Dr. Cherrington's Views.

Dr. Cherrington asserted that after ten years the wets had not formulated any new plan for control of liquor that would be a substitute for absolute prohibition. All their suggestions, he continued, had been tried and had proved to be failures.

Despite all handicaps and the "venality and corruption of officials which its enemies induce," Dr. Dinwiddie said that prohibition had "operated to the great material, moral and social advantage of the American people."

Canon Chase asked for immediate approval by the judiciary committee of measures recommended by the law enforcement commission to strengthen dry law enforcement and prompt disapproval of measures to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

Congressional Quiz Urged.

He also urged congressional investigation of "corrupt alliances," which he said doubtless existed between bootleggers, racketeers and political leaders of both major parties in larger cities, particularly New York, Philadelphia and Chicago.

Advocating treatment of violators of the prohibition laws as rebels, Mr. Crawford said his organization took the view that "the issue is no longer enforcement of the prohibition law."

The issue, he said, is maintenance of constitutional government, and added that "Rebels against constitutional government must be treated as rebels and made to understand that even if they do not like prohibition laws they can not defy the Government of the United States."

DRY AGENT TO STAND TRIAL FOR MURDER

CASE IS SET FOR AUGUST

McKee, Ky., April 2 (A.P.).—Lloyd Lane, 34, Madison County deputy sheriff, who shot Aamon Williams, 34, in a prohibition raid on Williams' farm home Sunday, must stand trial for murder. Williams died almost instantly of a bullet wound in his back after he had run several hundred yards, ignoring commands to halt.

The officer was released under $10,000 bond today following his indictment yesterday by a Jackson County grand jury. The shooting actually occurred in this county, though there seems to be doubt whether Williams' home was in this or Madison County. The raid was made on a Madison County warrant.

The case was continued until the August term of court, and is scheduled to be held in Circuit Court here before Judge William Lewis. Lane had been in the technical custody of the sheriff since the shooting.

Williams left a widow and four children, and his funeral was held Monday. A still and a gallon of liquor were seized in his home.

An indication that a defense of accidental shooting will be made for Lane has been given by his attorney, George Ross.

BRITISH SCHOONER HELD AS RUM SHIP

Coast Guard Seizes 800 Cases of Liquor Discovered Aboard Araway.

WAS IN TOW TO BOSTON

Boston, April 2 (A.P.).—The British two-masted schooner Aramay, with 800 cases of liquor aboard, was seized off the coast of Maine by a Coast Guard patrol boat today, Thomas F. Finnegan, in charge of the customs enforcement squad here, announced.

The Aramay was taken into custody by the crew of the Coast Guard patrol boat Frederick Lee off Mount Desert Island, within the 12-mile limit, Finnegan said. She will be towed here and is expected to arrive tomorrow morning, when, Finnegan said, the crew would be turned over to him for questioning and then arraigned in Federal court on charges of conspiracy and smuggling.

Finnegan said the Aramay was a converted yacht of 55 tons net register, and was well known to Coast Guard and customs officials. He said the boat had been on the customs' "suspected" list since 1922, when it made its first appearance in waters hereabouts.

Commander Hiram R. Searles, acting head of the Coast Guard here, declined to make known the identity of the boat or any of the circumstances of the capture. He explained that in the past counsel for owners of seized boats reached the arrested crews at the same time Coast Guard and customs officials did, and as a result the questioning of the crew did not yield as much information as was desired.

He said he would give a detailed statement of the seizure tomorrow.

Capital Dry Bill Hearing Is Listed

Public Session on Howell Measure Is Set for Next Tuesday.

A public hearing on the Howell prohibition enforcement bill for Washington will be held before the Senate District committee at 2 o'clock Tuesday, Chairman Capper announced yesterday.

Some of the provisions of the bill are so drastic that even Attorney General Mitchell has condemned them; hence the hearing is expected to be a turbulent one. Senator Robert G. Howell dry Republican, of Nebraska, drafted the measure after he had engaged in a controversy with President Hoover over conditions here.

Earlier in the day Eugene L. Crawford, general secretary of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist-Episcopal Church South, submitted a statement to the House judiciary committee in which he urged the passage of an enforcement law for Washington.

Paris Meeting Of Diplomats Told by Mail

Letters Describe Fetes in French Capital for Edges.

By JEAN ELIOT.

LETTERS from Paris bring news that Count de Sartiges, long counselor of the French Embassy in Washington, who left town several months ago, is now on duty at the French Foreign Office. Another quondam member of the French Embassy staff, who has recently been detailed to duty at the Quai d'Orsay, is M. Frederic Knobel. The two men have been renewing a long friendship and both seem to be enjoying occasional glimpses of members of the American Embassy group whom they had known in Washington.

At a party given recently by the United States Ambassador to France and Mrs. Walter Evans Edge, Count de Sartiges and M. Knobel had opportunity to talk over old times with the Robert Pells, Maj. and Mrs. Robert LeG. Walsh, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. William D. Thomas and Mr. Benjamin Thaw, all of whom had been their friends while they were on duty in this country. Young Bob Pell is serving as secretary to Ambassador Edge and the other men are all attached to the Paris Embassy. Both Maj. Walsh, whose wife was Miss Caroline Thom, and Commander Thomas, whose wife was Miss Helen Marye, married Washington girls.

When M. Knobel first left Washington he was sent to the French Legation Athens, where he served until last autumn. Before leaving Greece he made an extensive and most interesting tour of the country. Going first to Corfu, he spent several days amid the silvery olive woods of the historic island, then cruising back to the mainland to explore the savage country of Epirus, and continuing to Albania, where for centuries the Turks had maintained their domination. After weeks of traveling in mountains, where railroads are still unknown and where life retains the impress of bygone generations, he visited the famous Mount Ablios Peninsula, where 21 monasteries of the Byzantine period are located.

Into this fantastic realm neither women nor female animals are admitted. The monks have a government of their own and their monasteries boast priceless treasures of orthodox art, manuscripts of the ninth and tenth centuries, embroideries, pictures, ikons and what not. It took two weeks of mule riding to go from place to place and months might have been spent profitably in study.

En route to France and his beloved Paris, M. Knobel crossed Italy, visiting such romantic cities as Ancona, Florence, Bologna and Milan, whose ancient picturesqueness is overlaid with the modernity of a great industrial city. More recently M. Knobel has been to London to look in on the naval conference, and there he encountered another old friend, Commander Louis Sable, naval attache of the French Embassy in Washington, who is serving as an adviser with the French conference delegation.

The Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Ferrara have returned to Washington after spending a few days in New York and will be at the embassy through the spring.

The alumnae of Brenau College living in Washington and vicinity will meet tonight at the Army and Navy Club for a dinner in honor of Miss Florence Overton, alumnae secretary of Brenau College. Miss Overton is in town for a few days and is visiting Miss Annabel Matthews, a member of the United States Board of Tax Appeals and a graduate of Brenau.

The Minister of Sweden, Mr. Bostrom, went to New York yesterday to attend the annual meeting and banquet of the Swedish Chamber of Commerce, at which he will deliver an address. He will return to Washington Sunday.

Senator and Mrs. George H. Moses will sail this week for a holiday in Europe. After a short stay in Paris they will go to Villefranche to join the magnificent yacht of Mr. Frederick H. Prince, Boston banker, on which they will cruise for about six weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Newell Tucker are being congratulated on the birth of a son on Tuesday at Garfield Hospital. Mrs. Tucker was formerly Miss Bessie McKeldin, daughter of Mrs. Leigh Palmer. Mrs. Palmer has come from New York to visit her daughter and make the acquaintance of her grandson.

Former Senator A. O. Stanley, of Kentucky, and Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., will be speakers at the annual dinner of the English Speaking Union which will commemorate the birthday of Shakespeare on April 21 at the Willard Hotel. Mr. Stanley, former Governor of Kentucky, and Mr. Fish are equally well known in Washington. A distinguished group of Washingtonians will be at the speaker's table.

What is Elizabeth Arden's VIENNA YOUTH MASK?

THERE is no secret about it, for the truth itself is so impressive there is no need of mystery.

The Vienna Youth Mask causes electric stimulation of the circulation, producing health as Nature herself does, through a constantly renewed blood supply.

The amazing value of this treatment lies in the depth to which it penetrates, causing the blood to flow in a rich purifying stream to underlying tissues and muscles . . . charging them with new youth and vigor. It stirs the circulation as no external friction or massage can possibly do.

Concentrated on the face and neck, as the treatment is given in Miss Arden's Salons, it is as though electric energy were poured into your very veins. Fresh red blood flushes the surfaces, carrying away impurities. The skin is cleared and brightened. Best of all, there comes an exuberant, glad-to-be-alive feeling, a freedom from fatigue that is the true measure of health.

Now, due to a recent improvement, the Vienna Mask is more remarkable than ever. Its new "differential" form has a flexibility which makes it possible to focus treatment on one's weakest spots . . . the lines at the side of the mouth, puckery places under the eyes, sagging contours. It is as though the finger of youth touched, and revived, every spot threatened by age.

But you must see for yourself. Visit Miss Arden's Salon and talk to the Trained Diathermic Nurse whose whole time is devoted to work with the Mask. She will tell you in detail exactly what it has done for others . . . and what it can do for you.

For an appointment please telephone Decatur 2040.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE best biography we have read of "Amos 'n' Andy" will appear in the tabloid magazine section of The Post, beginning next Sunday.

Now the Bureau of Standards is measuring the earth's gravity pull will be told by Dr. Paul R. Heyl, the "Man Who Weighed the Earth," at 9:40 p. m. tomorrow over WMAL.

Following his steam rollering of the Radio Commission and Senator Dill over the alleged use of profanity, Old Man Henderson, of Station KWKH, at Shreveport, comes back stronger than ever by applying for unlimited time on the air. At present he shares his frequency with Loyola University.

A LARGE manufacturer of toothpaste in the West has dropped broadcast advertising, and hereafter will use newspapers instead in the Pacific Coast cities.

They are lining the studio in Chicago with asbestos in which former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, will discuss "Nationalism Versus Internationalism," to be heard over WRC at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

The last school concert of the season will be given tomorrow morning by Walter Damrosch.

Will Rogers, receiving $72,000 for thirteen talks in behalf of a drug concern, has found an even better sideline than writing chewing gum plugs for the billboards.

IN response to many questions as to the reason for the reduced prices in radio sets, it may be said that the reduction is entirely due to overproduction and a desire to clear the market of the surplus by June 1, when manufacturers turn their attention to the 1931 models.

The usual rumor comes along that the 1931 sets will contain radical developments, but manufacturers with whom we have talked say there is nothing to this. There will, of course, be certain refinements as there always are. New radio models are put out each year, but as in the automobile field, more as a matter of custom than because of any sweeping improvement in the set.

With prices apparently at rock bottom, this would seem a pretty safe time to buy.

When the trade paper editors called on President Hoover he said he would listen with interest to their talks on business conditions broadcast by Columbia Tuesday night.

There is always speculation as to what the President hears on the radio. This was the first time it was definitely known exactly what he was listening to.

Floyd Gibbons talks at the rate of about three words a second.

A DISAPPOINTING development of radio programs is the swelled heads performers are getting.

We don't believe in the heydey of the legitimate theater or the motion picture there has ever been anything like it.

From the Humorist, London:

Agent (to newly rich client, engaging radio talent for her "at-home"—What about Mme. d'Operano?

Client—Is she good?

Agent—Good? Why, she's a great virtuoso.

Jane Interprets the MODE

As in the days of frills and furbelows, this lace dress with its edging of matching fringe is an example of the new elegance. (Courtesy of Lise, Paris.)

Paris, April 2.

MARTIAL ET ARMAND is featuring an odd sleeve effect that I predict will be very favorably received. It makes its appearance in afternoon and evening dresses. It is a long, rather loose sleeve, tight, however, at the wrist, which ends just about an inch below the very short sleeve of the dress itself. This long sleeve, which matches the dress exactly, is detachable.

You remove these long sleeves and hold them in your hand, where they look as if they might be a handkerchief or probably long gloves or mittens. A very fine and not at all tight elastic holds them at the top, otherwise they are just like gloves or sleeves.

I predict that this will be popular because they give long sleeves to an afternoon dress and make it quite practical for tea or for the street. Then for more formal dining and dancing, one removes them and is all summery and sleeveless.

Innumerable couturiers achieve this same practical effect with detachable capes, boleros and jacquettes. But nowhere save at this house have I seen these removable sleeves.

If you wear long rather heavy brown suede gloves with your short-sleeved afternoon frocks, with printed chiffon dinner frocks with pastel colored summer evening dresses, you will be chic a la Worth. While all of the big couturiers are showing these suede gloves in various sizes and lengths, it is only Worth who has suggested them in dark brown as well as black.

• • • •

Collars and cuffs are not just collars and cuffs this season, but often the sole and very decorative ornament on a dress. How would you like a smart black afternoon dress with gold lame cuffs and collar, for instance, and then the same dress with an adorable set made of rose-colored straw? Or a set of large flat paillettes or pearls—well, a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post will bring you the directions for making these and some other very smart and unusual sets.

• • • •

The well-known house of Magdeleine des Hayes has changed hands and becomes Lise. Although one hates to see old favorites go, still there is a great deal to be said for gowns like the one illustrated for you today, of absinthe lace, with matching silk fringe. It had a really lovely line, an odd decollette, and was very long in the back, even to the floor and slightly longer, so that it was almost a train.

• • • •

So as not to be carrying too many droppable things, one can now carry a tiny evening vanity like the one I illustrated up in the corner, with a little fan hidden in its side! You can take the fan out and wave away your escort's cigar fumes, which, oh, no, you don't mind at all, when you know darn well you do, and then it slips back in the side and forms a part of the bag's ornament.

• • • •

That's all for today, but the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Sunday Post will prove of much interest. Do look for it.

The Goofus Hen does not lay eggs,
Instead she goes around and begs
Them from her friend, the Goofus Goose—
Who for her eggs can find no use.
Hence, Goofus Chicks are all adopted;
I think it's time the Gander stopt it!

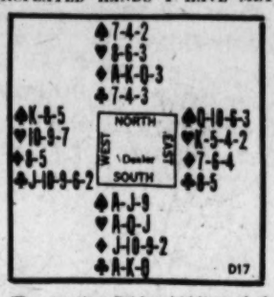
MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



The Auction Bridge bidding of the above hand would be: South one No Trump, followed by three passes.

The Contract bidding would be: South three No Trumps, West pass, North four Diamonds, East pass, and South four No Trumps. South's count of 22 would not justify his accepting North's slam invitation, and North's 9, while sufficient for a slam invitation, would not warrant his going further. The combined count of the two hands is 31, and that rarely produces a slam; although in this particular case, due to the fortunate distribution of the adverse Spade and Heart honors, the slam is possible.

Against a contract of four No Trumps, West led the Jack of Clubs. South won and led the Deuce of Diamonds to put dummy in the lead. A heart finesse then succeeded and dummy was put in with a second Diamond for a second Heart finesse. Two more Diamonds then were run, dummy winning the last, after which dummy led a Spade and South finessed the Jack. The outcome was that the Declarer made eleven tricks, one more than contract, and scored 140 below and 50 above. Could he have done better?

The Correct Play.

In Contract, slam premiums are not allowed unless the slam is bid; yet the 50 obtained for an extra trick increases the size of the rubber. The Declarer should have noted that he might obtain an additional 50 by creating four entries in dummy. Consequently, his first lead should have been a high Diamond, overtaken in a dummy. Then after a successful Heart finesse, a second high Diamond should have been led with monds, because Declarer still held the two tops). After the second Heart finesse, only one more adverse Diamond remaining unplayed, a third high Diamond could be led by South for a third overtake, and then a Spade from dummy. If East play small, South should play the Nine (with Ace-Jack-Nine, the most probable way to get two tricks). After that, North's Trey of Diamonds would be an entry to give South the chance to finesse the Jack of Spades, which would produce twelve tricks.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled "THE PLAYING PROBLEMS." Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS" presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

GARY PROTECTS CHILDREN.

THE Gary School children are better immunized or vaccinated than school children elsewhere. They have been free from smallpox as school children in the Mississippi Valley go. Yet in spite of the absence of the beneficent effect of fear a large proportion of them are vaccinated against the disease. Few cities within a radius of 300 miles have their school population better protected.

A considerable proportion of the school population is immunized against diphtheria. Not many cities surpass Gary in this particular. A fairly large number are immunized against scarlet fever. It is doubtful if so large a proportion of any school population of 20,000 are thus immunized anywhere else. It may be that this immunization, incidentally, gives some protection in other directions.

Very few are immunized against typhoid because this disease has been so unimportant in cities for ten years or more. The school health authorities are watching the results of immunization against tuberculosis and other diseases done elsewhere, but they have not seen fit to recommend any of these procedures to Gary parents so far.

The method employed is based on consent. The parents in most instances request that their children be immunized, though in many cases to say that they consent to immunization would be more exact. The children appear at the health office in the school with the request cards. They are treated and then given treatment cards which give a brief record of the transaction from beginning to end. This they keep, showing it to their parents and bringing it with them when they return for treatment.

The kindergarteners were going through the grind when I witnessed the proceedings. Here was a line of tots, each with his card, each smiling, good natured, and unafraid. No parents and no attendants were in evidence. Each child bared his arm as he neared the head of the line. When "next" he went into the office, had a patch of skin cleaned, a treatment given, whereupon he skipped out of the room and went to his work or play.

Comparisons made over a ten-year period show that diphtheria and scarlet fever are declining definitely in Gary. Neither smallpox nor typhoid have been very prevalent, though the rates as to each should be lower.

HAY FEVER SUFFERER.

R. S. writes: I have hay fever. I had it very bad last summer in spite of fifteen injections. This summer will be the third season I have had it. Do you think the beach would help or would you recommend the mountains?

REPLY.

If you know which pollen causes your trouble you can run away from hay fever intelligently by finding out which pollens prevail in different localities and at what season.

Systematic pollen counts have been made in a considerable number of places for the last year or two.

As a rule, mountains less than 5,000 feet high have plenty of pollen in the air. Beach resorts differ according to location, climate, and prevailing winds.

TUBERCULAR SPINE.

Mrs. A. W. writes: 1. What are the causes of tubercular spine?

2. If a man who is pronounced cured marries, would this disease be apt to affect his children?

REPLY.

1. Infection with the tubercle bacillus. Among the possible contributing causes are injuries, drinking raw milk, eating products from raw milk.

2. No.

What Today Means to You

"ARIES."

IF April 3 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m., and from 10:45 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. and from 9:15 p. m. to 10:15 p. m.

Unfavorable and upsetting influences will affect your state of mind on this date and you will feel "fed up" with everything and everybody, and will seek an outlet to take you out of self. There will be a general slackness, physical, material and mental.

Children born on this April 3 will have a good team spirit, but will be timid when it comes to individual effort. They will need an outside influence to spur on their ambition and to hold them up to their best. They will have kind and generous dispositions.

You possess very little of the old-fashioned virtue called patience, and it irritates you greatly to either wait for time or man. You, yourself, act on the impulse and you make quick decisions. You do possess, however, two traits, which are common to so many of this age—initiative and the courage to take a chance. You would rather be a plunger and a loser than a hard worker and a plodder. You would rather use your wits than your hands. In your hurry to obtain everything with the least expenditure of time and trouble, there is a danger of you becoming too easily satisfied with the second rate. Many of the best things in life are only obtainable through time and effort. It sometimes pays to wait—"cutting in" is a dangerous practice and you are bound to crash if you cast patience to the four winds.

You crave excitement and amusement, and as you are not a great reader, you seek other forms of recreation. You prefer live companions to those of fiction. You are nervously restless, and it is hard for you to stay "put" for long at a time. You doubtless have all the mannerisms of one who is living at high tension all the time—you are not a restful companion, but a lively one. You will never rust out, but you may wear out at an early age, if you do not take better care of your human engine.

Successful people born April 3: Edward Everett Hale, clergyman and author.

Reginald De Koven, composer.

Wives of Tomorrow

"A Final Parting."

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am about to leave my husband and I am very unhappy and doubtful about it. I have been married five years and have a wonderful little boy of 3. It is for him that I write this. I want him to have some future. I have worked and supported the three of us for two years while my husband sits at home or in some gambling place. He is strong and healthy and I have done this thinking he may get work and do the right thing. He laughs at me and abuses me. I do all my housework and laundry before I go to work and when I come home from work he makes some sarcastic remark about my boy friends. I have never been untrue to him. There is no one in my life but him and my baby, but he is always talking of some one else. I have stood his insults for over two years but I can endure it no longer. He insults all my friends, even my people. He will follow me to work sometimes to be sure I am going there. Should I leave or continue letting him belittle and embitter me? We are getting nowhere as it is now. He runs up bills and I must pay for everything. Surely a man that has any respect for his wife would not treat her as I have been treated. Thanking you for the advice I shall be patiently waiting for.

"CYNTHIA."

By all means take the step that will rid your life of a degrading influence. It is natural for you to hesitate, and doubt, and question at the last, for after all this is the man to whom you gave your love, and any normal woman under like circumstances would pause in uncertainty before finally severing the close bond that love and parenthood combine to make so strong.

But to continue as you are just because you once believed this man to be worthy when the years proved otherwise, would be mere maudlin sentimentality. Love is a priceless thing, and the protection of a good man's love is something a woman may well hesitate to relinquish. But the woman who gives love, and in return receives abuse, the woman who seeks protection and finds that she is the one who is ex-with his moral infirmity, and to prepected to do the protecting and even the providing, is entitled to freedom from the error of the past.

Walk out. But do so with a mind set on finality rather than compromise. Do not figure on a miracle of reformation that will bring this parasite back to you, a decent man and a self-respecting citizen. The material is not there. He lacks manhood, the adult sense of responsibility. He is unfit to father children, and you must prepare yourself for the fact that when you leave him, you leave him finally, not temporarily. And that is well. To be burdened for life serve his evil example for your small son, is unthinkable. So make the break clean. You will find it after the first three or four weeks much easier than you could ever have believed. The second week will be the hardest. The excitement of the first week bears you up. The second is the let down. The third, habit starts. After that comes reward. It is sad business this cutting off the hand that offends, but nature is amazingly kind, and has made us mercifully adaptable to these necessities.

So walk free and find new zest in living, new confidence, new life.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign you name.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

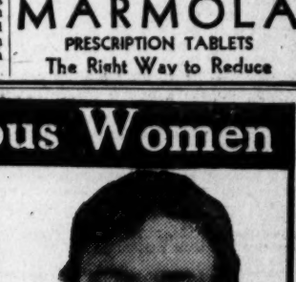
(Bureau of Dairy Industry.)

One-half pint of milk is heated in a double boiler and held at the boiling point for one-half hour. This milk is cooled to about 100 degrees F. (about blood heat). At this temperature the container will feel warm, but not hot, to the touch. A considerable quantity of the culture is added to this milk. If it is in the form of tablets three or four should be used.

The milk is transferred to a bottle or fruit jar or, better still, to a vacuum-insulated bottle, which has been rinsed with boiling water and kept overnight in a warm place. Good results may be obtained by placing the bottle or jar containing the milk in a dish of water warmed to about 100 degrees F. The most favorable temperature for the fermentation is at or a little below blood heat. At a little higher temperature the organism grows faster, but the curd is likely to separate from the whey as a tough mass. At a lower temperature the growth may be so slow that other bacteria gain the ascendency.

By the following morning a thick, somewhat stringy curd with a sharp, acid taste should have developed. One teaspoonful of this curdled milk is added to from 1 pint to 1 quart of milk which has been heated in a double boiler, held at the boiling point for one-half hour, and then cooled. This milk is held before, and the curd which has formed is broken up by being shaken vigorously in a fruit jar.

Stays Fat YET SHE EATS LIKE A BIRD



HERE'S the REASON

MANY fat people deny themselves year after year, yet stay fat. Many injure themselves in the process. It is time they know what millions know, including all modern physicians. A common cause of excess fat lies in an under-active gland. And that fat will not disappear until this wrong condition is corrected.

Marmola prescription tablets contain the best factors now employed. A famous laboratory prepares them. The formula appears in every box, also the scientific reasons for results.

People have used Marmola for 22 years—millions of boxes of it. Users everywhere now show and tell the amazing and delightful results. They do not starve or over-exercise. They combat the cause by feeding a gland factor which is scant, and which largely controls nutrition.

Why not do what so many have done, with such good results, for so long. Learn by a test what this method does, then carry it as far as you wish. Do this in fairness to yourself, to please your family and friends. Then tell others who need this help. Go start today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

"What a wonderful help Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been to me. I was so nervous and rundown I couldn't be up half the time. When I had taken one bottle of Vegetable Compound I could tell I felt better, so I took seven bottles and I recommend it highly. It helped my nerves and keeps me strong to do my housework and wait on four little children. I hope some other suffering woman will try it."—Mrs. Porter L. Arnold.

SHOW GIRL — Pleasant Greetings! — By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

With NELSON B. BELL

IT has been my purpose for several days to comment upon the achievement of a Washington youth who rates mention in this column solely by reason of the fact that his father has been associated with the Crandall-Stanley-Warner theaters in the Capital for many years. I refer to Master Theodore Podnos, otherwise "Teddy," the precocious 12-year-old son of Alexander Podnos, formerly conductor of the orchestra at the Metropolitan and still a prominent violinist of the Warner musical organization.

On March 27 Teddy Podnos appeared as solo artist with the Peabody Conservatory Orchestra, Gustav Strube conducting, in Baltimore, and rendered the allegro moderato, Romance —andante non troppo— and allegro moderato (a la Zingara) movements of H. Wieniawski's Concerto in D minor, a composition that tests the skill of even the greatest violin virtuosi of the concert stage.

Master Podnos' poised rendition of so pretentious a work was greeted by no less than an ovation, in which Mr. Strube himself enthusiastically joined. A great future is predicted for this youngster, who grew up in Washington and whose ability as a violinist already has won him a scholarship at Peabody, awarded him some months ago.

Interesting coincidences punctuate contemplation of the motion picture bills announced for the week beginning Friday and Saturday.

Beginning Friday at the Earle, Eddie Dowling, author-actor-producer, will appear on both the screen and the stage as major attraction. His picture is "Blaze o' Glory," and in his personal appearances I am led to believe that he will offer his familiar combination of song, chatter and jest. The coincidence is that Kate Smith, whose manifold talents Mr. Dowling was first to recognize in a large way, is convalescing at her home in the Boulevard Apartments from a severe attack of laryngitis that compelled her temporary retirement from a hit role with Bert Lahr in "Flying High," the De Sylva, Brown and Henderson New York smash.

There probably will be a party before Kate returns to Broadway.

Down at the Metropolitan, Frank Fay, remembered as the tage clown who acted as master of ceremonies in the "Show of Shows," will appear in his first real stellar role in "Under the Texas Moon," an All-Technicolor musical romance of the Mexican border in which a notable supporting cast also appears, led, I suspect, by Armida, who, being Mexican, ought at least to be "in the atmosphere."

The coincidence, in this case, lies in the fact that Barbara Stanwyck, who in private life is Mrs. Frank Fay, instead of being cast with her husband at the Met, will be up at the RKO-Keith Theater with Lowell Sherman and Ralph Graves in "Ladies of Leisure."

As long as we have gone that far, you might as well have this complete list for the new week: Earle, beginning Friday, Eddie Dowling, in "Blaze o' Glory," and in person; Palace William Powell, in "The Benson Murder Case;" Fox, John Garrick and Helen Chandler, in "The Sky Hawk;" RKO-Keith's, Lowell Sherman, Barbara Stanwyck and Ralph Graves, in "Ladies of Leisure;" Metropolitan, beginning Friday, Frank Fay, in "Under the Texas Moon;" Columbia, Gary Cooper and Mary Brian, in "Only the Brave."

The spirit of spring, or so I am told, will be welcomed in the Warner Bros.' Metropolitan and Earle Theaters with an impressive line-up of new feature films, reflecting the latest improvements in sound and color production. The first of the procession already have been announced in preceding paragraphs. Hot on their heels will come these:

"Mammy," Al Jolson's latest wham, with a complete set of new tunes by Irving Berlin.

"The Vagabond King," a gigantic screen version in color of the stage success, will bring Dennis King in his original role.

"Hold Everything" is the one in which Winnie Lightner sings the songs celebrated in this column a few days ago.

"The Song of the Flame" is on the way with Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray cofeatured, and it won't be long now until John Barrymore will be seen in "The Man From Blankley's."

To be added to this array will be "The Return of Dr. Fu Manchu;" Helen Kane in her first individual starring vehicle, "Dangerous Nan McGrew," and Jack Oakie in "High Society."

It was probably their anxiety to reach these productions that recently caused the Met and Earle to move their opening days up from Saturday to Friday!

What! All those blossoms and no cherries?

RICHMOND RESERVE HAS BUSINESS GAIN

Fiscal Agency Is Only Unit to Show Decrease During 1929.

COAL OUTPUT INCREASES

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The physical volume of business handled in 1929 by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Va., headquarters of the local Federal Reserve district, was greater in every department except in fiscal agency work than that handled in 1928, according to the fifteenth annual report of the institution, made public by William W. Hoxon, chairman and Federal Reserve agent.

The decline in fiscal agency operations was due chiefly to an unusually large amount of work done in the earlier year in connection with redemption and refunding of the Third Liberty Loan. Bills discounted and bought in 1929 rose 4.77 per cent above the number in 1928 and the aggregate amount loaned to member banks in the later year rose to 20.37 per cent.

The number of borrowing banks in 1929 was 384 against 386 banks which borrowed from the Reserve Bank in 1928, but the borrowers in 1929 were a larger percentage of the member banks in the fifth district. More than a million additional checks were cleared by the transit department last year in comparison with the number cleared in 1928, but the amount involved, while higher in 1929, did not increase in proportion, the average amount for which each check was drawn being slightly lower in 1929. In dollar amount, the aggregate of noncash collections handled in 1929 was below that of 1928 collections, but the number of transactions handled in 1929 was slightly more than 1 per cent higher than the number handled in 1928.

Nearly $10,000,000,000 is spent annually in the restaurants of the United States, according to an analysis of the restaurant industry by Goddard & Co., who show that the number of commercial restaurants in the country is increasing at the average rate of from 8 to 10 per cent annually.

The workman's dinner pail of yesterday, it is said, is today a curiosity, due to the present habit of workmen of eating at the small restaurants and cafeterias in the neighborhoods in which their work takes place.

The quantity of bituminous coal mined in the United States during the week ended March 29 showed an increase of about 800,000 tons over the total for the preceding week. Estimated output, computed by the National Coal Association from preliminary car loading reports from the railroads, shows a total for last week of 8,600,000 net tons.

Curb Review

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Bullish forces on the New York Curb Exchange were forced to make a partial retreat today as a result of a heavy selling movement launched in the last hour of trading. Many of the early gains were wiped out and a rather long list of issues closed with net declines ranging from 1 to 6 points, particularly in the public utility and oil groups. A sprinkling of specialties, in which pools are believed to be operating, maintained at least part of their gains.

In view of the sharp advance in prices during the past week the reaction was generally expected. It was influenced, in part, by fears of a large increase in brokers' loans. The New York Stock Exchange monthly figures of member loans, made public after the close, showed a gain of nearly half a billion dollars in March, although the total was still far below the record established last September. The New York Federal Reserve weekly figures will be made public after the close of the market tomorrow.

A break of 6 points in Gulf of Pennsylvania had a depressing effect on the oil shares, which had pointed upward in the early trading as a result of the further decline in crude oil production reported for last week. Standard Oil of Ohio dropped 2½, and Humble 1½, but Vacuum and Petroleum Corporation closed higher, the latter touching a new high for the year.

Pilot Radio moved to new high ground on the successful completion of the flight of its experimental plane from New York to Bermuda. Hazeltine Radio ran up more than 3 points to 30, duplicating the year's peak, on the announcement that it had leased its patents to the Grigsby Grunow Co., but lost part of its gain on realizing. Columbia Pictures, Copper Bessemer, Cuneo Press preferred, Curtiss Wright Flying, Foltis Fischer, Ruberoid, St. Regis Paper, Superheater, Trans Lux Pictures and U. S. Dairy A also reached new high ground.

Niagara & Hudson was run up to a new high at 19¾ on unofficial reports that it was slated to be merged later with Consolidated Gas of New York. Electric Bond & Share showed a net loss of slightly more than 2 points at 109½ after having sold close to the year's high of 112½ established earlier in the week. Cities Service, which had been moving up fractionally to new high ground nearly every day for the past week, dropped back 1½ points. American Gas & Electric broke 4 points and a number of others yielded a point or two.

In the investment trust and trading corporation group, Shenandoah and Tricontinental attained new peak prices, although the latter lost its gain and closed slightly lower. Eastern States B and Electric shareholders preferred also reached new high ground, but Goldman Sachs and New York investors were heavy.

POSTPONED REDUCTION IN COAL PRICES

The retail coal merchants of Washington have been advised by the Anthracite Operators that the date for their usual spring reduction has been changed to May 1.

It will be necessary, therefore, for the retail coal merchants to defer their usual spring reduction until such time as the prices are reduced at the mines.

It is hoped that the change to May 1 will enable the Operators to offer a greater reduction on May 1.

CONNIE MACK GROWS OLD SENSIBLY

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, April 2.—Connie Mack is one elderly man in public life in this country who has had the good taste to grow old without beating his chest and bragging of his remarkable physical preservation, his will power, his simple virtue, his cold shower in the morning, his piety or his success.

One of the most approachable prominent men in the United States and interviewed a thousand times on the subject of himself, he has yet to prescribe ten rules of success for disinterested members of the oncoming generation; propound a questionnaire, or testify in Congress as to matters regarding which he has no knowledge, but only prejudice.

In short, Mr. Mack is one grand old man in an era singularly attentive to the modest egotism of various grand old men of one thing and another, who does not regard himself as grand or old.

He thinks of himself as a manager of a ball club and asks no special respect on account of his years, realizing, I suppose, that a man is bound to grow old if he lives long enough. He never attempts to impose his own social tastes on active athletes who are from 30 to 50 years younger than himself, and for all these reasons he commands a more affectionate respect than any of the other grand old men who divide their time nowadays between railing at the heedless frivolity of the young and unveiling monuments to themselves.

Respectability Chief Demand of Players.

A drunkard, a philanderer—to use a nice word—or a blackguard can not hold a job playing ball with his firm, but he thinks sobriety and common decency are little enough to ask of men in a highly competitive game as vulnerable to scandal as baseball. In other years he did condone drinking, and I am quite sure he would not fire a player for rolling into the hotel tight once, even today.

As to the other familiar forms of sin, he is not only mindful of the public reputation of the baseball business, but a bit of a gentleman and ill at ease with coarse characters in the intimate household contacts which are unavoidable in the life of a lot of men who spend about five months of the year—winter, spring and summer—touring on the road.

So, taken as a group at any given time, Mr. Connie Mack's ball club is quite likely to shape up as a squad of well-behaved, respectable young men.

However, good behavior is a generous term here. It permits of enough helling and damning to serve the normal requirements of an angry young man who has just had a third strike called on an obvious pitchout, and judging by what I saw of the Athletics in two tours with them last summer, I should say that old Mr. Mack's standard of conduct is only severe enough to keep muckers off his club. Moreover, he achieves this by selection rather than by espionage or coercion, for when Connie Mack is thinking of buying a ball player he pays some attention to the man's character and habits while looking over his averages.

Connie Is Content In Present Success.

But it is in his public character that the old man reveals his conservative estimate of himself. Connie might have taken to the winter league lecture circuit, after winning the American League pennant and the postseason games of last fall, to scold or counsel the country from the eminence of his years and his distinction, and I have no doubt that he could have made some money so doing.

I could suggest several grand old men of this and that who would have been unable to resist the opportunity, not so much for the money, perhaps, as for the delight to their vanity. He might have broken into the magazines, per ghost, with his thoughts on success. In his interviews in the newspapers he might have taken the opportunity to say that right living, prayer, deep breaths before the open window every morning helped to make him the grand old man of baseball.

But that is just the point. He isn't a grand old man to Connie Mack, however willing the public might be to accept him as another member of the group of grand old men, and his bearing is always that of a fellow whose age doesn't matter.

He won a pennant and a world series. Well, he had won pennants and world series before, and so had other men. Baseball was his business and the fact of his success in the baseball business didn't qualify him to lecture on unemployment, religious observance, health in general, or the morals of the young.

Age Not Considered By A's Leader.

Once I asked him how he managed to bear up in the hot months on the road with his ball club. This was a faux pas. He asked me how I was bearing up under the same strain.

St. John's Captures 130-Lb. Title From Westerners.

Arcadians Conquer Aztecs in 115-Lb. Final Game.

THE Montrose A. C. Team climaxed its fourth annual bid for the District amateur basket ball championship last night by winning the title from the Potomac Boat Club, 31 to 17, in the unlimited class finals of The Washington Post tournament sanctioned by the A. A. U., staged at the Tech High School Gymnasium.

Arcadians in Peril As Game Ends.

A ball from the hands of Walker, of the Aztecs, which rimmed the basket but failed to drop through as the gun sounded, saved the 115-pound championship for the Arcadians, who won despite a fourth quarter rally of their foemen, 16 to 15. The losers' late rally was a repetition of the determined play they had shown previously in the tournament, but which on the other occasions had resulted in victory.

After losing a lead gained in the first quarter, the Aztecs trailed throughout, with the Arcadians holding a 5-4 lead at the end of the half and a 12-5 advantage as the final quarter got under way. Fighting mad, the Aztecs outscored their foes, 10 to 4, in the last 10 minutes to no avail.

At the start of the last period, the Arcadians increased their lead to 16-7, but with five minutes to go, the Aztecs launched their rally which fell short by just one point. Baskets by Freedenberg, Joray and two by Walker, had carried the Aztecs to within one point of their rivals. Once again it was a point in the foul column which decided the issue, both teams being tied in the number of field goals.

Levin, at forward, played a beautiful game for the Arcadians, leading both teams in scoring with eight points.

St. Johns Holds Rivals Scoreless in Overtime.

Holding the Westerners scoreless in an extra five-minute period, the St. John's Five tallied once from the foul-line to gain a lead and once again from the floor to sew up the game in taking the 130-pound championship with a 19-16 victory.

Tied at the end of the regulation time, which saw the Westerners overcome a 13-7 handicap to knot the count at 16-16 with two minutes to go, St. John's found its winning punch in the efforts of Warren and Mike Scanlon. In the second minute of the extra frame, Warren cooly dropped one in from the 15-foot mark to give St. John's a scant lead and a minute later, Scanlon got loose and dribbled half the length of the floor to give his team a 3-point margin.

Although fighting desperately, the Westerners were unable to register even once in the last five minutes, Rabbitt missing two chances from the charity strip, the first of which would have tied the score again.

It was the remarkable fourth quarter attack of the Westerners that allowed them to tie the score after being forced to trail the eventual victors from the start of the game. St. John's got off to a 2-0 lead on a field goal by Mike Scanlon and received another two points when his brother Ed, duplicated. Held scoreless in the first ten minutes, the Westerners finally scored when Rabbitt contributed two points after a long dribble. Two more free shots was the sum of the Westerners' contribution during the first half which ended 7-4.

Rabbitt scored immediately after the resumption of play but the Westerners were unable to catch their foes until two minutes before the end, when Summers tied the score with a foul toss, after Rabbitt had again scored two field goals in meeting the 5-point lead held by the Westerners.

Roanoke Five Beaten In Chicago Tourney

Chicago, April 2 (A.P.).—Dixie's veterans' march in the National Prep School basket ball tournament was halted today by a team of string-bean sharpshooters from Wheatland, Wyo., which trounced Jefferson High, of Roanoke, Va., 27 to 14. Ed McGinty, Wheatland forward, was the spark plug of the Wyoming machine, scoring seven field goals and two charity tosses with his one handed shots. The crowd gave him a big ovation as he looped them overhanded from all sections of the offensive zone.

They will remain in New Orleans to play with the Pelicans. Cleveland will retain an option on the trio.

Umpire Forfeits Villanova Game to C. U. When Ejected Pair Refuse to Quit Field

Arbiter Is Escorted Away After Visitors' Warm Words.

By JACK ESPEY.

AS baseball players, the young men of Villanova College are extraordinary exponents of the sport. They can hit like big leaguers, run like a flock of George Simpsons, and field like, well—anything but novices.

But as speakers, particularly as public speakers, they make fine lumberjacks. They were taught as much convincingly yesterday at Brookland Stadium, when they engaged in a little talkfest with George Watt, local umpire, during the sixth inning of a hectic ball game with Catholic University's Nine.

Mr. Watt makes no claims as to oratorical ability, but he does believe that he can umpire and otherwise conduct a baseball game. And in conducting a baseball game Mr. Watt believes that certain types of speaking are things somewhat akin to blows below the belt.

So when Umpire Watt warned Pitcher Kobolis about using an illegal motion, the young men of Villanova began speaking just the way Mr. Watt dislikes. They spoke neither wisely nor well, to put it mildly, and according to the umpire, they uttered a stream of naughty remarks—real bad ones and personal, at that.

Given Two Minutes To "Get Out."

Led by Capt. John Gillespie and First Baseman Jack McAndrews, the Main Liners told Mr. Watt this and that. And then Gillespie and McAndrews refused to leave the field, when he hooked his thumb over his shoulder and exclaimed, "You're out."

Turning his back upon the pair and pulling out his watch, Watt gave them two minutes to "get out" so that play could be resumed. But they let loose another torrent of words—illegal speaking, as it were—and thereupon the "umps" yelled "game" and forfeited the contest to Catholic by a score of 9 to 0.

This was the climax to a hard-fought battle, but in the argument that followed between Watt and the Villanova players on the way to the dressing room, it looked for a moment as if the official was in danger of a physical attack. He was quickly surrounded by members of the Catholic University athletic department, however, and was escorted to safety.

Cardinals Ahead at Time of Row.

The score at the time of the sudden end was 7 to 6 in favor of the Cardinals, with the seventh run having been tallied a moment before by Johnny Oliver, second baseman, who had counted the tying run in the fifth inning.

From the start both sides showed a liking for the respective enemy pitching, Villanova getting three runs and

Snake by Trapped Ball, D. C. Woman Unmoved

Mrs. Haynes found a snake in the bunker with her trapped ball here yesterday. Without disturbing the reptile, she went ahead and played the ball. She scored a four for the hole.

Mrs. O. S. Hill, veteran Kansas City golfer, who was playing with Mrs. Haynes, took five strokes for the same hole.

They were playing in the North and South women's amateur tournament. Mrs. Hill won the match, two up.

In the fourth inning, the Cards tied the score on three hits, two errors and a "squeeze" bunt by Murphy which brought home Oliver. The latter had singled with the bases filled, three runs going over as the ball went through the Villanova left fielder.

Oliver tripled in the sixth and again was "squeezed" across by Murphy. The player-umpire fracas and the forfeit followed.

Don Remains at Beach For Last Shot at Record

Daytona Beach, Fla., April 2 (A.P.). Kaye Don, British contender for the world's automobile speed record, whose trials have been postponed because of bad beach conditions, announced today that he would remain here indefinitely for the course to improve in order that he might "take a final shot at the record."

The announcement was made after the British racing champion had telephoned reports on the condition of the beach to Louis Coatalen, French designer of the record contending car, who is in New York to address a meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers tonight.

Meantime, city authorities have started an investigation of a fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, that destroyed part of the grand stand at the Ocean Speedway late last night.

ACCEPTS TERMS

Goslin Will Train at Own Expense; All at Camp Pleased.

Griffith Agrees to Player's Terms in Bonus Clause.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., April 2.—Although dark clouds and heavy rain greeted the Nationals when they arose this morning and made the scheduled afternoon game with the Chattanooga Lookouts out of the question, President Clark Griffith, of the Washington Club, saw nothing but sunshine. It was in the form of Outfielder "Goose" Goslin finally signing his 1930 contract at the Nat owner's terms, following a long two months of long-distance debate.

All of the dignity of a state function marked the closing of the deal. Goslin arrived at Atlanta at 5 o'clock this morning, was met there by Assistant Trainer Frank (Bobo) Baxter and hustled here in Griffith's car. Following a short parley in Griffith's room the newspapermen were called in, and Goslin made the following speech:

"Fellows, I just want to say that I have signed a contract at Mr. Griffith's terms and that I will get myself into condition at my own expense. I'm glad that I've signed, and I'm going to give the club all I've got. I haven't anything more to say, and I don't want you fellows to try to pump me."

May Earn $16,000 Under Bonus Plan.

Griffith's only statement was to the effect that he was glad his long salary dispute with Goslin was ended and looked for the Goose to have a great year and to help the club.

The terms offered Goslin were a $10,000 straight salary and a bonus scale which makes it possible for the player to draw all of the $16,000 which he was paid last year. Although President Griffith won a moral victory, in that the player finally came to him and accepted the terms offered, Goslin had some voice in the matter in that the club owner accepted the bonus plan which the Goose submitted and incorporated it in the contract at the player's request.

Goslin looks to be in the best of health and gave as the reason that he apparently is carrying around no extra weight because of the fact that he has been working out and doing considerable running with the Salem (N. J.) high school team.

Johnson Gratified at Turn of Events.

Both Griffith and Manager Walter Johnson accepted Goslin's telegram of March 19 to the Nats' leader at Biloxi,

Ty Cobb Chides Bobby Jones For Relaxing at Crucial Moment

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 2 (A.P.).—If Bobby Jones were a baseball player and Ty Cobb his manager, the national open golf champion would find himself facing a fine for an overt act he pulled on the sixteenth hole of the last round in the South-Eastern open tournament here yesterday.

Two groups of players were jammed ahead and the Jones party was forced to wait a good twenty minutes before it could continue. Up to this point Jones was 5 under par and had only to negotiate the last three holes in standard figures for a new course record of 66.

Bobby was tired and lay down on the grass. When the way was cleared, Jones drove, hooking his iron shot on the short par three sixteenth into the woods. The ball lay behind trees, making it impossible for Bobby to play for the pin. He landed in a trap, chipped out, overran the cup and needed three putts to go down in 6 and ruin a great round score.

"Did you see what that boy did?" Cobb exclaimed. "He lay down on the grass. Right when he was hot and keyed up. Why do they warm up a horse before they put him over the jumps? Why does a pitcher put on a sweater between innings? How can a man expect to hold his poise and his fitness when he lies down on the ground and rests twenty minutes?" he asked. "If a ball player of mine did something corresponding to that in a tight place, I'd fine him," the former Detroit manager declared.

Genuine Runs Second to Gelding

Barnes Gets Winner Home by Length and a Half.

Billy Blake, Choice, Beats Master Star in Opener.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

IT was Florida's turn to take the limelight at Bowie yesterday when the Brandon Stable's Stand By, which raced well in the Peninsula State during the past winter, was first in the Magnolia purse. On Tuesday it was a New Orleans horse, Mrs. W. J. Potter's Bocaratone, which won the feature, and the same owner's Genuine almost made it two features in a row for New Orleans. Genuine finished a length and a half back of Stand By. He was taken to New Orleans with the rest of the Potter string last winter but his previous out was a first at Dorval last summer.

The Magnolia was a 5½-furlong sprint for older horses and attracted eight so evenly matched that the whole field finished within about a half dozen lengths. Genuine beat My Sis only a head for the place and Clean Play, which was fourth, beat Toki only a head. The other three were Silverdale, Cloudy and Sun Forward and they finished in the order named. The time was 1:06 4-5.

My Sis Sets Most Of Pace.

My Sis, northern foaled and bred, got only third at the end, but she set the pace to the top of the stretch. It was her first out since a test at this track last fall and she evidently is not as fit as when she raced with Jock, Balko and other first flight sprinters last year. Toki was in the van in the early running, but stopped early. When Toki stopped, My Sis got sternest competition from Genuine and the Potter horse even ran into the lead at the top of the stretch.

But Stand By had not yet made his run, although he had been rated close to the pace and never dropped too far back. Eddie Barnes took him to the outside and he just squeezed away from My Sis and Genuine. The filly was not strong enough to hold Genuine and that son of Sir Martin hardly expected such a burst of speed from Stand By so late in the race. As it was Stand By was going away at the finish. He paid $7.40 and was the second choice in the betting after My Sis.

A crowd estimated at 10,000 was out for the second day of the Bowie meeting which lacked the excitement of long shots that marked the first day's racing. The weather was clear and pleasant, but a wind kept the dust flying from a fast track.

Billy Blake Winner Of Opener by Head.

Twelve maiden 3-year-olds paraded in the first race at 5½ furlongs. The public quickly made Bellicasus favorite, Workman up, but at post time Billy Blake crowded him out for favoritism, and Master Star was the third choice. The Meadow Farm Stable's Billy Blake won by a head, and he had to fight for this slight margin from the sixteenth pole on to stave off Master Star, from the R. A. Smith Stable, which finished second, two lengths in front of Mrs. L. Viau's Rumor. Bellicasus was fourth. Time, 1:08. The winner paid $4.80.

Brown Erin set the pace to the turn, when Billy Blake was rushed to the front by Bethel. In the stretch Master Star had passed all of the field except the leader and was maknig a determined challenge for mastery. Workman was coming fast in the end on Bellicasus.

Foxim Never Headed In Second.

The Morven Stud's Foxim led all the way to win the second race, a sprint for 2-year-olds and ran the half mile in 48 1-5. Mrs. V. Lang's Fast Life was second a length back. B. B. Rice's Broad A third, beaten a nose for place, and Norma Conlan fourth. The winner paid $13.60.

The Rancocas Stable's well-backed filly, Glidelia, was unplaced. The stable took Steffen off and gave the mount to McAuliffe, who is very unfortunate about riding winners. If the filly had a chance, McAuliffe lost it, for she broke second and the result was to be expected under the listless ride. Twelve started and were off in rather ragged fashion, but the winner left no doubt of being best by jumping to the lead and easily holding it.

Burlap Pulled Up, Comes Again in Third.

N. E. Stanton's Burlap, 4-year-old by Bunting, won the third race by a length from G. W. Campbell's Encamp. Matin's Minister taking the show money, beaten four lengths for place. One Cent was fourth. Burlap paid $8.70. Time, 1:13 1-5. Six furlongs. Robertson rode the winner. Burlap stole a long lead from the barrier, but was pulled up and Hogan's Alley went to the front.

But Burlap was only possoming, for he came again and regaining the lead in the stretch was drawing away at the end. In the meantime Hogan's Alley dropped out of contention. Matin's Minister surprised by paying $41 for $2 to show. Corsican, favored by liberal backing, was never close. Burlap's odds dropped suddenly from 11 to 1 to 3 to 1 on the approximate odds board, indicating "wise comeback money."

Old Times Always Leads In the Fifth.

A. W. Abbott's Old Times, led all the way in the fifth race, winning by three lengths, with Ponce up. V. Kaiser's Maxiva was second a length from Rundale, third. Mary McNeil was fourth. Time, 1:49 3-5, a mile and a sixteenth. The start from the stationary gate was good except for Gay Parisian, which was almost knocked to his knees. Old Times went at once to the front and at the first turn was gaining as his rider pleased and was never in danger. Maxiva closed resolutely. There was no decided favorite in the race of thirteen horses. The winner paid $18.80.

Favorite players scored their third victory when Voyage cantered down in front of a large field of platers in the seventh race, winning by three lengths from Chattahoochee, who was another length in front of Mainsheet. Voyage, although the choice, payed the generous mutuel of $6.70 to win.

The 4-year-old gelding, owned by W. J. Owens, was off with the leaders and was in the van before the first turn was reached, never losing the lead. Jockey Fassero had him in restraint throughout the mile and sixteenth journey.

GOSLIN SIGNS 1930 TERMS OF NATS

the receipt of which was exclusively announced in The Washington Post, as clearing him of his alleged statement that he would not play ball under Johnson. The latter, in fact, seemed to be just as glad Goslin was in the fold as were the players. "I'm tickled to death," Johnson said when advised that Goslin had signed. "We need his punch and all I ask of him is that he give me his best."

Now President Griffith is able to smile once more. Goslin will take his first workout tomorrow, everything is lovely in the Nats camp at the foot of Lookout Mountain and figuratively the Goose hangs high.

As the Indian said as he was deftly removing a scalp: "What's joy to one is sometimes grief to another" and probably the only ones here not hilarious over Goslin joining the club were some of the other outfielders. With the "Wild Goose of the Potomac" practically assured of his left field berth, Red Barnes and Sam West, both of whom seemed slated for regular jobs, now must battle among themselves for one, with the possibility of Jake Powell and George Loepp crowding into the picture.

Powell's Improvement Is Revelation.

West is a great fielder, but must show that he also can hit, while Barnes, rated as a good hitter, is now in a batting slump. Meanwhile Powell, who is trying to jump all the way into the majors from the Takoma Park sandlots, is attracting plenty of attention, so much so, in fact, that Manager Johnson stated tonight that he planned to use the former Takoma Tiger star regularly for a while to see how he stacks up against the better pitching he will face as the opposing moundsmen gradually attain their best form.

"I have never seen a youngster improve as fast as Powell has," said the Nat leader. "When he first joined us he was pulling away from curve balls. We've been working with him and he stands up there as well as anybody now. Of course, he needs experience, but he's got power and, if he keeps on coming, we'll likely carry him and not farm him out as we first planned. The kid's a natural hitter and there is no telling how fast he'll come if we keep working with him."

Johnson is satisfied that Loepp is a first-class flychaser, but admits that the former Oriole has not been given a real trial at bat. "George has been driving out hits in batting practice," said Johnson, "and may do, but I can't use all of the outfielders at once in games and he will get his chance before long."

Pitcher Herb Pyle, who has been suffering from neuritis because of some infected teeth, is far from right and it has been decided to leave him here to work out with the Chattanooga club until he gets into shape, when he will rejoin the Nationals. Pyle undoubtedly will benefit more under this plan than he would touring with Johnson's team, when there is little opportunity for work, other than the usual short fielding and batting drills just before games.

Although the Nationals return here Sunday for the first game of the set of five scheduled with the Boston Braves, their Chattanooga training season ends tomorrow, with the team taking an early evening train for Birmingham for Friday and Saturday games with the Barons.

BOWIE NOTES

THE Kentucky Derby will be started this year for the first time in its long history from a stall gate, according to announcement by Col. Matt Winn, made public by Ray Bryson at Bowie, who sold the rights of the Walt starting gate for Kentucky tracks.

Frank Taylor was an arrival from New Orleans with the Rancocas horses and has entered three of them in today's races—Columbus, Gambol and Zublena.

Tom Thorp, New York turf writer, was accosted by a colored parson for a donation for orphan Negro children.

"Times are tough, but here's two bucks," was Thorp's reply.

"The Lord will remember this an' make you lucky," said the parson.

"It will take more than the Lord to change the luck at Bowie," was Thorp's parting shot.

Donnay, Rancocas horse, which won the New Orleans Handicap and was third in the Agua Caliente Handicap, is at Bowie, and will be prominent in future handicaps in Maryland.

The Havre de Grace track has been thrown open for training of horses there for the meeting which opens on April 14.

Freddie Stevens will ride Ned O. in the Kentucky Derby. The gelding worked 6 furlongs in 1:09 yesterday at Bowie.

Michigan Boy, winner of the Louisiana Derby, is here and is a candidate for the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby. He had a fast workout yesterday.

HESS DRILLS TOMORROW.

Hess A. C. diamonders will practice tomorrow night at 5:30 o'clock on the Fairlawn Field. There will be no drill tonight.

—Bowie Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE midweek card offered at Bowie today fully compares with that of the first two days of the meeting, but the fields are still overcrowded, except for the fifth race, which has five horses.

The Attractive, a purse for fillies at 6 furlongs, is the best race on the program, but is not the featured event on the card, that distinction falling to the White Marsh, at a mile and a sixteenth, which carries the larger purse, $1,500.

The Attractive is one of the best-balanced fields seen here, bringing together fillies that have raced prominently during the winter, and also those that have been kept in the barn since the close of racing in the East last fall, including two from the H. P. Whitney stable and two from the Rancocas stable.

PENNANT LASS, which set a very fast pace in the Inaugural Handicap Tuesday, leading to the sixteenth post, when overtaken by the remarkable spurt of speed shown by Bocaratone, should improve over that race, and is selected to win. If she runs back to her Tuesday race, nothing can catch her. The Whitney entry of FLIMSEY and RUEFUL will make their first start of the year, and on their 2-year-old form are entitled to consideration. They have both worked well, and it is believed that one of the pair will be good enough to beat DINAH DID UPSET, whose race Tuesday was not her best effort, but as a matter of fact she has not shown her best form all winter. She should be third, but the Rancocas stable will send to the post a pair of misses which raced well during the winter in ZUBLENA and GAMBOL. They will bear watching. It seems PENNANT LASS is much the best on public form. But because the Whitney stable made a bad showing in two races on opening day, do not get the idea that all their horses will fail to show good form. It may be put down now that at the end of the year the stable that beats Whitney's will lead the American money winners.

The fifth race, the White Marsh, should make ANNAPOLIS the first horse to win two races at Bowie, for his winning effort Tuesday stamped him as the logical and almost certain winner today. ARCTURUS, making his first start of the Eastern season, should beat MOLE HILL, STRONG HEART and LIGHT VIEW, the others slated for the purse, as bad as his winter record stands. MOLE HILL probably will outstay the others. ANNAPOLIS showed staying qualities in his last race, which should give him a big advantage in the White Marsh. He seems the surest winner on the entire card.

The first race is for maiden 2-year-olds at a half-mile. The Dixiana Farm's MY INVER is selected over the large field on workouts solely, coupled with the knowledge that these youngsters trained by Burch are not sent to the post unless they are fit, as can be cited the case of Sweep All on opening day, which won. The juvenile GARLICK, which has good winter form and racing education to fall back on, may be very dangerous, and should be second. Zinn, supposed to be best in the mud, may run well. Including the six eligible, eighteen were entered for this race.

The Rancocas Stable's COLUMBUS is picked to win the second race for 3-year-olds, but his success is made doubtful by the presence of GUILDER in the race. Both raced well on the New Orleans tracks. ST. TUSCAN should get the show money on last year's record.

JUDGE BARTLETT, which has plenty of speed and has been working here impressively, is the selection for the third race, at seven furlongs, a trifle short for him. He worked six furlongs yesterday for this seven furlong race. The clockers were impressed. ALGOL, which set a very fast pace Tuesday from the barrier to the stretch, but was third at the finish, should be the contender, with WATER LAD best of the others.

Ten 3-year-olds are listed for the sixth race at one mile and a sixteenth. NAYLOR looks best. He ran well at Miami, and has been carefully conditioned for his Eastern debut. MARY ELOISE, which won twice at New Orleans, is dangerous, and will force the pace all the way, if she gets going well from the barrier. CHATTERING appears best of the others.

A large field is to start in the seventh, also a distance race and from race he ran Tuesday—many thought he won the sixth race instead of Searington—LAURIE should gallop home. REFERENDUM, more certain to start than Laurie, because the latter is on the eligible list, is next best, with little doubt. SPURRIER may be a dangerous contender. TURQUOISE should not be overlooked altogether, but his chances would be improved by mud.

Weather, clear; track, fast and dusty.

Large G. W. Net Squad Causes Tourney Split

The unexpected rush of students to sign up for the annual tennis tournament of George Washington University has caused Max Farrington, assistant to Coach Pixlee, to split the entry list in half and have one section play for the Holt Trophy and the winner of the other section to receive a special intramural cup.

Play will commence Monday afternoon on the courts at Potomac Park.

All students now enrolled in the university are eligible to compete. The outcome of the upper bracket will largely guide in the picking of the varsity.

Entries close Friday night. The draw will be posted Saturday in the gymnasium.

HILLTOP NINE MEETS.

All old players of the Hilltop Baseball Team are asked to report at a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock, which will be held at 308 E street northeast. The name of the team is to be changed for the coming season.

COLONIALS PLAY TWO.

The Colonial A. C. Nine will meet Walter Reed diamonders in a practice game Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on the Walter Reed diamond, and will play the Fort Washington Nine on Sunday. All players are asked to report.

NEW-FOUND PITCHERS BOOST BUSINESS HIGH HOPES

First Practice Brings Out 6 Twirlers

Singman's Return to Infield After Injury Heartening.

Teams Take Shape as Central and Tech Hold Drills.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER.

SIX pitchers and two catchers, hitherto unreckoned with, yesterday reported for the first workout of the year held by the Business High School Team at the Monument Lot and surprised Coach Lynn F. Woodworth, who had thought himself thoroughly bereft of batterymen. An interclub game featured the initial practice of the last of the high school nines to start its 1930 diamond training.

During the fray Loftus, Silverman, Jenkins, ddone, Garner and Mills all paraded as pitchers, while Finley and Fradin donned the mask and glove behind the plate. With the exception of Finley, who last year caught in several games for the Stenogs, none are experienced in their positions, but it was some satisfaction to "Woody" to know at least that there were candidates for the two posts.

Return of Singman Gratifying.

There was satisfaction also in the presence of Milton Singman, regular second baseman in '9, on the field. Suffering a broken bone in his foot toward the fag end of the basket ball season, it had been feared that Singman would be unable to play any baseball this year, but doctors now say that he will be able to see action in a very short time. No candidate has shown up for the first base job, but Snyder, who transferred to Business from Western, where he played second year, is slated to play at short, with Spencer holding down the third-base job.

While Business was going through its initial drill, other schools were not idle with three of the teams getting somewhat of a line on their various recruits. Another contemplated change at Western will send Quincy Owens to first base in favor of Fox, who has not been hitting lately, with Moore taking Owens' post at second. Freeman, idle because of court activities, is expected to hold down at shortstop, with Clark still at third.

Tech's Infield Promising.

Tech, also out for the first time this week, is rounding up what looks like a fair infield with Benner at third, English at short, Wellens at second and Nelson at first. Heflin, a third baseman last year, will undoubtedly catch, while Willard, a southpaw, has joined Capt. Spigel as a pitching mate.

In a practice game against a fraternity team from George Washington University, Central yesterday had Broadbent at first, Cumberland at second, Deveau at short and Harris at third. Coach Ty Rauber also claims to have uncovered a "find" in Al Miller, outfielder, whom the Central mentor calls the "Goose Goslin" of the Columbia Heights squad. Resembling the "Goose" in his swing and actions, Miller is said to be capable of covering much territory, and can bat either right or left handed. Thompson is another flychaser of the Blue and White who can go and get 'em.

Central has another slugging outfielder in Magby, who also claims to be a pitcher. If he continues his swatting, however, Rauber will compel him to devote all of his time to the outfield, as with Cook, Childress and Lynch, Central has what looks like a formidable mound corps.

V. M. I. Nine Swamps Randolph Macon, 11-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., April 2.—Displaying a powerful hitting attack, V. M. I. swamped Randolph Macon College here this afternoon, 11 to 0. Williams, southpaw ace, started on the mound for the Cadets, and held the Yellow Jackets to one lone single in the five innings he worked and sent seven of the visitors to the bench by the strike-out route. Mason, following him, allowed one hit in the remaining four innings and struck out two.

The Cadets jumped on Taylor in the second and third innings for six hits and four runs to put the game on ice. Hammack, who relieved him in the sixth, was greeted with a barrage of three hits and three runs. V. M. I. again got to him in the eighth for five hits and four runs. Blocker, with three out of four attempts, and Gillespie, with three out of five attempts, were the hitting stars of the game.

VIRGINIA NINE BEATEN BY INDIANS

Wallace Hurls Brilliant 9 to 3 Victory for Will-Mary.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 2. William and Mary's Nine found little trouble in defeating Virginia here this afternoon, 9 to 3, in the opening game of the season. Wallace, on the mound for the Indians, blanked the Cavaliers up to the ninth, when four hits, including a triple by Lewey, yielded three runs.

The Indians collected eleven hits off three Virginia twirlers. Two runs scored in the first frame, when Scott drove the ball over the bank in center field for the circuit. Three more were added in the third on three hits, coupled with a pass and error by Dent and Pinder. Costello gave way to Ellis in the fourth inning after issuing a pass with the bases loaded, forcing in Ferrell.

The Indians failed to register a tally on Ellis, but pushed over three in the eighth inning off Millen, who was wild and ineffective.

Sloan, Cavalier fielder, made two spectacular catches of long flies by Engleburt and Silverman. Moore, of the Indians, robbed Holland of a hit in the sixth by a shoestring catch, and in the midst of Virginia's rally in the ninth, Scott raced to deep left field to pull down Pinder's long clout.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

ALEXANDRIA, Va., April 2.—The fight for the third district baseball championship this season has indications of being one of the closest in a number of years. George Mason especially has one of the strongest teams that has ever represented that school. The Potomac boys have been working out daily for the past three weeks under Prex Wilson, former William and Mary star.

In Hutchinson the suburban boys have found a clever pitcher. The balance of the team is rounding into shape. Washington and Lee High School will likewise place a strong team on the field. Coach Carter Diffey, former University of Virginia star, has turned out good teams in both football and basket ball, winning the former championship and placing second in the latter.

Coach Reynolds, of the Alexandria High School, has an inexperienced team, but it should develop into a fairly good club before the season is over. His pitching staff is giving him trouble with Nicholson and Backus his only two hurlers. Fredericksburg High School always has a strong baseball team and from what is known will be especially strong this season. This sport is the one that the latter high school usually wins the third district.

Coach Clayton Scphus, assistant coach of the Alexandria High School and coach of the freshmen team, has started something that seems to be making quite a hit with in the larger high school in northern Virginia. He introduced in the local high school the idea of having freshmen teams Washington and Lee High School and also George Mason High School thought so much of the idea that they have started a similar plan.

The St. Mary's Celtics Baseball Team held a lengthy workout yesterday afternoon and, from all indications, is getting into excellent shape for its opening game to be played in this city this Sunday. Manager Lemeric is very much pleased with the showing of the boys and especially with the new material that he has on hand.

Episcopal High School spring sports will get under way this week when the baseball team opens the season against St. Alban's in Washington. The tennis and track teams open next week and will be busy every week from now until school closes. Coach Gallaway has not given out his starting line-up for the first game, but plans to use his entire squad of 24 men.

Alexandria golfers are hitting the golf ball daily these afternoons, preparing for the golf league that will get under way later in the spring. The local club belongs to a golf association consisting of Winchester, Fredericksburg and Martinsburg, W. Va. golf clubs.

Alexandria High School's freshman baseball team will swing into action tomorrow afternoon for the first time this season. It will oppose the Jefferson School Team. The game will be played on the high school field, beginning immediately after school.

Harvard to Play Brown And Penn State in 1932

Cambridge, Mass., April 2 (A.P.).—Harvard will resume football relations with Brown and Penn State in 1932, William J. Bingham, director of athletics, said today when he announced the almost completed crimson gridiron schedule for that year.

The Bruins, who have had a place on the Harvard schedule 31 times since 1893, last played against a Crimson eleven in 1927, and Penn State has not visited the stadium since 1921, when the Nittany Lions and Harvard battled through to a sensational 21-21 tie.

The scheduling of Penn State appeared to mean the end of Harvard's football relations with Midwestern elevens. The Crimson Team has played members of the Big Ten annually since 1925 and has scheduled games with such teams for 1930 and 1931.

DE MOLAYS DRILL TODAY.

De Molay diamonders will practice at 5 o'clock this afternoon on the Union Station Plaza diamond. Any junior teams seeking games should call Manager Jack Bierach at Lincoln 4386, between 6 and 7 o'clock.

V. P. I. READY FOR ELON TODAY

All But 3 Positions Certain as Gobblers Open Season.

BLACKSBURG, Va., April 2.—The first of two games with Elon College, of North Carolina, will open the thirty-eighth baseball season at V. P. I. tomorrow. Hostilities with the Carolinians will end with a second encounter on Friday.

Climaxing as merry a scrap for positions as any V. P. I. squad has known in years, George Kircher, now on the threshold of his seventh season as varsity coach, named his first nine at the close of the final practice today. One infield and two outfield positions are still uncertain. The line-up: Sam Rice, third base; Johnny Nicholas, shortstop; Nelson Bibb, second base; Gene Brown or Bird Hooper, first base; Irving Neihouse or Sam Hardwick, left field; Muddy Rule, center field; Joe Logan or Phil Spear, right field. Either Lloyd Murden or Reggie Mapp will do the hurling, with Bob Smith or Macauley McEver back of the plate.

Sammy Rice goes back to the far corner, the position of his high school days, to replace Tommy Tomko, star of the past three seasons. Nicholas will take Rice's place at shortstop, with Nelson Bibb, Midget star of the '29 team, again on second base. Bibb was given the post over Walter Carpenter and Roy Tibbs, but only by a narrow margin after these youngsters had made a gallant bid for the position.

First Base Job Goal of Pair.

Gene Brown, left-handed sophomore, and Bird Hooper, football captain-elect, are racing abreast for the first base job left wide open by the sudden loss of Capt. Jim Coffey. It looks like a toss-up, with both likely to see service during the season.

Gene Rule, veteran of two seasons, is a sure bet for the center field job. Phil Spear, who proved fleet of foot on Old Dominion football fields last fall, may alternate with Joe Logan in right field. Spear has uncorked real punch in batting practice. Whether Irving Neihouse or Sam Hardwick starts the opener will depend upon the opposing hurler.

Reggie Mapp and Lloyd Murden, who bore the brunt of the Tech attack last spring, are in fine fettle for the coming campaign. A hefty array of untried mound talent includes Buck Chandler, Doc Ayers, Green, Craun and John Billingsley, reserve hurler last year. Game time is 4 o'clock.

130-POUNDERS WIN TITLE IN OVERTIME

St. John's Conquers Westerners, 19-16, in A.A.U. Final.

title, the Eagles sextet eliminated the last Jewish Community Center team left in thetournament, defeating the J. C. C. six, 19 to 11. To gain the decision, the winners swept into the lead from the very start and were never headed, leading 1 to 8 at the half. A 7-to-1 advantage gained in the first quarter, materially aided the Eagles, who were unaffected by the second period attack of the J. C. C. team which came within three points of tying the score. The Eagles widened the gap again in the third quarter to be in the van, 15 to 10, as the final quarter began.

It was the first game in tournament in which either team was forced to exert itself, both sextets winning their initial games in rather easy fashion. The Eagles had previously swamped the Aloysius Six, 27 to 5, and the J. C. C. scored over the Als, 22 to 7.

The losers were held to three field goals throughout the game, while the Eagles counted seven, three by Miss Cate and four by Miss Ewers. The latter also registered five times from the charity stripe. Inability to make good on the majority of their free chances played a large part in the downfall of the J. C. C. girls.

STOCK PRICES DROP IN LARGE TURNOVER

OUTPUT OF STEEL GAINS

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—After an almost uninterrupted rise sustained for more than a fortnight, the stock market turned emphatically reactionary late in today's session. Selling was in huge volume, and the most of the more active stocks closed 1 to 3 points lower. Total sales aggregated 5,312,660 shares, only about 80,000 below yesterday's record 1930 turnover.

Profit taking in the recently buoyant utility shares was particularly heavy. The price index of 20 representative issues from this group dropped 5½ points. The composite index for 90 leading stocks lost more than 2 points. A wider decline has not been experienced since February 20.

With increasing public participation in the market, professional traders have been growing cautious during the past few days, fearing that the speculative structure was becoming top heavy. Although there has been a tendency to disregard rising brokers' loans of late, Wall street estimates that the weekly figures to be published late tomorrow will show an unusually large upturn, and many traders hurried to take their profits on the recent rise before these figures appear.

Borrowings Up $489,000,000.

The stock exchange's monthly compilation of total member borrowings as of March 31, published after the close of the market today, showed an increase of nearly $489,000,000. The weekly Federal Reserve brokers loan figures for the period from February 26 to March 26 showed a gain of only $331,000,000. The monthly compilation indicates clearly that the closing days of the month saw a sharp rise in loans, and as it includes more sources it also suggests that last week's reserve figures, showing a decrease of $21,000,000, may have been somewhat deceptive.

An increase of $130,000,000 in reserve member bank loans on securities during the same week also tended to belie the favorable brokers' loan figures of last week.

The weekly steel trade reviews confirmed reports of an increase of about 3 per cent in steel mill activity this week, but were none too cheerful. Iron Age said: "No sharp rebound in activity is looked for; on the contrary, some producers, doubtless influenced in their views by the hand-to-mouth character of buying and the persistance of price unsettlement, believe that the industry will do well to hold its recent gains."

Car loadings figures for the week ended March 22 showed a slight reduction from the previous week, and again were the lowest for the period in recent years. Loadings of miscellaneous freight, regarded as a good index of trade conditions, showed a slight gain over the previous week, but smaller than the seasonal trend would indicate.

Eastman Kodak Declines.

Eastman Kodak sold up about 4 points to new high for the year, but closed about a point lower. American Telephone, United States Steel, Public Service of New Jersey, Columbian Carbon and J. I. Case each lost about 4. Shares losing 2 to more than 3 included American Can, American Power & Light, American Tobacco, American Water Works, Atlantic Refining, A. M. Byers, Consolidated Gas, Du Pont, Gillette, Goodyear, Liggett & Myers, New York Central, Missouri Pacific, Standard Gas, and Standard Oil of Kansas.

Leading coppers were strong spots in the early trading, selling up a point or two, reflecting predictions of increasing consumption. Anaconda and American Smelting touched new 1930 highs. General Electric and International Harvester were conspicuously buoyant, selling up about 4 points to new highs for the year, and closing about a point higher. Radio mounted about 2½ points to a new top, and closed firm.

Commodity markets generally moved in narrow ranges. July and September wheat closed fractionally higher, while May eased. European buying was said to be improving, and Government weather and private crop reports were bullish. Corn closed steady. Cotton futures reacted 70 cents to $1.40 a bale.

Foreign exchanges were fairly steady. Sterling cables slipped off 1-16 to $4.85½, while the Canadian dollar rallied to parity.

BOND PRICES LOSE IN VERY DULL DAY

Amusement Shares Prove Feature With Several Gaining Ground.

FOREIGN GROUP IS QUIET

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Narrow price movements prevailed among the higher grade investment bonds today. It was an unusually dull session, even for the convertibles, and closing quotations proved to be irregularly lower. The composite price of 30 issues dipped below 100 for the first time since March 15.

Interest charges remained firm. Call money held at 4 per cent on loan calling while time funds were advanced a shade in the 30-day maturity. When the tightness incident to the first of the month has relaxed, however, an ease in money is anticipated, although there is little expectation that the abnormally low levels of March 15 will be duplicated. Dealers in commercial paper reported a livelier inquiry.

With rails, utilities and industrials of standard types only marking time, the chief moves of the day were in share privilege bonds and in the obligations of amusement companies. In addition, an upturn in United States Governments was noted but the demand for them was insignificant.

Convertibles Lose Ground.

Convertibles slumped, as was to be expected from the heaviness of stocks in the late dealings. American Telephone 4½s closed 4¼ points lower at 178¼. International Telephone 5½s lost 2¼, while Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, Atchison 4½s, Missouri Pacific 5½s and Texas Corporation 5s declined about a point.

Activity in the amusement stocks was closely paralleled in the various companies' bonds, most of which carry share features. General Theaters Equipment 6s soared 6½ points to the new high of 134½, but reacted somewhat to show a net gain of 4¾. Loew's 6s equalled their record price of 122, finishing 2 points lower for a net loss of 1½. Fathe 7s and Warner Brothers Pictures 6s were steady. Shubert Theaters 6s rose 3¾ points on a small turnover.

Several investment rails found the market thin. Central Pacific first 4s, Northern Pacific general 3s and Union Pacific 4½s advanced a point on minor transactions. There was more significant firmness in Louisville & Nashville 4s, Morris & Essex 4½s, New York Central 4s, Union Pacific first 4s and St. Louis, San Francisco 4½s, but gains in these listings were offset by small declines in Santa Fe general 4s, Pennsylvania gold 5s, Big Four general 4s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, and a few others. Western Pacific first 5s were unusually active but failed to move.

Standard Utilities Lag.

Standard utilities and industrials lagged, showing somewhat easier tendencies on a diminished volume of trading.

Foreign bonds were generally uninteresting. Rio de Janeiro 8s sold at 105, up a point. Most of the important European government loans remained firm and quiet.

Gains in the United States liberties and Treasuries ranged from 2 to 12 thirty-seconds, the maximum rise appearing in Treasury 3¾s.

The market is expecting a new $15,000,000 issue of Berlin City Electric 6½s, to be offered at about the price of the present bonds which closed today at 94, up a point.

New issues scheduled for tomorrow include $3,000,000 in Texas Gas Utilities first mortgage convertibles 15-year 6s at 98. The bonds will be exchangeable for Appalachian Gas Corporation stock

"Unused Transportation"

The majority of cars today are built to give many more thousands of miles of efficient, dependable and care-free service than is exacted by the man who constantly wishes, and can afford to buy, the latest refinement in automobile style. These unused "miles of satisfaction" which he makes available in "trading-in" are available at remarkable low cost to those who realize the advantage of buying used cars through the comprehensive listings of the

NEW POST CLASSIFIED SECTION

The prospective purchaser will find it most easy to locate the type of car which he desires because of the new alphabetical arrangement of these columns, which eliminates the necessity of reading through scores of offerings in search of the make of automobile which he has in mind to buy. Full descriptions are also given and this makes it possible to check every feature before making a personal inspection—with the loss of time occasioned when cars prove unsatisfactory.

"The First Thing in the Morning"

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Thermoid.

N. W.—Please let me have some data on Thermoid Co., as I have become favorably inclined toward an investment in this stock.

Answer—Thermoid is a large manufacturer of asbestos brake lining, supplying about one-fifth of the total consumption of the country. For the year 1929 there was a balance available for interest taxes of $940,975. At the present time the stock pays a dividend of $2 a year, and at present prices yields about 8 per cent on the investment. This income is regarded as ultrasattractive, in view of the present money market. Stock of the Thermoid Co. may be regarded as a conservative investment for long-term holding.

Davison Chemical.

T. D.—I have become interested in the chemical stocks and would like some information on Davison Chemical Co.

Answer—Davison Chemical Co.'s earnings for the year 1929 were the largest in some time, amounting to $3.34 a share on the common stock, as compared with $1.42 for the eighteen months ended June, 1928. This concern is one of the leaders in the fertilizer and chemical industries. Big things are expected from developments of the chemical called "silica gel," whose properties have a value as a refrigerating medium. Judging from comments of the president of Davison in the 1929 annual report, dividends on the stock would be expected in the near future. In view of the favorable outlook in the fertilizer and chemical fields, Davison appears to have considerable attractiveness for long-term holding.

American Locomotive.

C. H. B.—What can you tell me concerning the common stock of the American Locomotive Co. as an investment? Also what do you attribute the recent decline in stock from around 100 to 83?

Answer—The recent decline in the stock was no doubt caused by rumors of an impending cut in the present dividend rate of $8 per share. Recently, however, the presidency of the company stated there was no intention of making any change in the dividend. The stock is looked upon as a speculative investment.

Marconi and Others.

F. M. N.—What can you tell me about Canadian Marconi, Durant Motors and Continental Motors? Would you advise holding these stocks or getting rid of them?

Answer—No dividends are being paid by any of these companies and consequently their stocks are at present in the speculative class. This column never advises as to whether or not any stock should be either bought or sold at any figure whatsoever.

Flint Motor; Pierce Petroleum.

Mrs. M. M. J.—In December 1924, I bought ten shares of Flint Motor stock, for which I paid $150. Will you please advise me if this cerificate is of any value, and if so, what to do to realize on it? If you would answer this through your paper I think it would interest a great many Government employes, who bought this stock at that time. Also please advise me as to Pierce Petroleum.

Answer—Flint Motor common stock has very little value. It is at present quoted in the over-the-counter market nominally at around 50 cents a share. Among the firms that are offering to either buy or sell the shares are Julius Stern & Co., Morris Stein and David R. Mitchell & Co., all of New York City. You might be able to dispose of your stock through any one of these firms.

The stock of the Pierce Petroleum Corporation is highly speculative and pays no dividend. The report of the company for the quarter ended September 30, 1929, showed net income of $394,457, or 15 cents a common share, compared with $424,225, or 17 cents a share in the corresponding period of 1928. Net for first nine months of 1929 was $878,718, equal to 33 cents a share, being 11 per cent higher than for the same time in 1928. In past years net has been variable, and in 1927 and 1926 deficits were shown.

Crocker Wheeler.

C. M. W.—Please give me your advice on Crocker Wheeler. Do you think it is a good buy at the present price? I would also like to know what you think about International Telephone & Telegraph.

Answer—It is not within the province of this column to advise at what price any stock whatsoever should be either bought or sold. Inasmuch as Crocker Wheeler does not pay a dividend, the stock, as it now stands, is entirely speculative. Company reported for year ended December 31, 1929, net income of $407,028, or $1.75 a share, compared with net of $84,962, or 36 cents a share, for 1928. Earnings are based on 232,400 shares of common stock outstanding, after 10-for-1 split up in October, 1929, and retirement of preferred in November, 1929. Increased earnings reflect greater volume of sales and improved manufacturing facilities. Synchronized motor and speed changes are now in mass production and are expected to contribute materially to future earnings.

While International Telephone & Telegraph at present does not look overattractive from the standpoint of investment yield, the return at current prices being only about 3 per cent, the company is a most substantial one and is constantly expanding, with a very promising future during the coming years. Rights to subscribe to the additional issue of new stock expired July 5, 1929, when payment in full was due.

Endicott-Johnson.

Miss F. W. M.—What is your opinion of Endicott-Johnson common stock? Do you advise holding for a long pull or selling now at the low price, thus causing me a loss of several hundred dollars?

Answer—Although Endicott-Johnson's earnings for the first half of 1929 failed to cover common stock dividend requirements for that period, the final six months showed great improvement, and for the full year dividends on both classes stock were covered. Official statements indicate an improved outlook for the company. On this account, the stock is well thought of as a speculative investment. As to whether or not you should retain your stock is a matter for you alone to determine.

Wall Street Briefs

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Recent advances in cotton were followed by reactions today under realizing promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and a somewhat easier technical position. Further covering by old crop shorts and some buying of new crops on unfavorable features in the weekly weather report were supplied on moderate bulges from early declines and after selling up from 16.33 to 16.47 May declined to 16.27 and closed at 16.32. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 14 to 28 points.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 8 points with active months showing net losses of about 4 to 13 points right after the opening in response to the relatively easy cables. The near months seemed in less urgent demand with July easing off to 15.43 and the new October contract to 15.72, but this dip brought in a renewal of covering by May and July shorts, which seemed to come partly from the trade.

There was some buying of later deliveries which may have been encouraged by reports that farm work in the South had made poorer progress because of recent unfavorable weather conditions and there were rallies which carried prices back to about yesterday's closing quotations. July sold up to 16.58, or 2 points net higher and the new October to 15.79 or within 2 points of yesterday's closing quotations, but the demand tapered off on this advance and prices weakened again later under renewed realizing.

July broke to 16.39 and the new October to 15.57 in the late trading when the general list showed net losses of about 15 to 28 points.

The weekly report of the Weather Bureau said very little cotton was put in during the week because of the low temperatures and that preparation of seed beds had been retarded, although in most sections the work was rather well advanced. This report came in for some comment, but attention still seemed to be more or less absorbed by the near-month situation and fluctuations in differences between months or between markets. At the close May was 70 points over the new October, compared with 66 yesterday.

Liverpool cables said the demand was less insistent with continental and local buying supplied by realizing.

Exports today, 12,660, making 5,924,252 so far this season. Port receipts, 9,607. United States port stocks, 1,830,016.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 2 (A.P.).—Responsive to unabated drought, new crop deliveries of wheat went upward in price today, but May, which stands for wheat already on hand, lagged behind. According to trade reports, severity of the drought in some districts Southwest has become almost unprecedented for this time of year, with wheat in many fields perishing. Estimates of world import needs for wheat were enlarged today 16,000,000 bushels, but it was asserted that Russia, France and the Danube would be able to furnish all of the increase.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular, ranging from ⅜@c a bushel decline to ⅝c advance, compared with yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼c off to ¼c up. Oats ¼c to ½c advanced, and provisions showing 17@22c gain.

Persistent failure of any rain relief of consequence for either the Southwest or the West received first attention throughout the day in the wheat pit, but traders took sharp notice also of monthly unofficial crop estimates from Chicago experts. The estimates suggested that domestic winter wheat yields would total 574,000,000 bushels this season, against 578,000,000 bushels harvested in 1929. Altogether the reports average 81.4 per cent as the crop condition, compared with 82.7 a year ago, and were about what had been expected.

Broadly, the prospect for domestic winter wheat, as summed up by one expert, was a little below the season's normal, with the outcome more than usually dependent upon weather conditions. Total abandonment of winter wheat acreage, he forecast, would probably prove to be less than the average abandonment of the last five years. Another leading authority estimated domestic spring wheat acreage would be 7.9 per cent less than last year. Increased export inquiries for wheat from the United States were heard of today, but North American purchases amounted to but 400,000 bushels.

Favorable weather tended to ease the corn market. Oats sympathized with wheat rather than corn.

Provisions advanced, helped by an upward trend of hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, May 109⅝@⅞, 112⅝; July, 108⅞@109, 112⅛@⅜; September, 110⅞@111, 114⅜@½. Corn, May, 85⅛@½, 86⅛@87; July, 86⅛@87, 88⅛@⅜; September, 87⅛@¼, 88⅝@¾.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

FAIRFAX BOARD SETS RATES OF TAXATION

CALL SPECIAL MEETING

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Vienna, Va.
Phone Clarendon 919-J-1.

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors met yesterday in the board room at Fairfax. The levies for each of the six magisterial districts on which the taxes to be paid this fall are based were made at this meeting. The following rates on the $100 valuation of property will prevail in each district: The county levy will be 40 cents, the levy for pension funds 5 cents, the levy for county road funds, exclusive of incorporated towns, will be 99 cents. The county school levy will be 90 cents and the district road levy 1 cent. All of which will total $2.35. The basic rate of $2.35 will prevail in Centerville and Lee districts.

In Dranesville district, 25 cents was added for the special school levy, 60 for interest on district and 30 cents for the bonds sinking fund This makes a total rate of $3.50 in this district, the highest in the county. Falls Church district ranks second with a special school levy of 25 cents, with a levy of 20 cents for the bond issue sinking fund and 40 cents levy for interest on the district bonds, making a rate of $3.20 in that district. Mount Vernon district will pay an extra 20-cent levy for the district bond issue and sinking fund, making a total rate of $2.25. Providence district has a revolving fund which takes care of their district bonds so as to escape a levy for this purpose. A 5-cent levy for the sinking fund and a 10-cent levy for the special school bond issue was all that was added in that district, making a total rate of $2.50.

While this rate was being adopted, Commonwealth Attorney Wilson M. Farr warned that this figure does not allow the board to enter into any new projects as it would barely cover the running expenses of the county. There would be no funds with which to purchase additional equipment and any expense that would be incurred would be disastrous. The county budget as adopted and the rate levied only includes those things that are fixed by the State law. The three laws that were passed by the last session of the State Legislature affecting Fairfax County, which includes the county firemen's insurance, the ball park and planning commission and the extra paid deputy sheriff were automatically excluded when the above rates were adopted. The feeling of the board yesterday was that in view of the present unemployment situation and the adverse condition of the farmers in the county that the tax rates this year should be made as small as possible, barely allowing enough to pay the actual running expenses of the county. This puts an end to the question of whether or not the board would raise their own salaries effective July 1.

The supervisors authorized the insuring of the clerk's office for $8,000, the courthouse and contents at $10,000, the jail and the dwelling attached $4,000 and the old almshouse $5,000. There was also some discussion about converting the old almshouse into a county home for delinquent children, but no action was taken at this time. Bounties amounting to $295.10 for predatory birds and animals were ordered paid out of the county dog fund. This will be the last payment made for bounties as they were abolished by the last session of the State Legislature.

It was shown that the present road police has four members, but only two motorcycles and one automobile. After some discussion the board authorized the county engineer to purchase another car, as they believed it would cost less in time than if they purchased another motorcycle. They also authorized the purchase of handcuffs for use by each member of the force. The report of the treasurer shows an overdraft in the county police fund so the board authorized the transfer of $1,000 from the county fund to the police fund.

County Engineer F. N. Larkin, in accordance with the new policy inaugurated by the board filed a report of the amount of money expended on each district road in the county. He also filed an annual report showing the scale of wages paid county employes and a report of the annual inventory of the property and equipment of the county highway department. Larkin recommended to the board that the road from Pohick Church Crossing be straightened so as to eliminate two dangerous curves, as was asked in the petition filed with the board at the last meeting. This work is to be done as soon as the property owners along the proposed right of way convey to the county a clear title to the land needed, and as soon as funds are available for the work. The board will make a trip to Richmond in the near future to confer with H. G. Shirley, of the State Highway Department, in regard to the allocation of the State roads in the county, as authorized in the new State highway law. Engineer Larkin was also included in the party.

A special joint meeting of the board of supervisors and the county school board was called for April 30, in order that the school situation in this county might be discussed. It was stated at this meeting that most of the cow barns in this county are in better condition that a large number of the schools.

The county-wide nursing committee of Fairfax County will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the county health office at Fairfax. Mrs. Russell A. Lynn, Red Cross chairman, will preside in the absence of Mrs. U. S. Walters, of McLean, nursing chairman for the county.

The Rev. George H. Fielding, of Clarendon, will be the principal speaker tonight at the meeting of the Andrew Chapel School and Community League. He will speak on the State-wide activities of the Virginia school leagues. A short program of songs and recitations will be given by the children of the school. One of the features of the entertainment will be a debate, "Resolved, That the horse is more useful than the tractor."

Wilbert T. Woodson, divisional superintendent of schools of Fairfax County, announced yesterday that at the direction of the State department of education that college entrance examinations will be held at the school board offices in Fairfax on May 23, beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning. He also stated that any one wishing to take this examination should file their applications with him not later than noon of Thursday, May 1.

Another announcement issued by him is that Thomas A. Edison is again this year offering a scholarship on the same basis as he did last year. His desire is to select some outstanding young man in a public or private secondary school who has had sufficient training in science and who has particularly emphasized his particular interest and capacity in scientific investigation to warrant his selection in a Nation-wide contest. Superintendent Woodson is requesting that the principals of the secondary schools in Fairfax County confer with him in case they may feel they have in their schools a young man capable of competing in this contest

The Fairfax County health unit made public its report of the work accomplished during the past month This unit is composed of Dr. Robert E. Feagans, Dr. Robert W. Moss, dentist; Dr. Robert J. White, sanitation officer, and Mrs. Herbert H. Seamons, county health nurse.

The giving of toxin-antitoxin treatment has been one of the principal projects of the unit during the month. In order to convey the idea to the public talkies were given to the children in the schools and copies of bulletins on diphtheria were sent to the homes. It was stated that excellent results were obtained by this method and also with the preschool children.

The home hygiene classes that were recently organized have created so much interest that practically every community in the county are asking that classes be formed there. The two that have been organized are reported by the health nurse, to have become efficient in the work that has been taught. The dental clinics among the school children has been completed. The county home demonstration agent and the health nurse are planning a county-wide health program by the five-point children and the 4-H clubs to be held in Fairfax on May day.

The reports submitted by the unit to the county board of supervisors shows that 100 homes have been sanitated during the month and ten water supplies have been investigated and made safe. In their fight against disease, 173 cases have been investigated. Among these were 3 of diphtheria, 4 scarlet fever, 35 for whooping cough and 131 other diseases, 7 dwellings were quarantined, 23 smallpox vaccinations and 126 toxin-antitoxin treatments were given.

Four health clinics were conducted and the following number of persons was examined: 302 dental, of which 182 were treated: 41 for eyes, 8 treated; 5 for hearing; 61 for tonsils and adenoids anl 1 treated.

In conducting the units school activities, 473 pupils were examined, 227 were found to have 502 defects, of which 212 were corrected The units home work consisted of 71 visits to the homes, among which seven were for infants, 10 for preschool children, 23 school children and 20 adults; 171 persons were referred to their family physicians or dentists for treatment. Two examinations were given and work permits issued the staff made 36 lectures to as many audiences and 2 home nursing classes were conducted.

The home demonstration club at Annandale will meet this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Bladen.

A large number of bulletins were distributed dealing with dairy and garden subjects. During the month 19 visits were made to dairymen and 26 to poultry keepers. Four specialists visited him and assisted in his work.

Agent Derr feels that the most important piece of work he has done since taking up county agent work is the beginning of a radio program over station WJSV on the first and fourth Wednesdays of each month at noon. This will give him an opportunity to bring before the farmers such subjects, at a time when they can best be utilized by them.

Academy Tests Set for Annapolis

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 2.—Candidates for appointment as midshipmen at the Naval Academy, who have been "prepping" within the area including Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis, and other nearby points, and who were originally listed to take the forthcoming April mental examinations in Baltimore, will present themselves for the tests at Annapolis instead, it was announced today by authorities of the Naval Academy. There will be about 110 to appear for the tests, which will be held in the State armory.

This change has been made largely because the Baltimore Postoffice Building, where the examinations have been conducted in recent years, is now in process of reconstruction, coupled with the more convenient location of this city, and the fact that a large percentage of the boys have been attending the two local preparatory schools, and a third school at Severn, Anne Arundel County.

The examinations will be under the supervision of civil service officials, the same as at other points throughout the country. The dates for the tests are April 15 to 17, inclusive.

The tests are held twice annually, in February and April.

Westernport Officials Elected.

Westernport, Md., April 2 (Special) Harry J. Biggs and Thomas W. Umstot, incumbent, were elected commissioners of Westernport yesterday Joseph P. Guy and Henry W. Nau were the unsuccessful candidates. The vote cast totaled 750.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was knee-deep in thought, her brows puckered.

"What's worrying you?" I asked, as she sat before her desk, a pad of paper handy, a pencil poised in midair.

"Did you read about these people whose home was raided without a search warrant?"

"Yes, of course, I read it—but what has that to do with you? They didn't search this place yet, did they?"

Luella bounded from her seat, almost knocking over the desk. "I'll say they didn't," she snapped; "I'd like to see 'em try it, too."

From the fire in her eyes, I knew Luella would uphold the best American traditions, like her forefathers at Bunker Hill—and not shoot the officers till she saw the whites of their eyes.

"Good for you, Luella; you believe then that every man's home is his castle, eh?"

"Do you?" she asked

"Why, certainly That's the old English law——"

* * * *

LUELLA looked at me somewhat quizzically.

"It might be the English law," she said, "but it certainly isn't the American—we don't believe in aristocracy in this country. We're a democracy——"

"So I've heard, but what has that to do with the old doctrine 'Every man's home is his castle?'"

Again she leveled that look in my direction.

"It means," she said, "that where there is no aristocracy there are no castles——"

Ho, ho! So that's her way of looking at it.

"By that argument, Luella, where there are no castles there are no homes The law specifically states——"

"Hang the law," declared Luella stomping her foot, and she reminded me of the patriots of old "Certainly we have homes! Otherwise how could they be raided?"

There's something to that, of course, but I wanted to know what she intended to do about it

"I'm going to write a letter to the editor," she declared, reaching for the pen and ink and thrusting aside the pad. "I think the time has come to return to normalcy."

* * * *

"NORMALCY?"

She pondered "Maybe that's not the exact word What I mean is this: There ought to be a law compelling raiding parties to make appointments——"

"Yeah?"

"And when they visit people's homes they should stay where they belong."

"Where's that?"

"In the cellar."

"Luella! Not the cellar!"

"Where do you think they ought to be entertained?" she asked

"Why, in the attic——"

She flared up. "Housekeeping is bad enough as it is," she sighed, "without raiding parties tracking all through the house—on the way to the attic."

LITTLE CHANGE SEEN IN MARYLAND FARMS

Incomes Predicted to Vary but Little From Figures of Previous Year.

LABOR IN GOOD SUPPLY

College Park, Md., April 2 (A.P.).—With the statement that there seems no prospect of any material change in the next few years, there will be practically no change in the income from farm products throughout Maryland during 1930 over that of 1929, according to a bulletin issued by the extension service of the University of Maryland on the agricultural outlook.

The bulletin, compiled from information gathered by the United States Department of Agriculture and the Maryland authorities, was prepared by experts of the university station.

"Due to the decline in domestic activity from the high level of 1929, the residue of the 1929 crops now unmarketed will be sold under conditions less favorable than those of the early part of the season," the report declares. "Domestic markets may improve during the latter part of 1930, but the summer and fall markets probably will not be as good as those of 1929. The demand for farm products during the first part of 1931 may be better than the same period of 1930," it says.

Marketing Credit Outlook Good.

"The outlook for farm mortgage financing and marketing credit is more favorable than a year ago," the bulletin continues," and a somewhat larger supply of labor for farm work will be available, and probably at slightly lower wages during the first half of 1930.

"Rapid changes in farm production particularly the extensive use of improved farm machinery and motor power in competitive regions have decreased the advantage peculiar to Maryland farmers through their proximity to their markets," the report says, and adds that to meet this competition, more efficient production must be practiced by farmers of the State.

Some of the factors recommended by the bulletin for this objective, are the replanting rotations to meet changing conditions, greater use of better machinery, better seed, raising and using more home-grown legumes and other feeds.

"There is little in the wheat situation in Maryland at the present time to indicate that the prices for the 1930 crop will be much different than prevailed for the 1929 crop," the bulletin says, "unless fall sown wheat areas suffer severe wind damage or the intended spring area is greatly curtailed * * * and the prices for corn unless there is a change in conditions, probably will not be as good as in 1929.

Lower Prices on Eggs Probable.

"The outlook is for somewhat lower prices for Maryland eggs than were received during 1929, and the price of feeds is also likely to be lower.

"The surplus of butter, cream and condensed milk now in storage in the United States and the surplus of fluid milk on the Maryland markets sound a note of warning to dairymen of the State. * * * It is not a good time to increase the dairy herd or for new herds to be established.

"The outlook for prices of Maryland strawberries appears more promising than in any year since 1926," the report declares. "The 1930 outlook for nearly all canning crops produced in Maryland has reason to be the best in several years, and the outlook for Maryland tobacco is very favorable."

McMullen Highway To Be Completed

Work to Be Done This Year to Aid Jobless and to Gain Three Years.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 2.—To stimulate employment conditions in the Cumberland area and at the same time to gain three years, it was decided to complete the McMullen highway from Cumberland to Westernport by building the four and six-tenths miles link from McCoole to Westernport this year. A cooperative arrangement has been effected through the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

If State appropriations were awaited it would be three years before the work would be accomplished. Between $150,000 and $180,000 will be needed. Of this amount the county and State have available for construction this year about $60,000. Federal aid to the amount of $20,000 is expected and the needed $100,000 will be supplied by ten banks in the area. The bank loans will be guaranteed by residents of the Georges Creek section.
